That together with many others the pltfs. have paid large sums of money for one or more of said purposes. Most of them paid money for the purpose of buying said land, and taking up the mortgage thereon given by said McCallion, and also for the erection of said church, and all have paid either for that or for the purpose of insurance theron and for the repairs and preservation of said trust property and for the purpose of said trust.

That a deed was made to the Rev. Charles McCallion, aforesaid, it being understood that he took the same to hold for him and his heirs and assigns in trust forever for the purpose of carrying out the trust aforesaid. That said McCallion mortgaged the said land back to his grantor to secure the purchase money then unpaid. That said church and parsonage house which were originally erected on said lot were insured for a large sum of money, to wit for about the sum of fourteen thousand dollars, and the money for obtaining said insurance was paid in part by the pltfs. for the purpose of preserving and keeping said property and fund in case of loss by fire, and keeping said trust fund alive so far as could be.

That said church and parsonage house which were so erected were burned by fire some years ago or more, and it was proposed to erect a new church in the place thereof on the same ground. For that purpose the original subscribers and members of that church and those believing in the Catholic faith caused a committee to be appointed for the raising of such funds for the erection of a new church and parsonage house so burned which was to be applied toward the erection of the said new church under the charge of said committee. That said committee proceeded to obtain subscriptions for said purpose and did obtain subscriptions to a large amount of many thousand dollars, in sums from five hundred dollars down to twenty-five dollars each or less, and many of the pltfs. subscribed thereto as they were able.

That after subscriptions had been obtained to a large amount, the said deft. Walsh, who was then the priest who by appointment of the bishop of the diocese had charge of the said church and trust property, aforesaid, in Portsmouth, for the purpose of said trust and for propagating and continuing the Catholic religion in the vicinity of said Portsmouth, discharged said committee, saying that he was able to build the church and collect and apply the funds without the aid of any committee, and the said Walsh, acting as he says for the said deft. Bacon, bishop as aforesaid, and for those who have assumed the charge of said trust funds, claims that he alone under the direction of the bishop of the diocese has full power to build said church and spend said funds regardless of the wishes of those who have subscribed their money either for the original lot of land, or the original church, or for obtaining the insurance thereon, and that the subscribers either to the old or new fund and the church and people have no power or control over its distribution or how it is expended, and that the said Walsh and the said Bishop are not accountable to any one as to the way they expend said sum, and are not obliged to render an account of what they do with said funds so subscribed for said trust purposes.

That the pltfs. being such original subscribers, and being regular attendants upon said church with their families, and being believers in said Catholic faith, did not wish said Walsh and said Bishop to have such charge of the money arising from the insurance of the old church and from the subscriptions for the new, but desired the church to be built by and under the charge of the committee, who were appointed and elected by said church and people to obtain said subscriptions and erect said church, and when said Walsh, deft. as aforesaid, took said matters out of the hand of said committee, and declared that he was able to build the church and apply the money without the aid of the committee, the plffs. declined to make any further subscriptions, or to pay any further sums of money, which they had already subscribed, claiming that the said Walsh and said Bishop had no right or power to so to act, and that they were liable to account for all the money they have so taken and used, as it was a trust fund to the church and people of said Portsmouth of the Catholic faith, and was not the property of the priest or Bishop. That said defts. Walsh and Bishop Bacon claim that the money when subscribed was a gift, and that when once given and the deed taken in the name of the said McCallion, that the subscribers had no longer any power, control or voice as to the fund, and that the Bishop of the diocese alone had full control and charge of said matters and was not obliged to account to them as to the way he paid out or used said funds, Whereas the plffs. paid their said money for the purpose of having a church for the public worship of God, according to the Catholic faith, to be open to all persons for the conversion of all persons to that faith "without money and without price."

That said deed was made to said McCallion to hold to him and his heirs and assigns, as the deed sets forth. That the plffs. do not know whether said McCallion is dead or alive. That he left said Portsmouth about twenty years ago, and has neglected to take any charge or care of said trust fund. That by reason of his neglect and abandonment it becomes necessary to have a new trustee appointed to take charge of said trust funds as no one now has legal charge or control thereof. But now so it is that said deft. Walsh, under the charge and control of the said Bacon, without the leave or consent of the people of his church and parish, in said Portsmouth, of whom the plffs. are a part, and against the often expressed wish and desire of these plffs., one and all, and also of numerous others, members of his said church and people, has publicly declared in the pulpit of said church, that no person can or shall attend the worship of God in the church so erected, who has not subscribed and paid money towards the erection of this new church, and that all those persons, including the plffs., who have not so subscribed towards the erection of the new church shall not attend the worship of God therein held according to the Catholic faith, unless they pay the sum of twenty-five cents for admission to each service they so attend.

And said deft. Walsh has publicly on the Sabbath day, in the pulpit of said church, during the usual time of such public worship, called down the curse of God and the blessed Virgin to rest upon all those persons, including the plffs. and their families, who refuse to pay towards the erection of said church.

That he has also there publicly called upon divine power to send the cholera upon those persons who so refuse, and that they may die and their smell may be so bad that their friends could not stand over them to take a last farewell, and has there used various threats and denunciations unscriptural and contrary to the purposes of said trust, and the said deft. Walsh has debased said church and pulpit from the public worship of God, and a place where the poor have the gospel preached to them, to a place where admission is charged to hear the spite and ill-will and uncalled for curses and denunciations of a person who under the control of the Bishop has charge of said church and people and pulpit.

That the plffs. desire that the purposes of the said trust be carried out. That the said church be kept and held for the public and free worship of the Catholic religion and where the pulpit will not be degraded by quarrels between the priest and people. That said deft. Walsh in the further carrying out of his said rules claims that he, and he alone, can say who shall attend worship in his church, and that the church and people have no voice or vote in the matter, and that he shall enforce the order against all persons who have not so subscribed towards the new church, and in pursuance of his said purpose he had caused some of the plffs. and members of their families to be put out of said church in some cases by force, and such proceedings were had that in one instance complaint was made and the person who so ejected, one John Hennessey, son of one of your petitioners, under the direction of said deft. Walsh, was fined for said act before the Police Court of said city of Portsmouth, the said Hennessey having been invited to sit with a person who had bought and paid for seats, and thereupon the next Sunday the said Walsh declared from the said pulpit in said church, during time of divine service, that if any one who had hired seats in that church should invite in any one of those persons or their families who had not paid towards the erection of the said new church, he would take their seats from them, and he did so take a seat from the said Walker, plff., which had been hired by the said Walker, because his wife invited said Hennessey to sit with her.

That plffs. are willing to pay subscriptions already made, and subscribe towards the church and for the worship of God when the fund can be distributed and paid under the direction of a committee appointed by the church and people, who will render an account of the disposition of said fund. That they are not willing to subscribe or pay for the said dfts., Walsh and Bacon, to take said fund, and spend the same as they choose without any accounting therefor. That the fund they have originally subscribed has all been taken by said Walsh, so far as the insurance money has gone, and disposed of by him without their consent or agreement and against their expressed wish and desire. That the plffs. are remediless and cannot attend the worship of God according to their faith, and where they have heretofore subscribed a fund for that purpose, because of the possession of said trust as aforesaid, without quarrels, strife and contention each Sunday and without being ejected from said church by force and violence.

That it being a trust fund their sole remedy is in this court in equity.

Wherefore the plffs. pray that the said Walsh and the said Bishop, having assumed the place of trustees illegally and wrongfully, and their successors and assigns, be ordered and decreed to account for the disposition of the said insurance money and the said trust fund which have come into their hands from the plffs. and all other persons, so the plffs. and all the subscribers to said fund may know where and how their trust fund is invested, and where to find it hereafter in case of renewed trouble, or perversion thereof, so the same may not be all squandered and lost, and that the said defts. Walsh and Bishop and their successors be ordered and decreed to keep said church and land and the avails thereof for the purposes of said trust and for such trustee as this court shall appoint and for public worship of God in said Portsmouth and vicinity, according to the Catholic faith, free to all whenever services are held therein, whoever pays for such services.

That a new trustee be appointed by the decree of this court to take charge of said trust fund and to see that said trust is enforced.

That said Walsh and said Bishop and their successors in the priestly office over said church be ordered and decreed to permit any person to attend the public worship of God whenever religious services are held in said church, and to occupy such seats as are not sold or let or to occupy the aisles as they choose, and not to charge any price of admission to such public religious services so long as a single subscriber to said trust fund who has subscribed for the purpose aforesaid objects, and to order and decree otherwise in reference to the premises as may be just and right to protect all parties.

And whereas the plffs. cannot now attend said church without strife and contention and without being ejected therefrom, may it please your Honors to grant to the plffs. a writ of injunction to be directed to the said Walsh and the said Bacon and their successors in the priestly office aforesaid, and their aiders, servants and abettors, strictly enjoining them from preventing the plffs. and their families, and all persons desirous of attending the public worship of God according to the Catholic faith, when held in said church, from attending said services freely and without money or price, and enjoining them from debasing the altar of said church from the worship of God to a place where the price of admission is charged, and curses, disease and death are asked for to fall upon members of the church and people, who in worldly matters decline to follow just as the priest and Bishop direct, and for such other relief as may be just.

Who Shall Decide?

Portions of what was once the democratic party are showing symptoms of throwing off the stupor which settled upon that organization last Autumn, consequent on the crushing defeat which closed the presidential campaign. There is still life enough left in the concern to get up local civil wars and project new departures, and to quarrel over the much-mooted question as to whether or no the democratic party is dead. Leading men and papers of that party, which in the Greeley campaign fairly bubbled over with love for their old-time political enemies and their principles, and a determination to inaugurate "the era of good feeling," now scoff at "liberal republicanism" and the "atrocious blunders" and "disgraceful and humiliating compromises" of that campaign; "straight-out" democratic papers insist that the party deliberately committed suicide by taking poison at Baltimore, but other sheets, which supported Mr. Greeley, see only a gross blunder in the Baltimore auction sale; and the New York World, which falteringly supported the Baltimore nominee after the convention, but so savagely opposed him before it as to more than nullify its subsequent effort in his favor, asserts that the democratic party is not dead at all, but only helpless. A movement has been started in the West to get up a "liberal democratic" party, but the name is unpromising for the success of the projected organization; the name "democratic," once a tower of strength, is now so intimately associated with memories of aggression and wrong, of disloyalty, rebellion, mob rule and the Tammany ring, that the party bearing it is too heavily handicapped to win any political race; but as the name is about all there is left of the old democratic party, it is not wonderful those anti-progressives should so persistently cling to it. Yet if we should live to engage in another presidential contest, we do not expect to find ourselves opposing a democratic party, though as things now look we shall be in the republican ranks; for we do not see where the democracy can find ground to stand upon, to make a fight with anybody. They have tried all sorts of dodges to win a victory, and have failed in all; the Seymour-Blair campaign was fought on a red-hot rebel, secession, white-man's government, overturn-reconstruction-with-the-bayonet, repudiation platform, and it resulted in such a defeat that the leading fuglers did not dare repeat the experiment; the Greeley campaign was conducted on the theory that the laborer who entered the vineyard at the eleventh hour was entitled to all the wages, to the exclusion of the man who had worked all day,—that the democrats, having accepted republicanism, were better republicans than the men who had always upheld republican principles,—and the result was that they were beaten so badly as to make the Seymour defeat seem a victory by comparison. Such having been the results of open opposition to and of a pretended acquiescence in the principles of republicanism, we cannot see what new pretence the democracy can rake up which will give them a shadow of a chance of success. We do not expect to again vote against a democratic candidate for president; for before another presidential election we expect that the party which under Andrew Jackson was ultra-union, but which degenerated to secession and rebellion under James Buchanan, will find out that it is dead and will get decently into the grave it dug for itself so many years ago.

Prohibition in Boston.

The State Police Commissioners of Massachusetts have discharged a number of the State constables, and propose to fill their places with men whose eyesight is so strong that the glitter of the persuasive greenback will not make them purblind. The commissioners boldly announce their intention to enforce the prohibitory liquor law against the wealthy dealers and the petty grog-shops alike,—to include the Parker House bar, the lager-beer saloon of Hans Van Ripper and the little whiskey-mill of Mrs. O'Flaherty, all in the same black-list. We have heard very similar statements before, from other managers of Massachusetts State police affairs; but the wealthy dealers have always pursued the even tenor of their way with but slight interruption, while O'Flaherty and Van Ripper have been remorselessly squelched, for a little time. Whether the professions of energetic impartiality put forth by the new commissioners will amount to anything more than common, remains to be seen. Some of our exchanges ridicule the pretence of enforcing a law "which two-thirds of the people do not believe in," asserting that it cannot be done; but if a majority of the people are opposed to a law, we do not see how it is kept on the statute books, and if the liquor interest is wealthy and influential enough to nullify the laws, we should consider that fact a strong argument in favor of the people curtailing that power if possible, and not of submitting to it. That the existing liquor laws of this State and Massachusetts are sufficient to break up the traffic has been proved, for the bars in this city were pretty effectually closed during the first day of the firemen's muster, and but little money was spent for liquor in Boston during the week following the great fire; and in both cases only the law as it now stands was invoked. And no more powerful temperance lecture has been delivered for many days than was contained in a sentence of the report of the legislative committee appointed to examine into the circumstances connected with the Boston fire, to the effect that "owing to the bars and drinking saloons having been closed, there was a remarkable freedom from crime in the city immediately after the fire; though the temptations to its commission were unusual." Whether or not the temperance cause is assisted more by prohibitory law than it would be by a stringent license law, we will not now consider; many anti-liquor-law papers assert that prohibitory legislation retards the progress of true temperance, and that there is more rum-drinking in States where such laws are the most strictly enforced than there was before the laws were passed; but such statements are so manifestly absurd as to carry their own refutation with them,—for if prohibitory laws injured temperance and increased the consumption of liquors, the liquor dealers would unanimously support prohibitory laws, which is not done. But whether the enforcement of the prohibitory laws will help the temperance cause or the liquor traffic, so long as they are laws they should be enforced; and if the Massachusetts State police can manage to defeat the wealthy and almost ommipotent liquor interest of Boston, the results of their action will be narrowly watched by thousands not directly interested in the matter. State News.

The business interests of Epping have received a great impetus since it was decided that the town would be the junction of the Rochester and Nashua and the Concord and Portsmouth railroads. Two additional shoe factories are erecting, three firms are engaged in the manufacture of bricks, while private residences are being built and new streets contemplated.

The barn and outbuildings belonging to Joseph N. Nutter, at Barnstead, were entirely destroyed by fire, Thursday afternoon, with about sixty tons of hay, one horse, three carriages, two sleighs and farming utensils. Loss about $3000; insured for $1200. The fire was caused through carelessness of workmen.

The legislature at its recent session having incorporated the bar association of the State of New Hampshire, the first meeting of the association has been called to meet on the first day of the adjourned law term of the supreme court at Concord on the 14th instant, for the purpose of organization. The call is signed by Judge Perley, Senator Wadleigh and other eminent legal gentlemen.

The legislature has passed a law requiring clerks of courts, registers of probate, etc., and other persons holding public offices and having custody of public records, to keep their offices open during such hours of each week as shall be prescribed by the Supreme Court in each case. This will perhaps remove a cause of complaint which in some counties has become chronic, where a journey is frequently made to the county seat, and the office in which persons have business is found closed, and no means of seeing the record has been at hand.

The legislature has fixed the capacity of milk-pans, when milk is sold by wholesale, at eight quarts, and required the cans to be sealed annually; and enacted that railroad trains on tracks crossing at grade shall stop 500 feet from the intersection of railroads. Engineers are under a penalty of $100 and the corporation $20 for a violation of this law. There has also been passed an act to provide for the storage, sale and inspection of petroleum and its products. A resolution was also passed authorizing the governor to appoint a surveyor who shall have power, in conjunction with the surveyor appointed on the part of the State of Maine to ascertain, survey and mark the dividing line between New Hampshire and Maine, whenever it may be necessary, and appropriating $250 to defray the expenses of such survey on the part of New Hampshire.

Readables.

A young German eloped with his uncle's wife at New York, and being found out, the pair made an attempt to commit suicide, in which the man succeeded.

Workmen are engaged in widening the Newburyport tunnel on the Eastern Railroad, preparatory to extending the double track from Ipswich to Newburyport, which will be over an easy and inexpensive grade.

A disastrous conflagration occurred at Portland, Oregon, Saturday, destroying twenty-three blocks and causing a loss estimated at $1,500,000. One man was killed and several injured. Incendiaries attempted to spread the flames and one was detected and locked up.

The contract to build and equip the New York and Eastern Railroad has been actually signed, and Messrs. Balch of New Hampshire and Stanton of New York are the contractors. These gentlemen are already building the road from Portchester to New York, and are said to be men of ample means to carry out what they undertake. The road is to be double track, steel rails, with iron bridges, and is to be liberally supplied with rolling stock and all necessary equipments. In several places along the route the right of way has been freely offered. The work of building the road will begin at once.

Washington Correspondence.

Vandalizing the City—The Territorial Government—The Debt Statement—Political Prospects, etc.

WASHINGTON, August 1, 1873.

Washington has a fine Park on the East front of the capitol, which has cost somewhere in the vicinity of a million of dollars. The old part of it is covered with magnificent trees, the growth of three-quarters of a century, and the land of the Park is a trifle higher than the land where the Capitol building stands. There is an architect in charge at the Capitol who has got the notion into his head that the Capitol would look better and higher at First street east if he should cut that street down about eight feet, and dig down the whole Park to a slope that would run the water from the Capital out to First Street. To do it will cost half a million dollars and destroy all the trees; and all that is to be done so the Capitol will look a little higher to a man standing on First street with no trees to obstruct his vision. You will hardly believe it, but Congress has voted to have it done, and they are at the vandal work. Probably not half a dozen members know they have voted such an outrageous piece of vandalism and waste.

Much has been written about city improvements and debts. It has cost about $100 to each man, woman and child in the District for improvement in the streets, and it has rolled up a big debt, but what of that? Uncle Sam will pay it when it becomes due. He has exclusive jurisdiction here, and can't put in a plea against payment, that he passed over his control to irresponsible parties.

The government debt statement for July was better than I predicted, but that for August shows but a small reduction. I should have been correct had not bills due in June been left over for payment in July. With gold at 118, imports diminished and exports increased, when gold fell to 115, imports increased and $1,500,000 of gold was shipped at once to pay balances. Gold went up to 116, and a fraction and immediately imports diminished and exports increased. When gold is kept unnaturally low by "bearing" the market, it works disaster. The way to specie payments is to let gold take its natural price compared with the currency, and then as our exports increase compared with imports, the price would fall naturally, and without injury to any one.

It is amusing to see the efforts of the democratic party to increase its vitality; perhaps it would be proper to say to resurrect itself, on a free trade platform in a country which has to raise $160,000,000 a year by tariff duties. The instinct of every working man is against putting himself in competition with those not half as well paid as himself. And he will be slow to allow the advantage of cheaper capital against him, in addition. The republican party is not to be beaten as long as it keeps up with the spirit of the age. When it ceases to support the interests of the people, and to represent the progressive elements, it will crumble and give way to something better, but not to the democratic party.

The weather maps show that you are having quite as warm weather as we have here. EXE.

General Butler's Pleasure Yacht.

[Springfield Republican.]

After a checkered career the historic yacht America turns up at Bay View as the pleasure boat of General Butler. She was originally the crack craft of the New York Yacht Squadron, and won for America, at the Cowes regatta in 1851, the first prize in a match open to all nations, fairly distancing all competitors. This success was attributed, in part, to her excellent model and well-fitting sails, and her success resulted in a change in several respects in English yacht building and fitting. During the war she became a noted blockade runner, but on one of her cruises she was so closely pressed that she was run in shore and scuttled. She was raised and repaired by the Government, and since the war has been employed for experimental practice in connection with the United States naval school at Annapolis. She was recently offered for sale and purchased by General Butler, and arrived at Gloucester last week, where she is being fitted up for Summer service.

Business Notices.

☞ Little is left to be wished for by those who quarter at the American House, Boston, by the late improvements. Everything is fresh and nice, and the unequaled management of the past is continued.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. ts28

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

The Testimony of Travelers.

All travelers who have tested the value of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as an acclimating preparation and as a means of avoiding the painful and dangerous disorders of the bowels and the liver, which accrue from a change of water or unwholesome vapors, refer to it with enthusiasm as an unequalled preventive medicine. Whenever the atmospheric conditions are unfavorable to health and the water impure, this powerful tonic is indispensable alike to the settler and the transient sojourner. There was a time when raw brandy or whiskey was almost universally used to qualify the waters of the western rivers, and the wells, &c., of the low-lying districts of the south. Now, the liquors of commerce have been generally discarded by travelers and residents in these regions, and Hostetter's Bitters substituted in their stead. At this season when the sun is near the zenith and the heat oppressive, two or three doses of the Bitters will have a salutary effect on the appetite, the digestion and the spirits.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. ts6

Local Matters.

Lost in the Fog.

The certainty attending navigation in a fog—the certainty that you will not get where you wish—was illustrated on Saturday evening, when one of our city fathers, with his family, took passage in a row-boat from the grounded steamer Appledore to the shore, the boatman, who is pretty well acquainted with the river, engaging to land them at the navy yard floating stage at the foot of Daniel street; but after patiently poking about in the fog until they thought the land had all left, the boat was safely beached below Peirce's Island!

Another boat, containing two men, after a long pull for the Portsmouth side of the river was found to be near a rocky point, past which the tide was rapidly rushing; but neither of the boatmen could locate it, one of them only venturing an opinion on the subject and he suggesting that they had reached Dover Point or Gerrishe's Island, or somewhere in that vicinity. Having landed, the men were not long in finding out that they had struck Seavey's Island at the narrows; and they then pulled up along shore as far as the navy yard floating dock, and again took a departure for this side, —the second attempt resulting in the boat being beached near the wharf on Badger's Island. From there they pulled straight across, as they thought, and were astonished at narrowly missing a collision with the stone beacon; and at last landed near the old iron foundry at the South end, disgusted with boat work in a fog.

The steamer Major, after receiving the Appledore's passengers, worked her way slowly and cautiously across the river, guided by the melodious notes of a tin horn which some sensible man caused to be blown on the end of a wharf; and the skipper, quietly disregarding the advice of the numerous volunteer pilots, and working his boat in his own fashion, dropped nicely in alongside the wharf and laid there for the night.

Laconics.

Rear Admiral Bailey is at the Rockingham House.

Grand hop at the Farragut House, Friday evening.

Secretary Robeson visited the Navy Yard, Monday, and received the usual salute.

Judge Clark held a brief session of the U. S. Circuit Court in this city on Friday.

The orders detaching Chief Engineer Williamson from this station have been revoked.

The Major did not pull the Appledore out of the mud on Sunday morning. So we are informed.

Dr. Norton has been appointed City Physician and chairman of Board of Health. Office on market street over C. E. Myers' Clothing Store.

The Universalist society will have their annual picnic on Wednesday, at Newington. Conveyances will leave the Universalist church at 7 o'clock.

The bodies of Jennie Burnham and Minnie Moulton were found a mile from where they were drowned, on Sunday. One was found at Fox Point and one in Greenland Bay. Both were floating.

S. P. Young, Esq., of York, has a spear of corn now 8 feet, 3 1-2 inches in height, the kernel of which was planted June 3d, making a growth of one foot and a half inch per week. Who beats that?

At nine o'clock, Saturday evening, Mr. Caleb Bryant of York, aged 39 years, retired in his usual good health. At twenty minutes past nine he was dead. The cause of such a sudden death is unknown, and no satisfactory opinion has been arrived at by medical men.

Mrs. Mary Cutts, of Gerrish's Island, Kittery, who was severely injured by being thrown from a wagon about two weeks since, died on Sunday from the effects of the accident. She leaves five children. Mrs. Cutts' husband died very suddenly of heart disease some two years or more ago.

Strange Surgical Discovery.

A German journal gives the following account of the brutality of a woman to a young girl and the important discovery of a method of performing painless surgical operations to which it led:—

A wicked step-mother placed a net upon the head of her eleven-year old step-daughter, and compelled her to wear it for two weeks continually. On the 5th of March, 1872, the girl, suffering from headache, was brought to the clinic of Professor Dr. Dittel. Dr. Dittel made a careful examination of the head and found a deep furrow ploughed into the head, at the bottom of which was the elastic cord of the net, covered with little carbuncles. The poor girl died of inflammation upon the cerebral membrane, and upon dissection it was found that not only the pericranium but also even the skull bones were cut through as if with a sharp saw. This proved what power is exerted by elastic cords, and since then Dr. Dittel has employed them for cutting off tissues and removing swellings and tumors. By this gentle means, the patient does not lose a drop of blood, suffers scarcely any pain, has no fever, and soon gets well. This method seems to have a great future in store for it. Many patients are so horrified by the sight of the dreadful knife that the date of their recovery is postponed by it, even if they do not faint away.

—Sixteen years ago a North Carolina father, who knew the virtues of the rod, thrashed his big boy and sent him out to hoe corn. The first seen of him since was last week, when he returned from California with $50,000 as the result of his westward ho-ing.

— "Sea cider" is a new Cape May tipple, invented for the palates of the male seasiders.

Popular Ignorance of a Common Matter.

[Philadelphia Ledger.]

There is probably no business so generally participated in as insurance, in which so little is practically known. Many think if they insure a specified property for $5,000, and the property is partially or wholly destroyed, that they recover the full insurance, regardless of the fact that the property destroyed may not be of half the value. This is a common error, though of course confined to the less informed in such matters. Others, carrying a stock varying in value from $25,000 to $30,000, and an insurance for the smaller sum, suppose that, in case of damage by fire, involving a loss of the greater amount, they can recover the entire face of their policies, when, in truth, the insurance companies are liable only pro rata for the loss sustained. If the insurance policies in solvent companies are drawn in plain terms for $25,000, they will cover any loss on stock valued at $30,000 to which they apply up to their full specification. But if they contain what is known as "the average clause," which reads, "It is understood and agreed that claims under this policy shall only be for such proportion of the entire loss as the amount of this insurance bears to the whole value of the property insured," then in case of loss on any part of $30,000 stock, with $25,000 insurance, the companies will pay five-sixths of the loss and the insured will bear the other sixth himself. These are pieces of information well worth holding in remembrance, especially by the less informed on the subject.

—A blockhead on a newspaper defines editorials to be "shavings from the well-worn mind, to be blown for one brief minute before the wind of public opinion, and then forgotten for eternity."

REMOVAL.

STOVES, TIN WARE, IRON AND STEEL.

URIAH BLAISDELL

Informs his friends and the public that he has removed to

No. 55 Market Street,

(late the well-known Iron Store of Mr. John P. Lyman,) a few doors north of his old stand, and next beyond the Union Store, where he offers his usual stock of

STOVES OF ALL KINDS,
TIN, JAPANNED & GLASS WARE,
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,
FARM & GARDEN TOOLS, &c.

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the

"NEW AMERICAN,"

improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a good stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am sorting up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

Iron, Steel, Bolts, Nuts, Axles and Boxes, Horse-Shoe Forms, Horse-Shoe Nails, &c., &c.,

Will find it for their interest to give me a call.

N. B.—Seward's PATENT AXLE CLIPS AND YOKES, the latest and best articles in this line, in good supply.

PLEASE PAY UP!

The large expense I have incurred in the above change places me much in need of money; therefore all indebted to me will greatly oblige by promptly settling, and especially those owing long-standing accounts.

Leprosy in Honolulu.

A correspondent of the Alta-California, writing from Honolulu under date of July 8, says: "The search by the authorities for cases of leprosy still continues with unabated vigor, and we are sorry to say with the the most brilliant success. Great and serious attention has been called to the widespread nature of this loathsome disease, and everybody feels much alarmed at the revelations made, except the natives themselves. It does not seem possible to arouse them to a sense of the danger of infection consequent upon intimate connection with those afflicted with the disease, and in this apathy or stolid indifference lies the great obstacle to the extermination of the plague. There is a certain stage of the disease that has no outward sign save an increased brilliance of the eyes and complexion, and a luxuriant fullness of form, that in a female patient is very alarming and dangerous. It is not to be wondered at, then, that there are cases known where one woman has had taken away from her three husbands, sent to Molokai as confirmed lepers. Eventually the woman will go there herself, but not until she is a mass of ulceration, a living lump of corruption. Everything is being done that the law in the case will admit of, but the next legislature will be called upon to pass still more stringent laws in the matter.

The Greatest Gas Well in the World.

[Scientific American.]

The Newton gas well, six miles from Titusville, Pa., discovered last year, still continues to pour forth its gaseous treasures at the rate of three millions of cubic feet of gas every day of twenty-four hours. The gas issues under a pressure of from twenty to thirty pounds per square inch, and for the most part goes to waste. Pipes have been laid to Titusvile, and some two hundred and fifty dwelling houses, shops, &c., are now supplied with gas for illumination and fuel. For heating purposes it is admirable, but for illumination it requires to be passed through naptha, as it is deficient in carbon.

This well may be regarded as one of the wonders of the world. If the bowels of the earth in its vicinity were transparent, and the owners could satisfy themselves of the continuity of the gas flow, we presume that pipes would be laid from the well to several of our large cities, such as Pittsburg, Cleveland and Buffalo, distant from 130 to 150 miles.

—The couplet about "when she will she will," was aptly illustrated on a train from Westfield to Springfield recently. A haughty and elaborately dressed young lady entered the train followed by a wee bit of a dog, when the following animated dialogue ensued: Brakeman, with dignified air—"No dogs allowed on the train, Miss!" Nice young lady—"Dogs are allowed on the train." Brakeman, more forcibly—"Against orders to allow dogs in this car!" Injured Miss to her dog—"Come, pet, come; you shall ride with me; it's nothing to him." Brakeman, chuckling aside, yet with a still more peremptory manner—"Your dorg mustn't go in, ma'am!" Injured Miss, at last fully aroused—"Mind your business, sir! That dog is going to ride in this car!" Suffice it to say, the dog rode in that car.

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		17,000
10 CASH GIFTS	$10,000 each	100,000
30 CASH GIFTS	5,000 each	150,000
50 CASH GIFTS	1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS	500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	200 each	30,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 21 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unqualified success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

WISTAR'S BALSAM

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER Strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Medical Science.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and impaired action of the excretive organs, and is manifested in Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN so not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are passive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.

Camp-Meeting Fun.

Perhaps the most famous revivalist and camp-meeting man of his day was Rev. Jedediah Burchard. He used to make things lively for sinners. It was his custom to go round among the audience and select a sinner here and there to operate on. He prided himself on his determination, and used to boast that he could select the worst cases at a glance. On one occasion, during a camp-meeting in Vermont, while the brethren were singing a rousing hymn, the reverend gentleman started on a tour of inspection. It so happened that Prof. Benedict, of the Vermont University, Burlington, had paid a visit to the camp out of curiosity, having heard much of Jedediah's eccentricities. The Professor was a small man, with a copious head of hair and a very long, sharp, red nose.

He was accoutomed in all seasons to carry a large, old-fashioned cloak with a high collar. Finding, in reaching the camp, that Jedediah was presiding over a penitent bench, the professor made his way to the spot. The meeting was in full blast, and a score of sinners were on their knees in front of the platform groaning, weeping, and ejaculating. As a strong, sharp wind was blowing, the professor drew his cloak around him with the collar well up about his face, only his very shock head of hair and peculiarly red nose being visible. The professor took a seat on the outskirts of the crowd, and prepared to enjoy the scene.

Presently Jedediah announced that the Lord had notified him that many notorious sinners were in the meeting, and that he was going round to pick them out. Then he started out on his tour. Soon he drew near the professor and the minister's eye at once rested upon him. Jedediah walked toward him, exclaiming, "Lord save souls!" and after eyeing the professor for a moment, put his hand on his shoulder and asked:

"Are you a saved man? Are you a professor?"

"Yes, sir," answered Mr. Benedict. "I'm Professor of Mathematics and Civil Engineering in the Vermont University."

"Do you know that you are a sinner, going to hell as fast as you can go?" said Jedediah.

"I don't believe a word of it," the professor said, in an angry tone; "and I should like to see it demonstrated on the blackboard."

Reverend Jedediah was taken aback, but soon recovered himself and said:

"You must come to the penitent's seat, and I will demonstrate it to you."

"I will do nothing of the sort," retorted the angry professor.

"Then the Lord commissions me to carry you thus," said Jedediah, and he whipped up the little man under his arm, cloak and all.

"And the Lord commissions me to jab you thus," the professor exclaimed, drawing a huge shawl-pin, which fastened his cloak, and running it into the fleshiest part of Jedediah's person.

Jedediah uttered a shriek of agony, and dropping the professor, clapped his hand to the punctured part and hobbled off to the rear of the platform.

On another occasion Reverend Jedediah was holding a campmeeting in Western New York. In the adjoining village resided a gigantic blacksmith. He was not a notoriously wicked man, but he had never been known to go to church, or to attend any religious meeting. When, therefore, the blacksmith appeared at the revival meeting, the people who knew him were surprised, and the deacon of the church in the village gave to Mr. Burchard a hint as to the character of the man. The blacksmith had taken a seat in front of the platform, and, after the service, Mr. Burchard approached him, and shook hands, saying:

"Friend, I'm glad to see you. I hope you are interested."

"Thank'ee, sir," said the blacksmith "It's very interesting."

The next day the blacksmith was in his place again. Mr. Burchard, during the singing, went to him, and, taking his hand, said:

"Friend, I am delighted to see you. I hope you are thinking about your soul."

"Thank'ee, sir," the blacksmith said, casting down his eyes.

"I think we shall catch a soul there," Mr. Burchard said to the deacon, after he had left the blacksmith.

"I think so, too," was the answer.

Next day the blacksmith was once more in the same seat at the meeting. Mr. Burchard thought it was time to talk to him seriously.

"Friend," said he, taking the blacksmith's horny hand, "don't you think it's time to repent, and give your heart to the Lord?"

"Thank'ee, sir," said the blacksmith, "maybe it is."

"Now is the time," Mr. Burchard went on, "and now is the day of salvation. Life is short, and death is sure. Judgment is coming, and hell is close behind. The Lord have mercy on you?"

"Thank'ee, sir," said the blacksmith, meekly.

The next day was the last of the meeting, and when Mr. Burchard saw the blacksmith before him, he resolved to make a convert of him that night. Having started a rousing tune, Mr. Burchard moved toward the blacksmith.

"Have you made up your mind to serve the Lord?" Mr. Burchard asked.

The blacksmith looked to the floor. Mr. Burchard began to exhort him, and while he was doing so the hymn ceased, and all sat down, leaving the parson and the blacksmith alone standing.

"Oh, my friend," Mr. Burchard exclaimed, in a voice distinctly heard by all, putting his hand on the giant's shoulder, and shaking his frame, "oh, my friend, this may be the last time. Come to the bench; come to the bench. Lord, save this soul!"

The blacksmith did not move. Mr. Burchard, still with his hand on the man's shoulder, and shaking him in an excited manner, exclaimed: "This may be the last chance. If you don't repent now, you may be in hell before morning!"

The blacksmith slowly raised his enormous right fist, drew it back, and then said: "Ef ye don't take that hand o' yourn off my shoulder, ye'll be in hell in two minutes!"

Rev. John Newland Maffit, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, was a most successful revivalist and camp-meeting exhorter. He was known all through the Union, not only for his power as a preacher, but also alas! for his profligacy: for it is said that he ruined more women than he saved souls. He died, as every one knows, a wretched death. His sayings are to this day repeated through the Methodist connection, perhaps none more than his famous description of hell. "If," said he in a sermon, "you were to dig a hole in the ground, a thousand miles across, and fill it full of molten iron, and then were to take a lost soul out of hell and drop him into it, he would freeze to death!"

While holding an experience-meeting at a camp-meeting in New Jersey, an old woman arose, and pressing her hand on her stomach, began to groan.

"What is it, my sister?" asked Mr. Maffit from the rostrum. "What is it? Out with it!"

"Oh, sir," exclaimed the woman, "it's either religion or worms, I don't know which."

The congregation were on the point of bursting with laughter, but Maffit, with ready advantage of the expression, exclaimed, "Yes, it's a foretaste of the worm that dieth not." And then he preached a stirring soul-harrowing discourse on hell-fire.

On one occasion Mr. Maffit and a deacon visited the sisters' tent at at a camp-meeting in Connecticut.

"Hello, deacon," a sister exclaimed, "we didn't think to see you at the meetin'."

"You see," said Mr. Maffit, "the deacon came to save souls and to get a wife at the same time, thus killing two birds with one stone."

"Well," exclaimed one of the sisters, "he may save souls under them circumstances, but I don't think he'll get a wife."

Old Father Brayne, of Syracuse, was a very popular camp-meeting leader. He used to tell, in meeting, the following story: While conducting a camp-meeting in Western New York, a messenger arrived at the camp to inform him that the wife of the chief deacon had died that morning. Father Brayne delegated his powers to another and started home to comfort the bereaved widower. After a twenty-mile ride he reached the farm-house, where the deacon lived, about four in the afternoon.

On entering, he shook the widower by the hand and sat down in silence. By and by he began to condole with the bereaved man, and offered him all the consolation in his power.

"It's a very heavy grief you've got to bear," said the minister, "but you must bear up like a man."

"Yes," the deacon responded, "it's kind o' tough. Let's take a walk around."

Father Brayne, thinking that the widower felt ill and depressed, and that the fresh air would do him good, readily assented. The deacon led him to his barns and stables, and showed him over his farm. The parson appeared to take a great interest in everything, and rejoiced to think that he was helping to divert the deacon's mind from his terrible sorrow. After they had gone round the whole farm, the deacon said:

"Now, minister, ye see everything's in fine order. What would you advise me to do—bring my daughter and her husband here to manage the place, or go bucking about among the girls again for another wife?"

Love and Music.

She was a music teacher. He played the piano fairly well. They lived next door. It was one of those wooden cities so common in this country, where each house stands alone in its little garden. It was summer time and evening. All the windows were open, and from every side came scraps and bits of music from sundry pianos, voices and instruments. A flute wailed over the way, where the "engaged man" lived. A voice and piano duetted where the young married folks lived, and the young thing who was "paying attentions" to the First Baptist soprano was trying the bass of certain touching psalms. In the midst of it all, she, the music teacher, began a slumber song. Then the others paused to listen. When she stopped there was a little pause, and then he played a Rinder Lied. Silence all round. Then she indulged in a waltz. She felt better. Then he galloped, musically speaking. She did not seem to be in that mood, and she replied in "A song without words." It was touching. Then he played a bit of the Moonlight Sonata. She took, and replied with "Five o'clock in the morning." The flute fellow, the young couple and all the rest of the neighbors sat up in bed or in their chairs, held their breaths and listened. It was becoming interesting. Every note could be heard. The moonlight fell through the trees, and it was very calm and still. The firefly roamed through the garden, and the dorbugs boomed fitfully. Then he played "Come rest in this bosom," and some of them stuffed the sheets into their mouths to keep from laughing. Then there was a pause as if she did not know what to give next. Then she played "O Fair dove, O fond love," or music to that effect. There was a suspicion of laughter in the air, but the two heard it not. When she finished, he too paused a moment and then in a sweet and tender manner played "I would that my love." It was too much. Some one laughed. Then somebody else laughed. Some more laughed. A baby woke up and cried horribly, and comebody "shooed" it. The laughter filled the night with din. A certain window came down with a slam, and a piano was heard to shut with a bang. For all that, they were married within a month.

France Thirsting for Revenge.

Archibald Forbes, writing to the New York Herald on the recent review of the French troops at Longchamps, says:

On the whole, it seems to me that the omen may be drawn, from the aspect of the troops on Thursday's parade, that there is forked lightning in the thunder-cloud of France's hatred to Germany and her thirst for revenge. Aspirations for the revanche are not a mere brutum fulmen; that I think Gen. Manteufel must have owned to himself as he sat there incognito in plain clothes in a back row of the diplomatic tribune. The French mean to have another wrestle for the fall—that every one who knows the nation knows. But every one did not know what I think this review goes to show, that her military authorities are working assiduously for the end, that when the combatants shall grapple as grapple, they must, the issue will not be, by a long way, so nearly a foregone conclusion as most people have been content to assume it. If France can contain herself, and meanwhile work as she has worked in the past two years, the struggle will be a Titanic one. She has still an immensity to do; indeed, she has scarcely yet begun the work she has set herself. But in ten years' accordance with the dispositions of her new military law, she will be able to set in line over 300,000 men without calling out the reserves. With them her military strength will number 1,300,00 trained soldiers. The second act, just passed, providing for organization as the first does for recruiting, enacts that wholesome decentralization, the lack of which contributed as much as anything to France's downfall in the late war. With eighteen well organized and equipped army corps, each with its own staff and its own province to recruit from, with a powerful artillery and arms of precision second to none in the world, and with a strength in fighting men of a million and a quarter, who shall say that France shall not have made good her title to re-enter the ranks of the great military powers? And all this that I write of she has deliberately set herself to accomplish in ten years.

The South for Manufacturing.

Mr. John B. Palmer, a manufacturer of cotton yarns at the Saluda cotton mills in South Carolina, has published a paper in which he undertakes to show that he can manufacture yarns cheaper than can be done either in Lowell, Mass., or at Manchester, England. He gives a detailed exhibit of his own costs—item by item, including labor, repairs, and materials consumed—and shows that he can make a pound o. No. 20 yarn, estimating the cotton at 20 cents, paying freight and insurance to New York, for 29.8 cents. The lowest estimates he has seen of the cost of manufacturing yarns at Lowell, including the same items except freight and insurance (the same cotton there costing 22.5 cents), is 34.8 cents. That is, he at the South can make five cents a pound more than the Lowell manufacturer can upon the same article, when both sell in the North. Mr. Palmer further compared notes with a manufacturer of cotton yarns in Manchester, who gave him the cost of manufacturing the same grade of goods there. The result of the Manchester manufacturer's calculation is that a pound of No. 20 yarn (the cotton there costing 24 cents) costs him 35.25 cents. Now if we add freight and insurance from New York to England to the cost of the southern manufacturer—that is, add 1.5 cents to 29.8, we find that Mr. Palmer can deliver his South Carolina yarn in Liverpool 4.67 cents a pound cheaper than the English manufacturer can offer his own there.

A Snake with A Head on Its Tail.

Several weeks ago, while Sylvester Bowman, of Clairborne county, was cutting the sprouts off his oats, he saw what he took to be a large black snake, and struck at it with his scythe, when, to his astonishment, the snake struck at him with its tail, which it lifted several feet from the earth. Bowman, thereupon, again struck at the snake, but the vicious reptile, not at all intimidated, returned the blow and pressed Bowman so closely that it was with difficulty that he got away. Returning to the attack, Bowman by means of large rocks, at last succeeded in crippling the snake and fastening it to the earth. With the assistance of Jordan F. Longmire it was now examined, and to their astonishment was found to be over six feet long, and to have a horn at the end of its tail a little over an inch and a quarter long, shaped like a rooster's spur. But what was still more astonishing, it had two eyes in its tail, which, excepting the horn, was shaped exactly like the head, but was not so large. Indeed, to see the tail one would have thought that it was the head, and that the horn was its tongue. The horn was very sharp. The snake seemed very fierce at its tail-end, and endeavored to strike everything that came near its tail. Various experiments were made to ascertain whether it could see with the eyes in his tail, and it was demonstrated beyond a doubt that it could. These eyes had lids, which opened and shut and gleamed with anger. Indeed, the tail-head seemed far more fierce than the other head. Although the snake tapered somewhat from its main head, still the tail-head was as thick as a large thumb and just as blunt.

Bowman carried the snake home while disabled, but it continued to strike at every intruder with its horn, and, the family becoming alarmed, Mr. Bowman shot it dead.

Messrs. Bowman and Longmire vouch for the truthfulness of these statements, and so will many other citizens of the neighborhood.

Rebuilding The Column Vendome.

The London Builder gives the first definite information as to the progress and difficulties of the work of reconstructing the Column Vendome at Paris. It appears that the masonry work is only just begun. There are more difficulties in the way of this part of the undertaking than most uninitiated outsiders imagine. It is imagined that the foundation and pedestal base can be built like an ordinary wall. This is impossible. From motives of economy it is intended to utilize the stone-work of the old column—at least all those portions of it which have not been excessively attenuated or deformed by the demolition. Two-thirds of the materials can be so used; the remainder of the work will have to be executed as at the first erection of the column. But even among the two thirds judged serviceable there are only two steps absolutely intact. The others require to be repaired, and will be replaced or rejoined by means of cement in the Place Vendome itself. But this reparation is not the most difficult operation. The interior of the column is formed by huge square blocks of stone pierced at intervals with large holes, into which are soldered cramp-irons that hook the outer bronze plates by a species of horseshoe eyelet attached to the inmost surface of the plates in the foundry. The problem to be solved now is one that requires the nicest precision. The completed column will be surmounted, not by the little barelegged Cæsar placed there in 1864-65, but the old statue, relegated to Courjevoie, of the Emperor in gray redingote and jack boots, with the arms crossed in the legendary attitude. The statue is considerably injured but not irreparably. The new column in not likely to be completed before the end of the year.

Porter's Failure.

A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune relates that General Fitz-John Porter, at the close of his military career, was sent out to Colorado to develope a mine. He at once began the construction of a stamp-mill, on which he expended $100,000, exhausting his funds. He then went east for more money and never returned, and the building remained useless until last fall, when the officers of the Colorado Central Railroad, looking around for a site for a depot, found that the best one was occupied by this mill. They accordingly gave the word to their master mechanic, and he gathered together his workmen, knocked a hole in either end of the building, arched each of them over, put in some partitions, and converted the structure, long known as "Fitz-John Porter's Folly," into a convenient and commodious depot.

Outside Talk.

The Boston papers say that the newspapers of other States have a great deal of advice to give the republicans of Massachusetts and ask if the latter have not always shown that they are competent to manage their own affairs.

When we call to mind the many articles published in the Boston papers during our last Senatorial canvas, advising the New Hampshire republicans to re-elect Senator Patterson, this seems the most cool and comfortable piece of assurance we have seen since the advent of dog days.

Five foolish young Belgians lately laid a wager that they would remain awake seven days. They kept up all manner of exciting exercises and drank large quantities of coffee, and one of them won the bet, though with a loss of twenty-five pounds in weight. Two fell asleep after one hundred and thirty hours, one was seized with inflammation of the lungs and gave in to save his life, and the other fell asleep on horseback and then fell off and broke his arm. Folly could scarcely have carried them further.

—The Danbury News man never knew a man to be elected to an office of trust who carried horse-chestnuts in his pocket as a preventive of rheumatism.

A Critical Season.

Toward the close of the season the long-continued heat begins to tell upon body and mind. Both become exhausted, and we feel instinctively that nature, after fighting a gallant battle with a debilitating temperature, is drooping at last, and requires to be stimulated and reinforced. This, therefore, is a period of the year when a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is especially useful. The immediate effect of this unequalled vegetable restorative is to strengthen the stomach, sharpen the appetite, tone and regulate the bowels, and give steadiness and vigor to the nerves. As a preventive of the endemic and epidemic complaints that prevail at this season, and as a remedy for indigestion, liver disturbances, nervous debility, constipation, languor, headache, and all irregularities of the bowels, this pure and wholesome vegetable tonic and alterative has no equal among medicines.

Tolling Church Bells at Funerals.

Messrs. Editors: Can any good reason be brought forward why the custom of tolling a church bell at funerals should not be discontinued in Portsmouth as it is in nearly all the larger cities? The effect is depressing to the sick. I would like to see so unnecessary and so doleful an observance done away with. It would be well if in lieu of it the fashion came in for gentlemen to uncover the head as a funeral passes in the street. Everything of course should be quiet and unobtrusive at such times, and there is really no good purpose in making a whole neighborhood mournful over every private funeral. I merely make this suggestion and hope it will set somebody to thinking so that good will come of it.

LEANDER.

The Compound Rail.

[Dover Democrat.]

Michael R. Perkins, formerly of this city, but now of Portsmouth, arrived in town this morning and exhibited to us a model of the patent compound rail which is to be used for Railroad purposes. It is a most ingenious and useful invention, inasmuch as it is intended to and doubtless will lessen the cost fully one-third as compared with the rail in present use throughout the country. This saving, should the invention come into general use, will be enormous, for many millions are yearly expended in this country with the present high protective tariff which the iron men of Pennsylvania and elsewhere have pressed upon the people through Congress. The patent rail is quite simple in its construction and called "compound" from the fact that while being in form precisely like the one now in use, it is divided horizontally in two parts, and very nicely adjusted to each other with an elastic cushion between the two the entire length of the rail. The top is of steel and when worn out is easily replaced without disturbing in the least the sleepers, body of the rail or its fastenings. We learn the Eaatern and Old Colony Roads, always foremost in enterprise promising safety, ease and convenience to their patrons as well as increased dividends to their stockholders, are soon to adopt them to a sufficient extent to give them a thorough test, and should they prove satisfactory their entire length of line will be laid with the "Patent Compound Rail."

The Little Bay Accident.

[Dover Democrat.]

The annual excursion of those employed in B. F. Haley's tailoring establishment came off last Wednesday, the 30th ult. The programme marked out consisted of a trip down the river to "Island Alcove," a clam chowder, &c. This beautiful spot is situated between Great and Little Bays, owned by J. M. R. Adams, six miles from Newmarket, and is a favorite resort for pleasure parties during the summer months. Chartering conveyance, which consisted of William Chapman's packet, the "Eagle," Capt. Charles A. French, at about 6.30 A. M., we proceeded down the river, and after a charming ride of an hour and a half, found ourselves at the grove on the island. Here a social time commenced at once, swings, a variety of games, etc., and all went merrily.

A short time before noon, some one proposed a sail down river while dinner was being prepared, and very soon the packet with a party on board consisting of nineteen persons, passed down by the grove, going in the direction of "Fox Point," and were soon far away. In the meantime, the chowder was being prepared and made ready, awaiting their return. They had been down river some distance, and we saw them coming back not long after. Soon I saw the boat standing in the wind, the sail flapping. A lapse of half a minute and it fills, and down on her side she goes. We expect to see her rise, but she was capsized, and we see the party tumble into the water. They are gone a moment, soon the heads come up and they are struggling. On the mast and side of the boat they clamber. Soon she sinks, however, and all there is left to bear them up are the oars, top of cabin and hatch.

The little dory tied at the stern has gone too, carrying with it the unconscious body of Millie Moulton, put there by Owen Printy of Dover. Hattie Chapman grasps Flora Grant by the hair, just as she sinks for the last time. Jerry Young is swimming to save his own life and that of Miss Sherburne, who clings to him. Milton McLaughlin is seen clinging to the form of his mother, whom he succeeded in keeping on the surface till aid arrived, although much exhausted. Capt. French catches Esther Wheeler, just going down, and puts her on one of the hatches. The rest are clinging to the oars, top of cabin, &c. Here comes to the rescue Capt. Frank Savage, Edwin Boody and Albert Ellison, who were in a small boat just below them, and were the first to arrive. Thomas B. Robinson, assisted by Mr. John Chapman of Cambridge, and G. W. Durgin of Newmarket, were next at the scene, and in about twenty minutes the survivors were all safely landed on shore. T. W. Willey, Jr., who had a sister on the packet, started in an old leaky boat with Mr. Wm. Roach, and had not gone far when he found the boat rapidly filling with water. "Can you swim?" says he to Roach. "No," was the reply. "I will put you on shore, then." He did so, and then went on, arriving but little behind Robinson, his boat being half full of water. This conduct on the part of Mr. Willey will long be remembered by those who witnessed the sad catastrophe. Had it not been for the timely arrival of Mr. Robinson's boat, many more lives must certainly have been lost, as one of the two boats, the largest at that, could not hold more than seven or eight persons, and that containg Mr. Willey being the other. The scene on the shore during this time beggars all description. The first shriek came from the mother. "O! my child, my child is lost!" and as soon as the alarm became general throughout the grove, the cries and groans were truly heart-rending, each running to and fro, wringing hands, and making anxious inquiries.

Immediately after landing, the survivors were taken to the house of Mr. Adams on the island, where all was done that could be to make them comfortable, and a courier was sent for aid. Dr. Greene soon arrived and attended to the wants of those taken from the water, some of whom were in a very low state. The names of those on board the packet were Chas. A. French, (Capt.,) Jerry Young, Chas. Reynolds, Milton McLaughlin, Owen Printy, Chas. Chapman, Arthur Adams, and a little son of Mr. Adams, Carrie Tilton, Mrs. Brackett, Mrs. McLaughlin, Miss Sherburne, Hattie Chapman, Flora Grant, Mercie Willey, Esther Wheeler, Millie Moulton, Mary A. Garland and Jennie Burnham, the last three named being lost.

When we say that a sudden flaw of wind, and the shifting of some barrels of fish used for ballast were the probable cause of the accident, we give the only conclusion that can be arrived at. The sheet or sail was found to be drawn aft as usual and the rope fastened to a cleat. When the squall struck, doubtless the skipper had not time to loose the sail before she went over.

A fine and powerful tug-boat was launched at Norfolk, Va., last week, to be employed in that harbor by Messrs. B. and J. Baker. Capt. E. M. Stoddard, one of the owners, broke the customary bottle of wine over her bows, and named her the "Bel Virginia," after his little daughter. The Norfolk Journal says the successful launch was witnessed by a large assembly of ladies and gentlemen. The young lady thus honored is a grand-daughter of Portsmouth.

We are informed that Mr. Melville Stimson of Kittery has been recently appointed by Commodore Howell as Captain of the Watch at the Navy Yard, vice Theodore Keen removed. Mr. Keen has been employed in the capacity of a watchman at the Yard for upwards of a score of years, and has been a faithful and efficient servant of the government. His successor, Mr. Stimson, is a young man selected by the Commandant from among a long list of applicants, and promoted from a watchman to a Captain of the force, on account of the confidence reported in him by Commodore Howell. The position is an important one, and the necessity of having an honest, wide awake and trustworthy individual to fill it is fully appreciated by the officers of the Yard.

STOVES, TIN WARE, IRON AND STEEL.

URIAH BLAISDELL

Informs his friends and the public that he has removed to

No. 55 Market Street,

(late the well-known Iron Store of Mr. John P. Lyman,) a few doors north of his old stand, and next beyond the Union Store, where he offers his usual stock of

STOVES OF ALL KINDS,
TIN, JAPANNED & GLASS WARE,
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,
FARM & GARDEN TOOLS, &C.

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the

"NEW AMERICAN,"

improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a good stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am selling up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

Iron, Steel, Bolts, Nuts, Axles and Boxes,
Horse-Shoe Forms, Horse-Shoe Nails, &c., &c.,

Will find it for their interest to give me a call.

N. B.—Seward's PATENT AXLE CLIPS AND YOKES, the latest and best articles in this line, in good supply.

PLEASE PAY UP!

The large expense I have incurred in the above change places me much in need of money; therefore all indebted to me will greatly oblige by promptly settling, and especially those owing long-standing accounts.

Virginia Conservatives Alarmed.

[Washington Republican.]

The New York organ of the Democracy, the World, comes to the assistance of the Virginia Conservatives with the declaration that "it is difficult to find any reason why the radicals should make another attempt upon Virginia." If the World had only examined the political situation in that State, or if it had only the honesty to tell what it knows, it would find no difficulty whatever in accounting for what it calls the "radical attempt" upon that State. In the first place, it gave Gen. Grant and the republican platform a majority of nearly two thousand last fall, which was a gain of nearly thirty-five thousand. In the next place the last legislature, by its short-sighted policy, its palpable neglect of all the vital interests of the State, disgusted everybody who has the true interests and material progress of the Old Dominion at heart. Virginia Conservatism means only the aggrandisement of a lot of selfish politicians, who are seeking only how they can advance their own interests to the neglect of the public welfare. On the other hand the "Radical" platform and purpose means the development of the great industrial resources of the State, the building of the James River canal, the proper support and extension of the school system, a free railroad law, the placing of Virginia in the position among her sister States to which her geographical position justly entitles her. This is why the radicals make another attempt upon Virginia, and these, among others, are the reasons why the attempt will be successful.

Dwelling in a Hogshead.

[Biddeford Times.]

About ten years ago a travelling tinker named Kenniston, well known throughout this and Piscataquis counties, mysteriously disappeared, and fears were entertained than he had been murdered. But in a short time he was discovered to be living the life of a hermit on a lonely island in Moosehead Lake. His dwelling house betting the fortunes of a retired tinker, being in summer a large dry goods box. In winter Diogenes-like he cosconced himself in a hogshead. He lived on the frugal fare which dame Nature provides in that region and appeared happy. His clothing bill during the ten years of his voluntary exile did not amount to five dollars. His original garments were in a few years entirely gone and replaced by patches innumerable and of all colors. His entire store of money earned by trapping he carried in a patch on his trowsers. His social visits were limited to occasional journeys across the lake to another island on which also lived a hermit of like habits of life. This summer Kenniston's friends sought him out, and yielding to their persuasions, he has abandoned his summer and winter "residences" and retired to civilized life.

— A woman fell overboard in Boston harbor, and the very last thing she did before she went under the first time was to raise her arms wildly above the flood and—adjust her back hair.

—Social snuff-dipping among the female mill operatives in Lawrence has become popular of late.

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT,		$250,000

325 CASH GIFTS	100 each,	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each,	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 221 Tickets for $5,000; 133 Whole Tickets for $3,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $4,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unprecedented success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the promptness of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from the office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessary for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent, and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more skilled, competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

SINGER SEWING MACHINE

STILL TRIUMPHANT.

Sold in 1872, 219,758.

These Celebrated Machines are Sold by

J. J. FESSENDEN,

NO. 12 VAUGHAN STREET,

The only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity.

Purchasers will find it to their advantage to call and examine this machine that has stood the test for years and has constantly outstripped all its competitors, before buying the machines which are crowded into their houses. By so doing they can understand the reason why the Singer Co. have sold over

1,000,000 MACHINES.

OF

WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &C.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

The Great South American Blood Purifier,

JURUBEBA

IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Modern Medicine.

IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.

WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dishiness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.

IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive; producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a prostrate position to bilious derangement.

Dr. WELLS'

EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA

is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.

IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Mexico.

["Broadway's" Cin. Commercial Letter.]

So far as is publicly known, the Mexican government has made no complaint of the raid of Colonel Mackenzie, or of any of our recent operations beyond the Rio Grande. It is reported, in fact, that the Mexican government is quite willing that our troops should pursue into Mexican soil, and there punish or take captive such Mexican marauders or Indo-Mexican bands as may have disturbed the peace of the people on this side of the Rio Grande. If this be so, it certainly shows that the Mexican government is in the hands of men possessed of unusual discretion. But of course, though it be so, anybody will admit that it would be possible for Belknap to go too far, even with Mexico. It cannot be utterly impossible for him to get up a muss, if he be bent on getting one up. For instance, Mackenzie, in one or other of his raids, might happen to shoot or capture some Mexican officials, or to come into collision with a handful of Mexican troops. In case of an accident of this kind, we would be very sure of having a muss. Or, perhaps, on the occasion of an incursion into Mexican territory a big lot of Mexican troopers might fall upon a small lot of our troopers, chase them to this side of the line, burn the town to which they fled, and play havoc all round. Then of course, the "American heart would be fired," and before we fairly knew what we were about, the country would be precipitated into war and Belknap would be happy.

We would "lick" the Mexicans, no doubt. After several years of fighting we would conquer the people. After they were conquered we would annex their country. After it was annexed we could govern it. In governing it, and in preserving the peace and enforcing the laws all over it, from the Rio Grande to Yucatan, from Tampico to Mazatlan, we would have a lovely time. We would keep on enlarging our army until it was big enough for its work. We would toil away patiently at the never-ending business of suppressing rebellion.

We would labor at it even as Sisyphus labored at his task. In this way the young West Point officers would be able to win the laurels to which Belknap alluded when he addressed them. We would make the Mexicans themselves pay the cost of their subjugation; and if it were found, after all, that this could not be done, it would be easy for our own government to issue as many bonds and greenbacks as might be necessary. We could stand heavier taxation than we now enjoy, and if it got so heavy as to break our back, we could adopt Butler's theory of repudiation. I presume Belknap could easily explain all these matters.

There are between eight and nine millions of people in Mexico. Of these, about one-sixth are pure European blood; the great majority, or about seven millions, are of the original Indian stock, and the mixed Indian and European breed. Perhaps we could quickly induce this great mass of Indians and mongrels to organize and carry on Republican institutions according to the methods which have been successful in this country. But perhaps we would have more difficulty about it than some annexationists suppose. We would, of course, govern them by force, as Great Britain governs her East Indian subjects; but this would not be Republicanism; and I apprehend that if we created a despotic system there, we would not long maintain a free system anywhere. With four millions of blacks who care little for Republicanism, and a growing influx of Mongolians who care less for it, I apprehend that it would be hard for us to stand seven millions of Indians and mongrels who care nothing for it.

I close, therefore, by repeating the remark with which I opened, that it would be well for the country to keep an eye on Belknap, and be prepared to put a check on this ambitious scheme which he is privately nursing with the idea that it will mature into Mexican annexation.

Tea Culture in Florida.

[Jacksonville Union.]

It may not be generally known, but the fact is none the less patent, that the genuine tea plant is growing profusely all over the suburbs of the city, and presents quite a thriving appearance wherever it is found. We are informed by a mechanic of this city, an old resident at that, that he uses no other tea in his family. He plucks and dries what he requires for his own use, and says it is equal to any black tea offered for sale at the stores. If some shrewd New Englander were only here he would soon make a regular business of preparing a tea crop, and he would make money by the operation.

The leaves can be dried in the shade, and will curl of themselves naturally in the process of drying. The crop would cost nothing but the trouble of plucking it, and a wagon-load could be picked in an hour without half trying.

If some of that kind of people who are always grumbling about having nothing to do would try the experiment of preparing this tea for market, we think they would find it to be a lucrative business, and one, too, that they would pursue with avidity as soon as they found how readily they could dispose of all they had manufactured.

Daily Chronicle.

THURSDAY, AUGUST 7, 1873.

Wagner's Chance.

The question, "Will Wagner be executed, if the courts adversely decide the question of jurisdiction raised by his counsel?" is asked by many: and in view of the number of murderers, condemned but not executed now in the Maine State prison, many newspapers and individuals are inclined to answer the conundrum in the negative. It is said there are ten unhung scoundrels in that prison, over whose heads the noose is dangling, they having been sentenced to death and that sentence having been neither carried out nor commuted. We are informed that but seven condemned murderers have a home in that institution, a misprint in the prison report accounting for the larger number stated. The following, which seems to bear on this subject, is extracted from Section 8 of Chapter 135 of the Revised Statutes of Maine, edition of 1871: "Upon receiving such record [of the trial and condemnation] and evidence, it shall be the duty of the governor and council carefully to review the whole case, and unless they think proper to pardon the convict, or commute his sentence, the governor shall, upon the expiration of one year after the expiration of one year after the day of the sentence, issue his warrant" for the execution of the convict. This, to the nonlegal mind, would seem to be plain enough,—to make it obligatory for, and not optional with, the governor to issue the death warrant of any male convict at the end of a year, or else to pardon him or commute his sentence.

Wagner has another charge of murder pending against him, beside the one on which he was convicted; and on his own showing he is a thief, for he boasted that he stole a trunkful of bonds at the time he was trying to escape after breaking out of jail. If the legal points raised by his counsel are thrown aside, it is more likely that the interesting criminal will swing for his offences than that he will escape punishment through a plain avoidance of duty on the part of the next governor of Maine.

A Sweet Place.

Cambridge, Mass., is enjoying the experience which the dwellers near the Creek in this city can well appreciate. A brook, or creek, called Miller's river, has become so pestilential from the refuse of a rendering establishment having long been drained into it, that silver ware in houses in its vicinity turns black in a few hours, and even watches in men's pockets are tarnished and discolored. The owners and employees of the rendering establishment have "resolved" that if there is anything offensive about Miller's river it is decidedly not in any way owing to the rendering establishment; but the Cambridgers who do not own or work in the pestilence-mill referred to had a public meeting, Monday night, to take measures to get rid of the horrible nuisance. If it takes Cambridge as long to get rid of this trouble as it has Portsmouth to abate the cess-pool nuisance, the cholera and typhoid fever will stand a pretty good show this Fall. New York is making a spasmodic attempt at cleaning up and holes and corners which for years have been sacred to rottenness and filth have been purified. If the cholera scares cities into making themselves moderately clean and decent, it is not an unmixed evil, by any means.

Readables.

Three men were burned to death in an oil-well house in Butler, Pa., on Saturday.

The total loss by the fire in Portland, Oregon, is now given $1,158,675, which is said to be comparatively greater than the great fires in Chicago and Boston. Rebuilding will begin at once, and aid will be asked of other cities.

A special to the Galveston News from San Jacinto gives an account of more Indian outrages along the frontier. At Fair City, Perias Bridge and Brady's Creek there is great excitement, and people are abandoning their homes and crops.

A fire-damp explosion occurred, Monday, in one of the Wilkesbarre coal mines in Pennsylvania, by which two men lost their lives and two others were injured. The accident was caused by the use of an open lamp.

Mr. L. A. Torrens of Bangor, the well known musician and director, has, it is reported, instituted a suit against Mr. Barry of Boston, for $10,000 damages, on account of certain testimony in relation to Mrs. Barry and Mr. Torrens, brought out in the late Barry divorce case.

The famous stallion Fearnaught is dead. He was 14 years old and valued at over $40,000.

Hon. John Lothrop Motley, ex-U. S. Minister to Vienna, has been stricken with apoplexy, depriving him of the use of one side of his body.

Catherine Moore of Baltimore informed the police at one of the stations, that a spirit had told her that exactly at 3 o'clock that night the negroes were going to rise and kill every white man in the city and take the women prisoners. She remained at the station all night, and the negroes of Baltimore were uncommonly drowsy that night.

On Friday morning, in Glen's Falls, Vt., James Morgan went out with a lantern to quiet some kicking horses in his stable. His wife became anxious and went out to find the stable in flames. The barn and contents, including horses, were completely destroyed. Mr. Morgan was found among the horses burned to a crisp. It is supposed that one of the horses kicked him, and the lantern exploded and enveloped him in flames. He was widely known among business men, especially those engaged in the lumber interests.

State News.

Professor Silas H. Pearl, Principal of the State normal school at Plymouth, died Monday.

W. J. A. Hayle, of Dover, was thrown from a carriage, recently, and had a leg broken.

Colonel John C. Moore, managing editor of the Concord Patriot, has resigned, and has become associated with the editorial staff of The People.

The Nashua Telegraph says that Thomas P. James, the reported mediumistic finisher of "Edwin Drood," was three years ago the foreman of the job printing department of that office. The editor says that from knowledge of James his conclusions in reference to the character of the "finish" are very different from those arrived at by the reporter of the Springfield Union. James, after leaving the Telegraph, was employed in the Globe office, until about two years ago, when the fact was developed that improper relations existed between him and a pretty operative in the Jackson Mills by the name of Hill, who had become an inmate of his family. An explosion followed and James suddenly left town, leaving behind him a bad record of mismanagement at the Globe printing office, and a social stain upon his character of the darkest kind.

Sitting upon a Man.

[New York Herald.]

The Persian creditor having once determined to get his money, calls for it early in the morning and cannot be persuaded to go away till it is paid. He brings his carpet with him and sits down in his debtor's bedroom, eating, drinking, sleeping and smoking there till he is bought off. Some years ago, not many, a Persian had, or fancied that he had, a claim on the English Foreign Office. So one day he travelled away from Teheran, and, after many strange adventures, arrived in London, taking his carpet with him, and fully prepared to sit upon the Foreign Office, which he supposed to be a person, till he was satisfied. Lord Palmerston was Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs at that time, and took the thing good humoredly; but Mr. Hammond, the Under Secretary of State, who is a sharp-tempered gentleman, and was already high up in office, was for calling a policeman.

The practice of "sitting upon a man," as it is called, universally prevails in Persia, and it is not easy to deal with it. Still it may be dealt with, and Sir John McNeill, a shrewd old Scotch diplomatist, who was once accredited to to the Persian Court, contrived to get rid of a Persian who had tried to sit upon him by a rather clever device.

At the New Year, which is kept as a great festival in Persia, religious mendicants go about, not so much asking for alms as insisting upon a fixed sum. They generally tax a foreign ambassador rather highly, and one of them, a dervis, demanded an extravagant sum from Sir John McNeill. The Scotch diplomatist offered to compromise with him for any reasonable amount, but his offer was refused, and as he would not give more, the dervis proceeded to sit upon him. He established himself in Sir John's garden, just before his study windows, and every now and then during the day and whenever he woke up at night this dervis set up a horrible hullabaloo, and blew a cracked trumpet as if the judgment day was come. Sir John, who did not like to have his rest disturbed in this way, determined to put a stop to the dervis' tricks, and eject him by force; but he was solemnly warned by the Persian authorities that it would be dangerous to lay hands upon the dervis. "Get rid of him if you can," said they, laughing, as they are wont to do at a minister's perplexity, "but do not touch him."

"Very well," said Sir John, dryly; and he sent for a bricklayer.

"Build me a wall round that howling beggar in my garden," said Sir John to the bricklayer, "and then roof it in!" The dervis looked on composedly while the wall rose slowly around him, and made more noise than ever; but when he perceived that they really meant to shut him up in a tomb alive he jumped over the lowest part of the wall and rushed away like a maniac. Sir John was probably the only European who ever got the better of a dervis.

Mansards To Be Abolished.

The Boston Fire Underwriters' Union has determined to follow the course lately taken by the New York board. At its meeting it was decided that after the 1st of January next the rate of insurance on wooden Mansard roofs should be raised from fifteen cents on one hundred dollars to one dollar on the same amount. This of course, includes not only the building but the insurance on all the merchandize contained in it; and it will thus be seen that it will be difficult for the owner of such a warehouse to let it to any merchants for ordinary business purposes. The addition of an expense of one per cent. on all the goods coming into a store would often take away any profit that might otherwise come from the sale of the same.

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

A Critical Season.

Toward the close of the season the long-continued heat begins to tell upon body and mind. Both become exhausted, and we feel instinctively that nature, after fighting a gallant battle with a debilitating temperature, is drooping at last, and requires to be stimulated and reinforced. This, therefore, is a period of the year when a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is especially useful. The immediate effect of this unequalled vegetable restorative is to strengthen the stomach, sharpen the appetite, tone and regulate the bowels, and give steadiness and vigor to the nerves. As a preventive of the endemic and epidemic complaints that prevail at this season, and as a remedy for indigestion, liver disturbances, nervous debility, constipation, languor, headache, and all irregularities of the bowels, this pure and wholesome vegetable tonic and alterative has no equal among medicines.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a good stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am selling up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

Iron, Steel, Bolts, Nuts, Axles and Boxes, Horse-Shoe Forms, Horse-Shoe Nails, &c., &c.,

Will find it for their interest to give me a call.

N. B.—Seward's PATENT AXLE CLIPS AND YOKES, the latest and best articles in this line, in good supply.

PLEASE PAY UP!

The large expense I have incurred in the above change places me much in need of money; therefore all indebted to me will greatly oblige by promptly settling, and especially those owing long-standing accounts.

"The Place of Drunkards."

Messrs. Editors: Upon learning that the name of "Haymarket Square" had been changed to "Manhattan Square," our first emotions were of approval, for we were then in a glow of enthusiasm imparted by the Return of the Sons, and we really thought that rather a graceful act had been performed in recognition of our energetic New York Boys, whom all admit contributed much toward the success of that joyous occasion.

Notwithstanding some regrets we had at the annihilation of an old name, yet, as we happen to live in a little alley contiguous to the somewhat contracted semi-triangular patch of highway in question, we flattered ourselves, that in future, when we gave our address, as "No — Rue de St. Mark, next to Manhattan Square," it would sound quite impressive and throw a sort of metropolitan glamor over us—as it were.

Gratified by those and such like coleur de rose suggestions, a few evenings ago we established ourselves under one of the graceful elms adorning this location, and posed for meditation. We had almost arrived at that mental altitude where regrets for what is sometimes impulsively called "vandalism" vanish before the palpable enterprize and good taste of "us pushing fellows, who did the business," when we were rudely interrupted by a diminutive but diabolically energetic boy, hustling a crowd of belated cows over this consecrated spot. By a perverse turn of the imagination, the sight of these bovines had begun to conjure up visions of pitch-forks, balance-scales, and other appurtenances of the hay traffic, when a ferocious looking brindle making for us with startling precision, rendered a rapid change of base imperative. We stood not upon the order of our getting, but got at once, and in shinning around the gnarled and venerable roots of the aforesaid graceful elms; we stumbled over the reclining form of a stalwart yeoman, which form jerked itself to a sitting posture and delivered itself as follows—"Ishay, fren', 's right, I shpose, now this is Ma-a-anhattan Squ-hic Butinmyhumbleopinion"

You may break, y-o-u-m-hic shatter the vase if you will, The shent of the ro-o-o-ses 'll hic-rouflitistill."

Our first impulse was to brain that man on the spot, but as we were minus weapons, and not quite sure about that cow, the next tree was irresistibly attractive to us. To be sure it was difficult to become Manhattanized, utterly, under such circumstances, but a little later, after the cows had all got home, and the small boys were in swimming (and let us hope drowning) the great superiority of imported over home productions asserted themselves. We had no difficulty in deciding that our new title had one great advantage over the old name, viz: that of being pretty, and this led us to the inevitable and orthodox reflections on the graceful and musical "Indian tongue." Then by a natural and gradually descending scale, our thoughts reverted to the early discoveries, when, Oh horrors! as Rip Van Winkle awoke from his long sleep on the Catskill Mountains after being interviewed by Hendrick Hudson and his phantom crew of Dutchmen, so out of the tangled web of boyhood's school-book lore, the almost forgotten recollections of that boozy old adventurer and his disgraceful spree on the 11th of Sept., 1609, extricated themselves with unwelcome facility. This made us unhappy by dashing all our fond dreams of chronological dignity.

Then as the hours of night came on apace, and the persistently graceful elms and rather tallish houses threw their dark shadows over and deepened the gloom about that particular spot of aboriginal morass (the bottom of which no stone crusher has yet sounded) and as the active Thomas cat, the flippant cricket, and musical toad mingled their voices with the et-ceteras too numerous to mention; of rural sounds, we were transported in fancy back to the howling wilderness of New Amsterdam. A strange phantasmagoria now seized us. Church, houses and flagstaff disappeared, and in their stead were giant trees, draped with luxuriant vines. Reptiles crawled amid the decayed boughs and foliage of former centuries, and just where we had seen the reservoir a momentago, stood a wigwam. Suddenly the panther skin door of the wigwam was thrust aside and forth stepped a powerful Algonquin brave in fierce war paint, and attired in a white badge and a marshal's baton. A cold, clammy perspiration, covered our person, our knees quaked, and we shrank to our smallest dimensions, but sniffing the air with wide distended nostrils, this sweet child of nature quickly discovered and came for us with a frightful war-whoop. In the excitement of the moment, we offered to vote our barbarian member an increase of back-pay, but our implacable brave gave the familiar "ugh" of the red-skin, and shrieked "re-e-e-ven-g-e!"

Winking his left eye and presenting us with a certificate of membership from the Boston Young Men's Christian Association, he took a roll of parchment from under his arm—on the back of which was written, "Illustrated History of the United States"—and with a sardonic smile on his noble visage, and in a hollow voice proceeded to read as follows:

"Hudson landed with his crew, and ordered a jug of rum to be brought. After drinking himself, he offered it to the chiefs. The first smelled the liquor, but passed it on; so did the next; and it went untasted till it reached the last of the party. Unwilling to offend the Manitou, he drank it off. His wondering companions beheld him reel and fall to the earth; but when they saw that he recovered without injury, and heard him describe his sensations, they all desired to feel the same excitement. Drinking of the fire-water, they also became intoxicated; and in this state Hudson left them. The spot was afterwards called by the Indians, Manhattan, or the place of drunkards."

Human powers could endure no more. Tearing ourselves from the spot, we rushed home a sadder but a wiser man. Like the impartial historian we leave the moral to later and maturer judgment on the part of all concerned. VET.

Burglary.

At half past eleven o'clock, Tuesday night, Mr. Alexander H. Ladd and son discovered a burglar in the store of Woodbury Seavey & Co., on Market street, and armed themselves with guns and stood watch until the police arrived, having sent for them by a man who was passing. As the thief came out of the building, the volunteer detectives fired at him, but he escaped. The watchmen were on the way to the scene of action on hearing the report of the guns. Search for the rascal was kept up until morning but no trace of him was found. He entered the store by breaking two panes of glass, but didn't secure more than a hundred cents.

S. P. C. A.

At the meeting of this society on Monday evening, several cases of alleged cruelty were reported, and measures were taken for the immediate investigation of the same. In addition to these cases, numerous and apparently well founded complaints were brought forward, from respectable and reliable sources outside the association, regarding the reckless and in many instances cruel driving of horses attached to delivery-wagons sent out from the stores in this city. In some cases the owners of these teams may be classed among the most humane of our citizens, and are undoubtedly ignorant of the abuse of dumb brutes by their employes; and that the employers may not suffer from the extreme carelessness or inhumanity of their drivers, it was requested that their attention should be promptly and publicly called to these facts, in order that they may warn those employed by them of the legal consequences of their illegal proceedings. One instance of cruelty mentioned was of a boy using the heavy hitching-weight, intended for securing the horse, as a slung-shot to beat him with; and so numerous and aggravated were the other cases mentioned that it almost seems as if there must be a spirit of rivalry among some of these boys as to which can be guilty of the grossest inhumanity to the horses they drive. When they once become assured that the Society means business, that persons abusing animals are liable to summary arrest without warrant, the same as any other disturbers of the public peace, and to a maximum punishment of $250 fine and one year in jail, they may become less openly cruel if not more humane. We give below the first section of the act of the legislature concerning cruelty to animals, approved July 1, 1870:

Section 1. Whoever overdrives, overloads, drives when overloaded, overworks, tortures, torments, deprives of necessary sustenance, cruelly beats, mutilates or cruelly kills, or causes or procures to be so overdriven, overloaded, driven when overloaded, overworked, tortured, tormented, deprived of necessary sustenance, cruelly beaten, mutilated or cruelly killed, any animal, and whoever, having the charge and custody of any animal, either as owner or otherwise, inflicts unnecessary cruelty upon the same, or unnecessarily fails to provide the same with proper food, drink, shelter or protection from the weather, shall for every such offence be punished by imprisonment in jail not exceeding one year, or by fine not exceeding two hundred and fifty dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

Unfavorable for the P. & D.

[Foster's Democrat.]

A look along the line of the P. & D. Railroad, and at the works at the Point and over the Piscataqua, makes it tolerably evident to our senses that no regular trains will be run over that road during the year 1873. We stated last Saturday, on authority which nobody would pretend to question, that the grading was nearly or quite all done, except at this end of the road. But it looks as though there was something further yet in that line to be attended to, not a great amount perhaps, but sufficient to employ quite a large force for some time to come. The bridge over the Piscataqua is a formidable structure so far, but the weather will be colder than it now is before it is completed. A truss of nearly two hundred feet in length has got to be constructed over the deepest water and rapid current. Nothing else will stand. The bridge will be all the better for this, but it interferes with the contract and makes a different structure from the original stipulations. The expense will be increased and the time of completion deferred on this account. Some forty to fifty men have been employed most of the time for the past six weeks on the bridge, and we are told that the force is to be increased. But it is safe to say that the last work of the road will be on that bridge. We were, however, surprised at the rapidity with which that work has been pushed for the last thirty or forty days. The contractors and master-workmen evidently understand their business.

The new ship "Grandee" will probably be launched on Saturday or Monday from the yard of Tobey & Littlefield.

The drink that twists your head off, causes "orbicular humidity" and yet does not inebriate—ginger ale.

A friend from Newmarket reports that the packet in which the picnic party were sailing, last week, at the time of the accident at Little Bay, was water-logged.

The NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE for this week is printed, and contains the tax list for 1873, twelve columns of local news, and twenty-seven columns of other news and reading matter.

Collector Young has reported eleven cases of violation of the Internal Revenue law in this district, and District Attorney Rolfe is engaged in prosecuting the same before the U. S. Commissioners.

Mr. Charles E. Morse, familiarly known as "Chip" Morse, a poor fellow, who had been sleeping in barns in the outskirts of Portsmouth for several days, was conveyed to the County Farm recently, and died in a day or two of delirium tremens.

This is the season when the good young man always offers to carry the sun umbrella of the first good-looking young lady friend whom he meets, and walks along under its shelter, gazed at enviously by all the other men whom he meets, while his fair companion trips gracefully in the outside edge of the shade, and is uncomfortable but happy.

—The destructive season of unripe fruit is upon us, when the green apple slays its thousands. Medical science and ordinary observation put it beyond doubt that a boy might better dine on fire-crackers than green apples, and that if he can manage to go in swimming soon after eating a peck or so, as he generally makes out to do, he has a dead sure thing on cholera morbus.

—A neat reply was that given by a stuttering man when telling a story to some of his friends. "Speak it plainly, man," said one. "I ca-ca-can't," he answered, "bu-bu-but I wa-wa-want you to understand that if m-my tongue stutters, m-m-my mind don't stutter."

Portsmouth Chronicle.

A gentle youth and fair maiden of Texas have outdone all other tender pairs in their manner of getting married. They eloped together from school, and duly walked off with a license, rushed post-haste to a minister on Red River, and desired him to perform the fatal ceremony. This the heartless man refused to do, his reason being that neither the lady nor gentleman was yet of age, and the law might not like it. Despair was about to overwhelm the couple, when they were struck by an idea. There were no boats to be had, but cottonwood logs were abundant. They bestowed themselves carefully on one of these, previously mooring it to the bank with a long rope, and then they drifted far enough into the stream to be considered out of Texas, the minister gracefully climbing a stump at the water's edge and pronouncing the solemn sentences of the ceremony.

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert
FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE
PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and leave on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		17,000
10 CASH GIFTS $10,000 each		100,000
30 CASH GIFTS	5,000 each	150,000
50 CASH GIFTS	1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS	500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being deducted, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unprecedented success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States, also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they will be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

SINGER SEWING MACHINE
STILL TRIUMPHANT.

Sold in 1872, 219,758.

These Celebrated Machines are Sold by

J. J. FESSENDEN,
NO. 12 VAUGHAN STREET,

The only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity.

Purchasers will find it to their advantage to call and examine this machine that has stood the best for years and has constantly outstripped all its competitors, before buying the machines which are crowded into their houses. By so doing they can understand the reason why the Singer Co. have sold over

1,000,000 MACHINES.

OF
WILD CHERRY!
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR
CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION
CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

PREPARED BY

SETH W. FOWLE & SONS,

NEVER

NEGLECT A COUGH. Nothing is more certain to lay the foundation for future evil consequence.

WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS

are a sure cure for all diseases of the Respiratory Organs, Sore Throat, Colds, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, Dryness of the Throat, Catarrh, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Bronchial Tubes, and all Diseases of the Lungs.

In cases of sudden cold, however taken, these TABLETS should be promptly and freely used. They equalize the circulation of the blood, mitigate the severity of the attack and will, in a very short time, restore the functions to the affected organs.

WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS are put up only in BLUE BOXES. Take no substitutes. If they can't be found at your druggist's, SEND AT ONCE TO THE PROPRIETOR, and they will be forwarded them by return mail.

Readables.

The Boston Belting Works were burned on the 6th. Loss $100,000.

Gen. Kemper, the candidate of the railroad ring, has been nominated for Governor of Virginia by the Democrats.

Governor Dix has commuted the sentence of David Murphy, convicted of the murder of David Barry and sentenced to be hanged on Friday next, to imprisonment for life.

Gen. Butler has captured the Massachusetts labor reformers. At their recent convention they made no nomination for governor, but enthusiastically passed a resolution declaring that if he should be a candidate they would support him.

Japan correspondence states that a serious outbreak took place at Fukuoka, in the province of Tsikusen, on the 21st of June. Ten thousand men, armed with bamboo spears, assisted by Damio retainers, attacked the government castle at Fukuoka. They readily effected an entrance, set fire to the building and destroyed all the official books and papers. Six officers were killed, and four are said to have died by their own hands. Three officers only escaped, and fled to Laga, 6 miles from Nagasaki. The telegraph line, completed from Nagasaki to Tsikusen, has been utterly destroyed. The houses of all the inhabitants of Hakata, who refused to join the insurgents, were burned on the 21st of June. But little blood has been shed so far. The rich merchants and native barks are plundered of all money that can be found.

State News.

Rev. S. S. Morrill of Henniker has left the ministry on account of ill health.

James Heffron and Jim Hardy, two notorious reprobates confined in the county jail at Dover, fiercely assaulted the jailor on Thursday, and escaped to the woods.

The condition of John P. Hale is now more hopeful than at any other time since his recent misfortune. The fractured parts of the hip bone seem to be slowly uniting, and there appears no reason why he may not fully rally from the prostration in which the accident left him, though of course he will remain practically a cripple.

Gen. Butler Defends the Salary Grab.

The Charlestown Chronicle, Gen. Butler's paper, has an abstract of a seven column letter, addressed by Gen. Butler to one of his constituents,—possibly the same one to whom he sent the three cent stamp,—in defence of the salary grab. We are glad that the Gen. has found it necessary to attempt to defend the bill, for although the defence is weak, it is better than to attempt to pass the matter off as a joke by sending around three cent stamps. We give the abstact entire:

It opens with a defence of the increase of the pay of the President, whose salary was raised from $25,000 to $50,000 by the bill. He shows that President Washington's salary was more than five times greater in its purchasing power than President Grant's; and that, taking into account the difference in wealth, population and prices, Grant's salary would be $275,000 in round numbers, if in proportion to that of Washington. He next shows that the salaries of the Cabinet officers, supreme judges and members of Congress would be treble their present amount, and that Congressmen should have higher rather than lower salaries than the judges, as their expenses are necessarily greater. He then proceeds to show that the salary bill does not so much increase as equalize the salaries of members of Congress. It abolishes mileage, and thus reduces the pay of some members quite fifty per cent., while it raises that of others a like amount. It also abolishes all allowances in the shape of stationery and newspapers, as well as franking, so that, instead of it being true that every Congressman voted himself five thousand dollars additional pay, there has not been, in reality, more than one thousand dollars a year added, if so much. Considering that the services of an efficient agent of a manufacturing establishment of any considerable capital cannot be had for less than seventy-five hundred dollars a year—while our railroads pay twenty-five thousand for their presidents—the General cannot see how this increase can be deemed too large by any right-minded man.

After an elaborate examination of the contract theory, the General shows that it is entirely groundless; that the action of Congress was in strict accordance with the Constitution and with precedent; and that the requirement of the newspapers, that no man shall ever vote to raise his own pay, would simply have rendered an increase of pay impossible, from the beginning of the government down to the present day. He then states of his personal knowledge, that among the most zealous lobbyists for the back pay bill were certain special correspondents of leading newspapers, who have since denounced it; although they themselves, as clerks of the committees, received an increase of fifteen per cent., going back to March, 1870.

At this point he makes a keen thrust at Minister Washburn, who has lately published letter in which he stated that the people did not elect members of Congress to go to Washington to support three or four mistresses, or to "buck the tiger." After speaking sarcastically of the Minister, the General adds that he has not observed any objection on Washburn's part to the appropriation of fifty thousand dollars, passed in 1871, for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the Minister to France in 1870, although that appropriation was retroactive. He adds that he thinks with this increase and "bucking at the tiger" it is perhaps a little easier to support a family in Paris on $17,500, gold, than to do the same in Washington on $7500, currency.

In this last salary bill, the back pay feature of which the newspapers so much denounce, the pay of these very newspaper correspondents, clerks of the House, was raised fifteen per cent., going back to March, 1870, and every newspaper—and there was a large number who had clerks on committees—took back pay for two years, rolling it as a sweet morsel under their tongues, and then sat down and wrote virtuous articles denouncing the back pay grab.

Let me state further, what is within my personal knowledge, that these very clerks were upon the floor of the House, when the bill giving them back pay was under consideration, lobbying furiously, and exhibiting most nervous fears lest it should fail. And although, by their calumnies and slanders, these newspapers have frightened a few men, who, I believe, mistake cowardice for conscience—against their better judgment, for some of them voted and spoke for the increase of salary—into sending back their increased salary into the treasury, yet, if any newspaper man has sent any part of his back pay into the treasury, he has not made himself visible to the naked eye.

In other parts of his letter he shows that almost without exception, every public man who has returned his back salary, or who has raised an outcry about it, has himself, in years past, voted for and accepted back pay. He especially indicates Senator Wilson, the Washburn family, Daniel Webster, Charles Sumner, N. P. Banks, A. H. Rice, John F. Farnsworth, and Henry J. Raymond of the N. Y. Times. He shows that Banks and Rice both voted in 1866 for an increase of pay at the rate of 67 per cent., with mileages and other allowances—made retroactive for the whole of that Congress—that is, they voted for back pay for six months, so that for that time the salary of each member was doubled. He also shows that, at the same time, John B. Alley, Oakes Ames, Baldwin of Worcester, Dawes of the Ninth district, Hooper of the Fourth, and Governor Washburn, did not vote at all, but dodged the question, and if any one of those Representatives who thus sneaked had thus voted in the negative, the bill would have been defeated. He says that from the beginning of the government to the coming hour, every State Legislature and every Congress which has increased the salary of its members, has made that increase back to the beginning of their services; that every executive officer, every judge on the bench in Massachusetts, when his salary was increased, has always taken back pay; that the soldiers petitioned Congress to give them increased pay and bounty, and that Congress gave it, although in so doing they voted them back pay; that the mechanics in the government employ, before the eight hour law was put in operation, by the President's proclamation, petitioned Congress to have increased back pay; and, therefore, if the members of the present Congress are back pay grabbers, thieves and robbers, so also have been all the illustrious statesmen of the past, from Washington to Grant, who accepted increased pay, as well as the purest of the judiciary, the most beloved of the executives, the bravest of the soldiers, and the workingmen.

Brown's Wooden Wedding.

It is financially out of pocket sometimes to be popular, as will be seen by the following from the Boston Traveller:

Brown, a young insurance friend of ours, who lives in Cambridge, had the fifth anniversary of his wedding occur about a week ago, and his friends determined to celebrate his wooden wedding by a surprise party. Brown came in yesterday and told us how they succeeded. They commenced by sending a servant round with a team to take Brown and his wife out to ride at about seven. Then they began to come with presents and materials for supper. There was a little party of five came first, all laden—hands full. They all got nicely inside the garden gate, which shuts with a spring, when Brown's big mastiff, who is always left unchained in his master's absence, came round the corner and surprised them. One woman stepped on her dress, and in her fall so demoralized a fragile black walnut book case she carried that it was afterwards done up in a bundle and presented as kindling wood. Another fellow got safely out of the yard all but part of his pants, while old Smithers, who weighs two hundred and twenty pounds, plunged wildly with the eight gallon pail of ice-cream he carried, through Brown's glass hot house in the corner of the yard, and surprised some $30 worth of exotics. Finally they fixed things up and got into the house, and as it was about time for Brown's return, they commenced laying the supper table. They got down a tea set of rare china that a friend of Brown's in the trade had loaned him a week before, and broke two pieces, so that Brown has since been obliged to mortgage his hen-house and buy the set; and the comments of Mrs. Brown when she saw the condition of the carpet were sarcastic in the extreme. Finally, as a crowning touch, they tried to hang out Chinese lanterns with the letters "welcome" on them, on the porch over the front door. They succeeded in hanging two lanterns, and when they had saved the house from the fiery fiend there wasn't enough porch left to pay for the trouble of trying to hang out any more. Then they sat down and waited for Brown and his wife to come home. We draw the veil over the scene that followed their return. Some scenes are too joyous to be described in cold, cold words.

—The S. F. T. P. O. C. T. A. in Boston have fined two men $30 and costs for pouring turpentine down a cat's throat. Their excuse was simply a joke. The proper punishment would have been after the principle of our homeopathic brethren, "like cures like."

Mr. Sumner Going Home.

[Baltimore Gazette.]

Like Goldsmith's traveller, Senator Sumner, in his migration to Massachusetts, is, if not "remote" certainly Unfriended, melancholy, slow.

It is really a sad spectacle, at which, with all our faith in even this world's justice, we cannot bring ourselves to rejoice. Mr. Sumner clings to Washington and shrinks from contact with his New England neighbors in a way that shows that whatever may be the condition of the flesh, the spirit is very weak. Every one else—even those who have taken the increased pay and might be supposed to wish to avoid reputable associations—hastens away from the malarious heats of the capital, and rejoices to be among neighbors and constituents. Not so this lonely man. There was a time—not many hundred back—when Mr. Sumner, if not the master, was the idol of his party, and on certain topics the guide of the mind of Massachusetts. For him, and at his bidding, Webster and Winthrop were sacrificed, as Choate would have been had he lived. In the fanatical glare, which he and his confederates got up, the feeble ray of Everett paled away. The three men who formed the first successful coalition in Massachusetts were Charles Sumner, Henry Wilson and George P. Boutwell, and of the three the only actual survivor is the last. He has managed to ride the winning horse all the time, while the poor Vice President finds the bauble of his present office sorry consolation for incurable disease, and possibly a weakened intellect. As matters now are, we can perfectly understand why Mr. Sumner is reluctant to go home. No welcome waits him. He walks Beacon street or State street relatively unnoticed. He looks at the bronze monstrosities in front of the State house, and knows that were he to die to-morrow, no monument would be raised to him. Harvard has no academic honors for him, as it had for his bitterest enemy. Nay, more, he encounters, near his homestead, vexations and disappointments that are more than negative. He finds the Chief Magistracy of his State almost in the clutch of a democrat whose tongue for years could find no more congenial theme than Charles Sumner and his friends. Actually, Massachusetts seems terror-stricken by effrontery, and Mr. Sumner is not the man—he well knows it—to either animate or rescue her. There is no heroism in his nature. There is nothing of the trumpet in his voice. He has been talking so long about the rights of the negroes that he cannot find a bold word to utter in behalf of his insulted white constituents—for insulted they are most grievously by what is now doing among them. And why—let us pause and ask—why is all this? Admitting, as we do, that Mr. Sumner was the great leader of New England fanaticism in its experimental days, why is it that now, when it is supremely triumphant, having gained all, and more than all it sought, the great champion is slighted and in discontent? There must be something more than the common ingratitude of republics in operation, and we should be glad if some one familiar with Massachusetts psychology would make a diagnosis, and tell us exactly what ails the patient. We should certainly fail if we were to attempt it. Of course there is in all this for us, and those who think as we do, vast consolation, and as we see one after another of the artificers of evil come, in some form, to grief, we note the sure march of justice.

A Joyful Surprise.

The Missouri Republican thus relates a remarkable case of preservation from destruction: A Mrs. King had a surprise at Shawneetown. It was an accident that Mrs. King happened to be at Shawneetown. She did not intend to go there, but the steamer Jennie Howell, on which she was travelling, struck a snag and sunk in the Ohio river. Several of the passengers were drowned, and among them some children. Mrs. King had a child on board, whom she mourned as lost, and was taken to Shawneetown without her babe. The Jennie Howell sunk in deep water, and the next morning men went to the vessel to recover the bodies of the lost. Soon after daylight a mattrass was discovered floating in the cabin, which was filled up with water nearly to the ceiling. Upon examination a child, a little boy, was discovered on the mattrass, sleeping as peacefully as if nothing unusual had happened. His bed was not very dry, for it had sunk a good deal from soaking, but still sustained its living freight. In due time the child was sent to Shawneetown, where the other passengers had been landed the evening before. Its coming made an excitement among the wrecked travellers, for more than one mother had lost children by the disaster. It was a touching scene when Mrs. King recognized the child as her boy, whom she had mourned as lost for nearly twenty-four hours. The preservation of Moses in the bulrushes was not so miraculous as the safety of Mrs. King's little boy. He had been tossing about on the waste of waters in the cabin all night, and was brought to his mother alive in the hour of her deepest woe.

The Puzzled Pressman.

"Way down South," when a paper was printed on a Ramage by an old darkey pressman named Sam, the forms were always placed on the press and made ready for him; and so, with a well-trained negro roller-boy, the working off the paper progressed satisfactorily. But it happened one day that Sam, who could not read, was thrown entirely on his own resources. He put the form to press and pulled a sheet; looked at it intently; turned it round and turned it over; something was the matter; he looked again, felt the tympan, held the sheet up to the light, and looking over his spectacles at the grinning roller-boy, exclaimed, "Look heah, boy, why for yer don't 'stribit yer rollah?" The form was bottom up.

A Swim for Liberty.

[New York Times.]

A veritable escape was made in Australian waters, a few weeks since, almost as amazing as that of Edmond Dantes, in the novel of Monte Cristo. It seems that the French transport steamer L'Orne had put into the lower harbor of Melbourne for coal and provisions. On board were 500 Communists, bound for the French penal settlement of New Caledonia. The sentinels on duty were quadrupled in number, and the ship was kept brilliantly illuminated with lanterns. Boats were stationed at judicious distances, and all conceivable precautions taken to prevent any of the convicts from escaping. But by an extraordinary combination of courage, good fortune, and physical endurance, one Michael Serigne managed to effect his departure from the vessel and his arrival on shore, a distance of seven miles; where, since there is no expatriation for political offences, he walks to-day a free man.

According to the Melbourne Argus, Serigne, having watched his opportunity for several hours, rolled out of a port-hole into a collier, which had been brought alongside to furnish the steamer with coal. A guard with a Chassepot was close by, but the prisoner executed his critical movement just as the sentry was moving from him, and before he turned. Serigne fell amid the coals, and with great swiftness and dexterity, covered himself up among them. Here he lay until after midnight, his first descent having been made about 9. He now stealthily lowered himself overboard and swam to the collier's stern, where a boat was fastened. Cutting the rope, he gently pushed the boat away, swimming behind it. The night was dark, there was no moon, and it rained. When 300 yards away, Serigne heard a noise on board the steamer, and made up his mind that his escape was discovered. He naturally inferred that the absence of the boat would be instantly noted, and that, if seen, she would at once be fired upon. He therefore instantly left her, dived well beneath the surface, and rose again some distance off. All was quiet again on board the ship, but he dared not return to the boat, and struck out for the shore. He could see the lights of Sandridge, but knew not how far they might be away. After swimming nearly an hour, he felt that he could continue no longer. Happily, at this juncture, he espied a vessel at anchor, and contrived to struggle to her cable. Fearing he should faint, and so sink, he lashed himself to the cable with his belt. For an hour or more he rested, and then disengaged himself, and again struck out for the shore. Greatly exhausted he managed at last to gain the beach at Sandridge, and thence, in the morning, he had walked into Melbourne. He had heard, he said, that having once touched English soil he was free, and so had no fear of being given up. On the line taken, it appeared that he must have swam nearly nine miles—the distance achieved by Dumas' marvellous hero when he escaped from the Chateau D'If. The poor man was naturally in quite a destitute state, and, as it turned out that he had been quite a homeless member of the Commune, he found many sympathizers, who will see to it that he has a comfortable provision for the future. There are few instances in the annals of remarkable escapes where the chances of success have been so slender, and where difficulties were surmounted with such determined pluck and energy. If Serigne can make as good a battle for success in life, as he has shown he can make for liberty, he will be heard of again in the world, and Australia may congratulate herself on the acquisition of an enterprising citizen, although at the expense of New Caledonia.

A Story of a Bangor Mayor.

Cincinnati Christian Union.

At the time of the great Chicago fire, an eminent merchant was mayor of Bangor. As soon as the extent of the disaster was made known he announced that the city must contribute at least $10,000 for the sufferers. He carried around a subscription paper, and soon received the promise of that amount. Presently he called on the subscribers and urged them to pay, saying that there was urgent need of the money, and that he wanted to forward it at once. This appeal was promptly answered, and the money put in his hands. Weeks passed, but no acknowledgment of Bangor's gift was made by the Chicago authorities. At last the mayor began to be troubled by questions. For a time, by ingenious evasions and fabrications, he prevented serious inquiry; but at last it could no longer be delayed, and the whole truth came out. The mayor had converted the $10,000 to his own use. Not long ago he died, leaving his affairs in confusion. It is worthy of record that though the subscribers recovered their money from his estate, they did not send it to Chicago.

— If you have an eagle's nest in one of your apple trees don't meddle with it, or you will have cause to repent of your act, as did a North Bridgewater man, according to the Press, which tells the tale as follows:—A couple of the birds of freedom, who trusted to the sanctity of the domestic circle in North Bridgewater, have been rearing a family of young eaglets in the woods bordering the town. On a recent afternoon while Mr. and Mrs. Eagle were off on a foraging expedition to a neighboring poultry yard, a marauding biped stole a march on them, and captured "all their pretty chickens at one fell swoop." The old folks got back just as the spoiler was departing, and for a few minutes it was the most even fight that ever was witnessed. Hair, feathers and clothing filled the air in about equal proportions, until about the only thing that covered the young man's back was that pair of eagles, and he ran into Factory village in the uniform of a Georgia major, a shirt and a pair of spurs. The spurs he got of the eagles. His face looked like a victim of freckle lotion, or a Chinese alphabet. He was about the most taboo-ed man in town. The eagles have left for Washington and there is bound to be trouble unless that family is restored.

—The Boston Post pithily remarks that the political fiction represented by the New York Tribune "is on ice to prevent putrefaction until buried." This is the way outspoken democrats show their gratitude to traitors and deserters from the republican ranks.

The Secret.

Those who prize a beautiful head of hair, (and we know our lady readers all do,) will thank us for a few words on the invaluable qualities of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR as a dressing. In our own case it heals a humor, keeps the head free from dandruff and scurf, stops the tendency of our hair to fall, and heightens its beauty. A slight touching with it removes the dry and coarse appearance which neglected hair puts on, imparts a rich gloss, and makes us presentable in the most fashionable company. Such rare qualities, possessed in a single preparation, give use for it an enduring value; but add to these the faculty of restoring to gray locks their youthful color, and maintaining our good looks with so small an expenditure of time and attention, and you stamp it a prime favorite with the public, and ensure its permanent and enduring popularity.—[Huntsville (Ala.) Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

A Critical Season.

Toward the close of the season the long-continued heat begins to tell upon body and mind. Both become exhausted, and we feel instinctively that nature, after fighting a gallant battle with a debilitating temperature, is drooping at last, and requires to be stimulated and reinforced. This, therefore, is a period of the year when a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is especially useful. The immediate effect of this unequalled vegetable restorative is to strengthen the stomach, sharpen the appetite, tone and regulate the bowels, and give steadiness and vigor to the nerves. As a preventive of the endemic and epidemic complaints that prevail at this season, and as a remedy for indigestion, liver disturbances, nervous debility, constipation, languor, headache, and all irregularities of the bowels, this pure and wholesome vegetable tonic and alternative has no equal among medicines.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among not only one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors, to a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taken in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The prudent should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Reliance is by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

Fleet Street Widened.

At a special meeting of the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, on the 6th, all parties interested in widening Fleet street having been heard, it was voted to widen the street in accordance with the wishes of the petitioners, Alderman Lefavour alone opposing it. Mayor Marvin and Aldermen Sise and Trefethen were appointed a committee to estimate and report land damages.

Laconics.

At a regular meeting of the Steam Fire Engine Co. No. 1, "Dearborn," held on the 4th inst., it was voted to accept the invitation of the S. B. Beed Hook and Ladder Co. of Lynn to visit that city on the 12th of September and on their return will stop at Salem for a few hours. The interchange of courtesies among fire companies is not only conducive to good times, but presents a feature of cordial and heartfelt greetings which cannot be excelled by any other organization.

The arrangements for the hop at the Farragut House, Rye Beach, to-morrow evening, are progressing favorably. The following committees have been appointed: On reception—Rear-Admiral James Alden, Walter Hastings, Edward E. Rice, A. S. Peabody, Lieutenant-Commander T. L. Swan, U. S. N., Frank Thompson, J. G. Doubleday, Lieutenant H. W. Lyon, U. S. N., John A. B. Cutter, Hon. R. S. Sloan; Floor Committee—William K. Blodgett, J. W. Warren, Ed. T. Hastings, H. J. Blodgett, F. A. Wordell.

The extra dividends of the Portsmouth Savings Bank for the past five years amount to 9 2-3 per cent., making in all, as five per cent. has been declared yearly, 6 9-10 per cent. average yearly for depositors for that time. William Sises and James F. Shores were re-elected president and Clerk at the annual meeting of the corporation on Wednesday. The double vacancy caused by the death of Ichabod Rollins, was filled by the choice of James W. Emery as one of the forty corporators, and John Sise as one of the eighteen trustees.

The splendid new clipper ship Grandee will be launched on Monday next at 1 o'clock P. M., from the ship-yard of Messrs. Tobey & Littlefield, on Noble's Island. The Grandee is of 1,200 tons measurement, and is pronounced by good judges to be of superior model and first-class workmanship. She will be commanded by Capt. B. F. Jacobs, and will be ready for sea in about three weeks. We learn that several parties from New York and Boston are trying to secure her for charter, but she is yet disengaged. As but few new ships are now in the market, she will no doubt secure a good engagement, as there is plenty of business now offering for first class ships.

What Shall We Do With Our Boys?

The following from the Journal of Chemistry is the most practical article that has come to our notice of late. It is full of good sound sensible advice, from beginning to end. Every parent should peruse it carefully, and heed its admonitions. The folly of trying to induce boys to follow a pursuit for which they have no inclination, and to which they are in no wise adapted should be brought to an end at once. The sooner the better for both parents and children. The Journal says:—

"It is as impossible to make a chemist, or an engineer, or a naturalist of a boy, if he has no special taste or aptness for these studies, as to make a poet out of a Digger Indian. It is no unusual circumstance for parents who have boys just entering upon manhood to come to us desiring counsel in regard to placing them in a chemical laboratory, that they may "learn the trade," as to their eyes the business seems remunerative. They have no special genius, no training in preparatory studies, no decided leaning towards chemical manipulation or research, but the desire is to have them made into chemists. There is a mistaken idea, common to many parents, that their children are as well adapted to one employment as another, and that they only need opportunities to learn regarding this pursuit or that, to become proficients and rise to eminence. More than half the sad failures so commonly observed are due to being forced into the wrong road in early life. Young men are forced into pulpits, when they should be following the plough; forced into courts of law when they should be driving the plane in a carpenter's shop; forced into sick rooms, as physicians, when they should be guiding a locomotive, or heading an exploring party in the Rocky mountains; forced into industrial laboratories, when they should be in the counting room or shop.

It is a wise provision of Providence that nearly every boy born into the world has some peculiar distinctive capability, some aptness for a particular calling or pursuit; and if he is driven into channels contrary to his instinct and tastes, he is in antagonism with nature, and the odds are against him. One of the earliest and most anxious inquiries of parents should be directed to the discovery of the leanings of their children, and if they find that their boy, who they earnestly desire shall adorn the bar or pulpit, is persistently engaged in constructing toy ships, and wading in every puddle of water, to test their sailing qualities; if he reads books of voyages, and when in a seaport, steals away to the wharves, to visit ships, and talk with sailors, it is certain he is born for the sea. Fit him out in a sailor's rig, put him in the best possible position for rising to the honorable post of ship master, and you have discharged your duty. If on the other hand he is logical, discriminating, keen, fond of argument, let him enter the law; if he is fond of whittling, planing, sawing, constructing, and neglects his studies, turn him over to a good carpenter, to learn the trade.

Rather Thinks He Won't.

The Daily Graphic extended an invitation to the "Danbury Man," to make one of the party in their Atlantic balloon trip, and received the following characteristic reply:

GENTLEMEN: I acknowledge the receipt of an invitation from your office to be one of the party to make a trip across the Atlantic in the Daily Graphic balloon. The item in the letter which suggests the possibility of an explosion in mid-air and ocean, with the certainty of material for an excellent paragraph for the News in case the explosion takes place, rather dampens the ardor I felt rising on commencing your note. That may not be the effect you contemplated, but such is the result. On the whole, I think I shall have to decline the invitation. I feel just as enthusiastic in the enterprise as any one can, but I can control and manage my enthusiasm to better advantage if I am standing on something hard. Besides, it makes me sea-sick to cross the ocean, and, when I am sea-sick, I become so excited and reckless that I squander away anything that is handy in my possession, and would be just as likely to throw away something valuable as not. In that case, I should like to be where I can recover it. This is natural to us all, I think. I do not wish to be understood as having any fear in the matter. I am not afraid of a balloon. I would just as soon ride in a balloon as in a street car, if it wasn't for getting cinders in my eyes. I am afraid of cinders. Yours truly, J. M. BAILEY.

Rusticus in Urbe.

[Chicago Times.]

A dusty, sun-browned stranger stalked into one of the principal hotels early on last evening, laid a big black valise, which had perhaps made quite a smart appearance in its youth, carefully beside him, and with a hand accustomed to public writing, scrawled with great exertion the name of Lorenzo Smith upon the register.

"Will you have some supper, Mr. Smith?" asked the clerk.

"Wall, no, I guess not," returned the rustic gentleman. "The folks at home put up a good bit of grub, and thar's enuff left in this yer carpet-bag for a supper, I reckon."

The clerk smiled and the countryman and his corpulent carpet-bag were shown to their room. Country was somewhat dazed at its magnificence, but he was hungry, and placing the satchel on the centre table he drew forth a large chunk of boiled ham, numerous pieces of cold chicken, several enormous doughnuts and half a dozen hard boiled eggs. He was about to absorb the meagre repast into his starving system, when his eyes caught sight of the "rules for guests" tacked upon the door. He got up and read them aloud. He came to the last one, and read "meals in room charged extra." He read it again, this time slowly. "Wall I be danged," he ejaculated, and turning to the table, in an instant he had removed the ham, doughnuts, eggs, and all into the omnivorous carpet-sack, and in another instant he was down in the office, where he accosted the clerk, with, "I see, stranger, yer sign up thar in my room says meals in rooms charged extra."

"Yes," responded the clerk, who recognized the customer of a few minutes ago, and could scarcely repress his risibles. "$1 extra." "Wall, I'll be consarned," yawped the verdant, "I guess the expenses of a hot meal won't be much more," and beckoning to a bell-boy, he called out: "hy'ar, boy, show me the way to yer kitchen," and a moment later he was in the hands of the waiters.

STOVES, TIN WARE, IRON AND STEEL.

URIAH BLAISDELL

Informs his friends and the public that he has removed to

No. 55 Market Street,

(late the well-known Iron Store of Mr. John P. Lyman,) a few doors north of his old stand, and next beyond the Union Store, where he offers his usual stock of

STOVES OF ALL KINDS,
TIN, JAPANNED & GLASS WARE,
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,
FARM & GARDEN TOOLS, &c.

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the

"NEW AMERICAN,"

improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a good stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am sorting up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

Iron, Steel, Bolts, Nuts, Axles and Boxes, Horse-Shoe Forms, Horse-Shoe Nails, &c., &c.,

Will find it for their interest to give me a call.

N. B.—Seward's PATENT AXLE CLIPS AND YOKES, the latest and best articles in this line, in good supply.

PLEASE PAY UP!

The large expense I have incurred in the above change places me much in need of money; therefore all indebted to me will greatly oblige by promptly settling, and especially those owing long-standing accounts.

WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when received to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause in the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the proprietary name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States. There 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest medical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		12,000
10 CASH GIFTS	$10,000 each	100,000
20 CASH GIFTS	5,000 each	100,000
50 CASH GIFTS	1,000 each	50,000
100 CASH GIFTS	500 each	50,000
150 CASH GIFTS	400 each	60,000
156 CASH GIFTS	300 each	46,800
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
3,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	150,000
TOTAL 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The decision will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—if only 50 thousand tickets be disposed of at the First and Second Concert, 24 not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or single Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Halves for $500; 112 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 225 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS

R. H. ELLIOT,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 73 STATE ST., OPPOSITE ELIOT ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eliot as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of pushing their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. ELIOT has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

The Great South American Blood Purifier.
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions. The Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and Intestines and a proclivity to bilious derangement.
DR. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEODISTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Daily Chronicle.

Mrs. Ulrich's Advertisement.

BY SUE COUSTENTWOOD.

"Eunice!" The tone was quick and emphatic. Eunice actually lost her languor, and looked up quite energetically. The voice went on with the same intonation:

"I tell you, Eunice, I am disgusted."

"Yes, I have heard you say so before," mused.

"But, Eunice now my feelings have concentrated on a point and are going to explode."

"Oh, Rhoda, it don't pay" (with a yawn as she falling back on the sofa again).

The very positions of the sisters were characteristic. Rhoda, the younger, was seated in a low rocking-chair, swaying to and fro in time to her excitement; the other half reclining among sofa-cushions, with an open book resting unheeded on her lap.

"Eunice, I hate teaching, I would like to move to a community where there were no children."

"But, Rhoda, the difficulty would still remain. We would still have to do something. I don't suppose that even in such an Acadia as that living would be given as a present."

Rhoda was in a brown study, and verily whatever study the girl might be in would appear a brown one, for she was literally a nut-brown maid; her hair and eyes were that color, and even the crimson in her cheeks toned off to meet her dark complexion in the same soft, rich hue; the very merino of her well-fitting dress harmonized.

At length, quite ignoring her sister's depressing statement of the case, she said, thoughtfully:

"Eunice, I believe you had better taken the young minister, after all. He is not rich, but he is clever, and thinks the world of you."

The fair elder sister roused from her apathetical state, and flushed deeply. Rhoda looked at her in surprise a moment, then said, excitedly:

"Eunice, you have not been fair. I never dreamed until this minute that you cared for him, and you have let my idle talk about poverty influence you."

"No, it was not that, Rhoda, but I thought you would be so lonely. Teaching is such a cross to you; I thought it would be worse without me;" and the quivering of the quiet lips showed how great had been the sacrifice.

Rhoda sprang up to hug her sister in her demonstrative way, then went back to her chair, and rocking desperately, said:

"Eunice, you are a very noble girl. I have been thinking you cold and indifferent, and here you put me to open, absolute shame by your self-abnegation."

The older sister was crying quietly, with her sweet face in the sofa-pillow. Rhoda arose abruptly; and crossing their little room—they boarded, "and their scant means permitted them to have but the one,—she took her desk from a table, and hastily penned a line to the young minister, in her frank way fully presenting the position. Then she looked perplexed. It was a mouth since her sister had rejected him; they had not seen him since. They had heard that he had accepted a call to a church in the distant town of Q——. Perhaps he had already gone. At any rate, it would do no harm to try. She knew where he used to board; so putting on her bonnet and shawl, she left the room ere Eunice had lifted her head from her pillow.

The girl was is dependent and unconventional, and had never experienced the slightest thrill of horror as to what people would say; so when she had arrived at her destination, and in answer to her inquiry learned that the young minister was in, she put the letter in her pocket, and immediately determined to explain it all by word of mouth.

He came down instantly and met her in the parlor, his face a trifle pale and full of surprise, for she had sent up her name. She told it in a few frank words, and he went home with her, a proud, bright light in his grave eyes.

A few weeks later Eunice was married, and Rhoda was alone in the little apartment. It was afternoon. She had come in from school, and had a long, hard cry. The young minister had urged her to make her home with them; but, though very grateful, she had decidedly declined. At last she flashed away the tears, calling herself selfish for grieving for Eunice, who was so happy, and putting on her bonnet and shawl, started for the Mercantile Library, to change a book and read away the afternoon. Reaching there she sought the ladies' reading-room, and sat down wearily by one of the tables. Several new periodicals lay temptingly before her. Usually she would have seized them eagerly, but now looked at them with utter indifference, and scarce knowing, in her loneliness and heart-ache, what she did, looked down the columns of the Herald. She had opened it on the New York [illegible] for help. Wanted. Among them was [illegible]

"Young man, or elderly gentleman, [illegible] Mrs. Ulrich, [illegible]

[illegible] shall [illegible]

[illegible] the novelty. It says a lady [illegible] would treat me as such. Respectable and elderly, and a widow. The two requirements do not exactly tally [illegible] they give me time, I shall [illegible] the first. I will go this morning, any way," and, with her usual decision, she arose immediately and left the library. Even so much as stopping to change her bonnet, but carrying the old one now, with her. Her purpose took all the weariness out of her step; it was a light one when she reached the ladies' entrance at the Metropolitan, the crimson in her cheeks was high and brilliant, and fate seemed to have conspired to thwart her object, for her handsome face was handsomer than usual, and she actually looked her twenty-three years.

She went directly to one of the public parlors, and writing her name and purpose on a slip, sent it to Mrs. Ulrich's room. She took her seat opposite the great fire. The [illegible] had but two other occupants—a fleshy old lady and a gentleman of about thirty, or even forty; it was difficult to determine his age from his face. It was [illegible] of repose born of latent strength, which [illegible] would keep it from every [illegible] old.

To all appearance, the two persons had not the slightest connection with each other. The gentleman had drawn his [illegible] into the window and was reading the paper, whilst the lady, somewhat removed, was reclining in a sleepy-hollow, filling it so completely with her abundant physique as to give the appearance of even rolling over the sides. She was crocheting bright worsteds, hence kept the diamonds on her plump hands in a constant sparkle.

As the young girl entered, the gentleman did not look up, but the old lady, without evincing seemed to be entirely indemnified of her visual organs, fixed these same eyes on our maid of nut-brown hue, and never once removed them.

At length the waiter returned, and giving her card back into Rhoda's hand, made some remark in an undertone and left the room.

The girl hesitated a moment! This stone lady, with her immense person and sharp black eyes, certainly looked forbidding, yet she answered to the name contained in the advertisement. "Probably she was a friend of the invalid's, acting for her." Then, whatever might be the result, she would not at the very beginning be mastered by the situation, however formidable, so setting her lips firmly for one moment, she arose, and crossing the room, handed the same card to her, and stood with flushing cheeks while she read it.

The act seemed to have attracted the attention of the gentleman in the window, for he had laid down his paper, and was watching them. The old lady read it over twice, as if failing to comprehend it, then looking sharply at the young girl, said:

"I particularly specified an elderly lady, a widow preferred."

"Are you the Mrs. Ulrich?" was the girl's decidedly malapropos reply, though to all appearances in a respectful tone.

"I am," with a dignity so utterly ludicrous to her unwieldy person that it was positively funny.

There was a mercy, subdued flash in the girl's brown eyes. She said, with a [illegible] demure roguishness:

"Your pardon madam, but from all appearances, does your personnel meet the exigency of the advertisement any more than does mine? The statement, I believe, was an invalid."

There was a quiet curve of [illegible] about the lips of the gentleman who [illegible] window. The lady looked [illegible] Invalidism was her hobby; [illegible] to dispute her claim to it. She [illegible] silent from sheer inability to speak for [illegible] ment, then said, testily:

"Young woman, to say the least [illegible] frank."

"Your pardon, madam. I intended no disrespect. You probably have troubles enough apparent."

"I have, indeed. If you had suffered what I have for years, you would know how to sympathize. Sometimes [illegible] trouble me so I am not able to [illegible] weeks," complaining.

"I am sorry," said the girl, [illegible] almost childlike way. It softened [illegible] eyes instantly; they regarded [illegible] face with a new interest. She [illegible] consider a moment, then said:

"No, it is useless to think of [illegible] too young."

"But I shall be getting old [illegible] was the quick reply. She was [illegible] rather like the old lady, and [illegible] of the situation intensified [illegible]

"Besides," she added, [illegible] keep house."

"Why, did you ever do [illegible] the lady, incredulously.

She flushed a trifle as she [illegible] plebeian position for which she was [illegible] came over her, then said, with [illegible] to her pride and frankness:

"You have never asked who [illegible] going to live."

"Where!" she said, [illegible] would never have guessed it from his face.

"What is your nearest post-office?" she asked, thinking of Eunice.

"Yonkers; we are three miles from the town. The boys and myself come down to New York every day."

At the mention of the boys, there was an odd play to his lips. Rhoda tried to ignore the allusion, but flushed a trifle, withal. He then said, in a grave, business-like tone:

"I saw Professor B——. He said, since you wish it, he would release you. There were always plenty waiting for such a position. He spoke very highly of both You and your sister." She looked pleased. "And now as to terms."

She interrupted him impetuously: "Please do not talk of them to-night. I should like to feel this one night as if I was doing it for fun, not money." Then, suddenly ashamed of her lack of business, added, contradictorily, "But it might as well be settled and done with." He did so gravely, and then, all arrangements being made, bade her a courteous good night.

A few days later, Rhoda had bidden good bye to New York and began life in her new home. In this case it was actually a beginning of life, for there was not one trace left of the old weary teaching. She was quick, bright and had good judgment, so succeeded admirably with her new duties. To her it seemed like mere play. She entered into it with all her innate enthusiasm and energy. She was here, there, everywhere, by her graceful touch bringing out beauties by mere force of arrangement that they had not suspected existed. Whatever she touched as by magic assumed a pleasant shape. The change was so great that it caused comment from the boys, and once this quiet gentleman, Harden Ulrich, in bidding her good night, had called her Brownie. It was strange that the girl should have blushed so when he said it.

"Yes, for my father. For the last three years, I have been teaching, but I hate it," with marked emphasis on the hate. "So when I saw your advertisement this afternoon, it looked like a relief. I began to teach as soon as I best my home."

"How lost your home?" asked Mrs. Ulrich. She always took a lively interest in every one's affairs.

Then the girl told, in her brief, frank way, how she was the daughter of a minister, that her father and mother had died three years ago, and Eunice and she, through the kindness of one of their father's friends, had obtained situations as teachers in the city, ending with an account of Eunice's marriage and her own loneliness.

When she had finished, the old lady was silent a moment, then said:

"Your father's friend lives in the city?"

"He does. I could give you his address, also the address of the principal of the school, as references."

"Yes, yes; but there is an insurmountable objection," said the old lady, regretfully, then added, in a confidential way:

"You see, my dear, it is those boys—"

The young girl exclaimed quickly:

"Oh, I like little boys; I should not mind them in the least."

The old lady interrupted her:

"But, my dear, you are mistaken; these are not little boys. They are both older than you."

There was something so irresistibly droll in the caution on the old lady's face that Rhoda had to bite her lips to keep from laughing. Mrs. Ulrich went on:

"You see my dear, you are young and handsome, and they might—"

"Fall in love with the housekeeper?" suggested Rhoda, with an intonation of scorn, and her cheeks flushing proudly.

"No, no," interposed the old lady. "You are too quick and too proud. You are the daughter of a minister; that is enough. I am the daughter of a minister, too. It is not that, my dear, but I don't want those boys to marry until they have established themselves in their professions and are thirty at least. I don't believe in young marriages."

The girl's proud lips lost their scornful curve, and fairly quivered with fun as she replied:

"You would not need to give yourself any uneasiness on that score at all. I am not a favorite with gentlemen. Why, I am almost twenty-three years old, and have never been asked to marry."

The curve about the lips of the gentlemen who sat in the window deepened into a smile. The old lady arose with difficulty and rolled over the room to where he sat, for no other word would express her gait.

"Humph! so they are together," thought Rhoda, and waited with an intense anxiety quite incomprehensible to herself for the result. After a little time, Mrs. Ulrich returned and sank, all out of breath from the exertion, into a chair:

"Well, well, we will see all about it. You are the daughter of a minister, and so am I; only if you do come, you must keep clear of the boys. Let me have your friend's address and your own, and I will send my nephew around in the morning with my decision."

The young girl wrote all three addresses on the same card, and with a graceful little bow and a heartsome good bye left, carrying with her a heart lighter than it had been for three long years.

The next day was Saturday—a holiday. To Rhoda it seemed spun out to indefinite lengths. Morning, noon and afternoon had passed. She had almost abandoned hope, when, in the early evening, a servant knocked at her door and handed her a card. She looked eagerly at the name: "Harden Ulrich"—the old lady's nephew. She gave one hasty glance in the glass, woman fashion, then went down stairs, her heart pulsing the blood to her cheeks in bright flushes. If she should be disappointed, she thought she could hardly bear it.

There were several groups of busy talkers in the parlor. The gentleman seemed to have a penchant for windows, for he had taken his chair quite into one, and was somewhat apart from the others. She went over to where he sat, and bade him good evening with a little tremor of suspense in her voice.

"I am bearer of my aunt's affirmative decision, and am delegated by her to make all necessary arrangements," he said, placing a chair for her directly opposite his own.

"I am very glad." Her eyes, her lips, cheeks, said it as well as her voice. There was a light answering smile on his quiet face—happiness is contagious; then he said, with an expression of subdued amusement;

The domestic arrangements went as by clock-work. The servants gave her that implicit sort of obedience that is always accorded to a strong, independent character, such as hers. As to her relations with the family, Mrs. Ulrich's introduction of her as the daughter of a minister was wholly unnecessary. A true lady requires no one to establish her claims as such. Her handsome face and bright ways, together with a charm of manner intensified by the fact that she was entirely ignorant of possessing it, took the boys as by storm. It was funny to see the mingled offishness and frankness with which she treated them. But one word of these boys, Will and Roy by name. There was but a year's difference in their ages; the elder was twenty-five. They both had black hair and eyes like their mother. They were handsome, open-hearted, impulsive fellows, and before Rhoda had been there a week, for all her rebuffs and efforts at formality, she was remarkably well acquainted with them.

One evening, at the end of the first week, the family were gathered in the library. The boys and their mother proposed whist Rhoda persisted she knew nothing about the game.

"Harden, you sit behind her chair and show her," said the old lady. She seemed possessed of the idea that she was born to command, for she never couched a desire in the form of a request.

This quiet gentleman, with his reposeful face, obeyed her implicitly, and drew his chair so that he could look over Rhoda's shoulder. Will was her partner, and Roy was his mother's. They all seemed naturally excitable except Harden. Once Roy thought they had taken a trick dishonestly, and was furious. Will tried to explain, but Roy was not to be appeased:

"Now, Will, it isn't fair; you and Rhoda and Harden are having things all your own way." At that the young girl put her cards abruptly on the table, and looking at him demanded, coolly:

"Who gave you permission to call me by my first name?" The old lady chuckled, Harden looked at her in amusement, Will in amazement, whilst Roy blushed a deep crimson, then said:

"Excuse me, but it is such a pretty name, and you are not a bit of a miss."

The girl shook her handsome head in emphatic disapproval:

"I tell you first and last, Roy, compliments go for nothing with me, so don't waste your breath. Like the rest of us, you will need all you have to spare to pray with when you come to die."

Will and his mother laughed outright. Roy looked offended. The girl discovered it, and looking at him, in her frank, winsome way, said.

"Now, Roy, don't be mad."

From that moment Roy was her slave. Will actually envied him, and tried to bring down a like judgment on himself by calling her Rose, her name's interpretation; but with her clear intuition she discovered the design, so made no comment.

From that night, unforbidden, the boys gave her her Christian name. After that whist got to be a part of every evening. Harden always looked over Rhoda's shoulder, though she was thoroughly initiated in the game. One evening when, according to his advice, she had made a bold play, contrary to rule, and won, Roy objected.

"This power behind the throne greater than the throne itself" is played out."

"Rhoda, you don't need Harden any more," said Mrs. Ulrich, testily.

"No," chimed in Will, jealously, "I believe you pretend not to know how because you like to see him win."

"I take notice Harden rather enjoys his position too," put in Roy.

The girl flushed to her very temples. At that Will significantly called her "Rose."

"I'll not play another minute," she said, and tossing down her cards in a pet, leaned back in her chair. Harden's arm rested on the back of her chair. She was leaning quite against it, but did not know it. The boys laughed heartily; so did their mother. Then she discovered it and sat erect, her blush deepening. She could not look at this quiet gentleman, and wondered why their raillery should tease her.

Playing was out of question. Perhaps he saw it, for he picked up her cards and played the hand for her. That finished the game. After that, Mrs. Ulrich went to sleep in her chair, the boys went to the smoking-room, and Harden took up his book. Rhoda was silently leaving the room, when he called her back. She stood impatiently by the table. "Come here; I want to speak to you." She went over and stood by his chair.

"In future would you rather play your own game?" he asked. She blushed and stammered, "No." He was leaning lazily back in his chair to look up in her face. At that "no" there was a smile of triumph about his lips.

"Well, then, good-night, Brownie," teasingly.

She made no reply, but hastily left the room.

She had not been there a month before the boys were both desperately in love with her. Mrs. Ulrich was either blind to the fact, or had changed her mind in regard to early marriages, or perhaps she felt that she could not at any risk part with that winsome young girl who witched away the long days for her, and had even made her forget her pet invalidism. She used to say to herself, "On the whole, it is the best thing I ever did, for now the boys never stay in the city to go to the theatre, and keep me awake all night worrying about them, for fear of their getting into bad company." In fact, however, they transgressed the other way, and took a holiday oftener than one would think the early stage of their profession would admit. Still, she never raised an objection, but said to herself, "When one has her boys under her eyes, one knows where they are."

When in the house, they actually followed Rhoda about, and openly rebelled if even their mother or Harden claimed her attention. Sometimes the latter would ask her to write letters at his dictation, complaining that his eyes ached. Rhoda thought he did it just to tease the boys, but always readily consented. Then sometimes he would keep her a full hour reading the paper to him. Will and Roy would look desperate, but say nothing; they stood in a certain awe of their quiet cousin. When at length he would release her, it would be with odd lights in his eyes, made up of qualities she did not comprehend, but only knew that one of their expressions was teasing.

So three months passed. At the end of that time, Roy, in a fit of jealousy toward Will, desperately declared his love, and asked the girl to marry him.

"Why, Roy, what on earth do you mean? You are only a year older than I. I should feel as perfect liberty to spend my whole life scolding You and ordering you about. What ever made you think of such a thing?" was the unsentimental reply.

Roy looked very angry:

"Then I suppose you are going to marry Will?" jealousy sweeping away his judgment.

"Marry Will, you silly fellow! He has never thought of such a thing." He looked perfectly wretched. She put her hand coaxingly on his arm, and said in her winsome way:

"Now Roy, do be a good boy."

His face brightened a trifle:

"Rhoda, I would rather be refused by you than accepted by any other girl."

The rest of the day Rhoda went about the house with the strange sensation every woman experiences on receiving her first offer. This happened on the morning of a snowy Sunday. None of them went to church. Many times during the day she met Harden Ulrich's eyes, and each time they had in them a quizzical light that quite convinced her that Roy had been to him with his trouble.

"He thinks Roy will get over it. Of course he will, but it is hardly complimentary for him to think so;" and she colored, and feeling annoyed, tried to avoid the eyes.

The afternoon of the same day she was passing through the hall, when opposite to the library door, she met Will.

"Rose, come in here; I want to speak to you," he said excitedly. She followed him, feeling intuitively what was to follow. Inside the hall, he seized both her hands. "Rose, I love you so that I am in torture." His voice fairly trembled.

"Oh, Will, how can you?" she said desperately. He blushed to his very eyes.

"Rose, if you marry Roy instead of me, I shall go mad."

"Oh dear! were there ever such boys?" was the answer he got, and she snatched away her hands.

"Rose, will you marry me?"

"Positively, no."

"I believe you actually hate me," he said, his very lip quivering.

"You are mistaken; I like you so very much that I could never love you." He groaned. "Now, Will, don't be foolish. Some time you will look back on to-night, and wonder what possessed you."

"Never," he said, and left the room.

She stepped to the window, intending to throw up the sash and cool the cheeks that two offers in one day had made so hot, when she stopped abruptly, with an exclamation. There sat Harden Ulrich. He was not even screened by the drapery. If Will and she had not been blinded by excitement, they could not have failed to see him. As it was, they had blocked him in, and acted their drama as for his benefit. There was no one to blame but themselves. She had come to his very side before she discovered him.

"Will is very generous of his love scenes. He deals them out gratuitously to spectators," he said, looking provokingly amused. She blushed painfully, and was silent, in utter confusion. "He will not be apt to dispute the saying 'Every rose has its thorn.'" His voice was full of teasing, so was his face.

Her lips quivered, her heart beat quick; no one had ever had power to make it beat as had this quiet gentleman.

"You are unkind," she said, impetuously.

He took her hand, and drew her to an ottoman at his feet. He had made her take the position once or twice before to read the paper to him, but then his aunt and the boys had been present, and she had not minded it, but now she was silent and embarrassed. He touched her hot cheeks teasingly with his cold hand, saying:

"You were well named." The girl's very pulse quivered. A moment's silence; then, "You have disposed of both the boys?"

Her eyes filled. "I ought not to have come," she said, under her breath.

"Are you sorry?" The voice was, as usual, quiet. She looked at him in her frank way, and said:

"No;" then added, "I must go away now, though."

"No, you must not," coolly.

"Why?"

"Because I should miss you, and you would miss me;" and as he spoke, he placed his hand on the soft brown hair.

Her lips quivered, yet she said, in a sort of desperation: "What has that to do with it?"

"Everything." A moment's silence; then, "Rhoda, you refused the boys; you dare not refuse me."

"Why?" rebelling against the quiet confidence of the tone.

"Because I not only love you, but you love me."

The flushed averted face confirmed the cool assertion; he brought it full to view, and, unforbidden, kissed her

At first the boys raved, and stayed in the city a whole week. At the end of that time, having mutually concluded that it wasn't half so hard to bear as it one or the other expected them had when pet, they went home and asked pardon.

When the old lady heard it, she was a trifle indignant at the way it had been treated "those boys;" but the girl defended herself with the old lady's own words—hadn't she cautioned her against thinking of marrying either of them? Finally, the old lady reasoned to herself in this wise: "If either one had won her, the other would have been in misery, and it is too good to see that quiet Harden out-witted at last."

Of course they were to remain in the old home. Eunice and her husband were present at the wedding, and the young minister said the words that made them man and wife.

State News.

A portion of the coach factory of Abbott, Downing & Co., at Concord, was burned early Friday morning. The most serious loss, was the thousands of hubs in the various stages of seasoning that were stored in the capacious attic. The fire was the work of an incendiary, and was the fifth attempt made to burn the factory within the last thirteen months. Loss, $25,000.

On the 7th, Michael Hackney jumped off the down train for Lawrence near Manchester and fractured his skull.

On the 6th, as John P. Rollins and Jeremiah Moody's three children were riding on a lumber wagon, the horse ran and the carriage struck a post. Fred Moody, ten years old, was thrown off and two double harnesses fell on him, inflicting severe injuries. Farther on the wagon struck a tree, and the youngest Moody girl, nine years old, who was sitting on the front of the wagon with her legs hanging over, was caught between wagon and tree so that the left leg was severed from her body and her thigh shockingly lacerated. Her recovery is doubtful, amputation having been found necessary.

Charles T. Lane of Candia awoke Thursday morning to find the doors of his residence open. Detecting the smell of chloroform in his chamber, he felt under a pillow for his pocket-book, which he had placed there on retiring, with $475 in it. The money was gone. On opening his store that morning, he found that had been robbed also.

The citizens of Newmarket have raised a sum of money which it is proposed to distribute among those who made especial efforts to recover the bodies of the victims of the late drowning accident.

Old Time Chronicles, No. 82.

BY UNCLE JOSEPH.

One hundred and five years ago, the Province had not been divided into counties. What is now Rockingham county had thirty-five towns. Auburn, Derry and South Newmarket have been disannexed from other towns and incorporated since, making at present thirty-eight. Then there were twenty-seven Congregational churches and a little later, say within less than ten years, there were churches formed in Candia, Deerfield and Northwood, making thirty. Now there are twenty-eight, several having lost visibility.

The following are among the principal towns in which Congregational churches flourished then and had pastors, where none are now. In Gosport, Rev. John Tucke was in the thirty-sixth year of his minority on those islands. He died there five years later. In Newton, Rev. Jonathan Eames was settled in 1759 and continued till 1691. He then left and died in Wentworth in 1800. In Danville, then called Hawke, Rev. John Page was settled in 1763 and died in 1772.

In the above few towns the ministers named were the only Congregationalists in charge. At the date given, 1763, Nottingham had its second minister, Rev. Benjamin Butler, a distant relative of Judge James Butler, now residing there, and James D. Butler, Esq., of Portsmouth. He was in the tenth year of his work there and continued there two years longer. In South Hampton after the society had its second minister, Rev. Nathaniel Noyes, settled in 1763 and continues to 1800.

In 1763, there was but one Baptist church in the county that at Newton, organized in 1755. There were two Societies of Friends, often called Quakers. One was at Newton, which became extinct. The other was in Hampton Falls and Seabrook. It still continues in Seabrook. A little later or in fact about the same year 1763, a Society commenced in Epping, which still exists. In 1769, Jonathan Norris, one of their number, was imprisoned for refusing to pay a ministerial tax for the support of Rev. Josiah Stevens, the second Congregational minister of the town. But the citizens were tolerant and by vote released him from paying the tax.

In 1768 there was but one Society of the Episcopalians, that in Portsmouth. Within a century, churches of other names have been formed in considerable numbers. J. F.

Little is left to be wished for by those who partake of the American House, Boston, by the late improvements. Everything is fresh and nice, and the unequaled management of the past is continued.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. It taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. ta28

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, give wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

A Critical Season.

Toward the close of the season the long-continued heat begins to tell upon both mind and body. Both become exhausted, and we feel instinctively that nature, after fighting a gallant battle with a debilitating temperature, is drooping at last, and requires to be stimulated and reinvigorated. This, therefore, is a period of the year when a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is especially useful. The immediate effect of this unequalled vegetable restorative is to strengthen the stomach, sharpen the appetite, tone and regulate the bowels, and give steadiness and vigor to the nerves. As a preventive of the endemic and epidemic complaints that prevail at this season, and as a remedy for indigestion, liver disturbances, nervous debility, constipation, languor, headache, and all irregularities of the bowels, this pure and wholesome vegetable tonic and alterative has no equal among medicines.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

The few compositions which have won the confidence of mankind, and become household words among nearly every one but many nations, must have extraordinary virtues. Perhaps no one ever secured so wide a reputation, or maintained it so long, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It has been known to the public about forty years, by a long-continued series of marvellous cures, that have won for it a confidence in its virtues never equalled by any other medicine. It still makes the most effectual cures of COUGHS, COLDS, CONSUMPTION, that can be made by medical skill. Indeed, the CHERRY PECTORAL has really robbed these dangerous diseases of their terrors. So a great extent, and given a feeling of immunity from their fatal effects, that is well-founded, if taking in season. Every family should have it in their closet for the ready and prompt relief of its members. Sickness, suffering, and even life is saved by this timely protection. The public should not neglect it, and the wise will not. Keep it by you for the protection it affords by its timely use in sudden attacks.

Local Matters.

City Council.

The Board of Mayor and Aldermen finally settled the question of widening Fleet street, Thursday evening, by awarding land damages to the amount of $4968,—$2400 to the Mechanics' Association, $1000 to Joseph Parcy, $500 to R. H. Beacham, $343 to Mrs. A. C. Curtis, $300 to Ayers and Barri, $250 to the Haven Estate, and $175 to L. K. Lydston.

The petition of William F. Parrott and others for changing the name of Manhattan Square back to Haymarket Square was taken from the table.

The following communication was accepted and ordered to be embodied in the City record:—

Hon. Thomas E. O Marvin;

Sir: It having come to our notice that sundry petitions ask for the reconsideration of the action of the Board of Aldermen in reference to the renaming of the spot so long known as Haymarket Square, we beg to say, that while we most sincerely thank our friends for their courtesy, embodied in this voluntary compliment, so unexpectedly conferred upon the efforts of our delegation, we carefully understand the wish on the part of many of the citizens of Portsmouth, that the old name of the Square should for many reasons be preserved. To the New Yorkers the word "Manhattan" has a significance that your people cannot be expected to share, while the old, familiar name Haymarket has its title in history, and the affections of us all. We are sure, Sir, that to none of the descendants of the old Home is there needed any reminder of the delightful days of either of the Reunions, and it will be the sincere regret of the New Yorkers if any feeling or sentiment should ever be provoked that in any degree will detract from the remembrance of the past or the harmony and success of the future Reunions. Permit us to assure you, Sir, that whether it shall be decided to retain either the old or the new name to the Square, our delegation, will in any event, if thought proper and consistent, be glad to complete their arrangements for the presentation of flags and staff, as proposed in our previous communication. Your Obt. Servants.

E. R. GOODRICH,
S. J. NOWELL,
For Committee.

Voted, That the vote changing the name of Haymarket Square to Manhattan Square be reconsidered.

The following resolutions were accepted:

Resolved, by the Board of Mayor and Aldermen, that a special committee consisting of the Mayor and Aldermen Wilson and Sise be and hereby are appointed a committee to attend the annual meeting of the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad Company, to represent and act for the interest of the City in said Road at said meeting;

Resolved, that said committee be and are hereby appointed a Standing Committee to represent the City in all matters pertaining to the City's interest in said Portsmouth and Dover Railroad.

Aldermen Sise and Trefethen were appointed to draw up an ordinance relative to the storage of petroleum and its products.

Voted, that the City subscribe for two additional sets of Whitefield's Views, one set to be sent to Portsmouth, England, and one set to Portsmouth, Ohio.

At The Shoals.

The Oceanic House is well filled and nicely kept. The proprietors have provided their guests with all the modern conveniences and set an excellent table. A grand hop came off at this new resort, a short time ago, in which the guests of Appledore took part. Thursday evening, a complimentary hop was tendered by the guests of the Appledore to the boarders at the Oceanic, and steamer Appledore called at Star Island for them and returned them after the close of the festivities. The Marine Band gave a preliminary concert on the balcony of the Appledore from eight o'clock till nine, after which the dancing commenced in the spacious hall and was continued until midnight, Harlow's orchestra furnishing the music.

The Appledore House is overflowing with guests, and those most pleasant of courteous landlords, Cedric and Oscar, are enjoying the most successful season of their experience, which commenced two weeks earlier than usual. They stow away from thirty to fifty more people than they have rooms for every night, and have turned away nearly four hundred persons who have applied for accommodations, thus far. With this experience, it is not strange that the Laightons contemplate further enlargement next year. Applications for rooms come by scores by every mail and the clerk had a half peck of these unanswered communications on hand this week. The Oceanic and Appledore Houses are by no means rivals, but work cordially in unison. The building of the Oceanic increased the travel to the Shoals, and these islands will yet be a fashionable resort. One thing we regret, mourn for, and refuse to be comforted. Appledore has been for time immemorial a place for rest, and ladies have traversed the rocks and promenaded the balcony in dresses noted for being far removed from the fashionable follies of this great and growing age. Now, things are changing, and with the erection of the Oceanic comes the introduction of the tyrant Fashion, whose influence already has increased the lengths of the skirts and the numbers of the frills of the fair guests of Appledore!

Smutty-nose is the shrine of nearly every visitor's pilgrimage. Arthur Cheney's (he of the burned Globe Theatre) yacht lies cosily at anchor near Star Island and his puffing little steam launch frequently crosses to the scene of Wagner's cruelty. Fishing and sailboats from Star and Appledore also carry many curious wonder-seekers, who find the Hontvet house without any trace of the murders about it, except that the knives of visitors are mutilating it—one of the last vestiges of the barbarism of the nineteenth century. The cost of repairing the building will be quite large should the chip-gatherers continue their vandalism. The fishermen at the Shoals bitterly denounce the fiend who murdered Anethe and Karen Christensen, and would like just one chance to rid the world of the cruel villain. It is said that after Wagner's escape from Alfred jail, Mrs. Hontvet was in great fear, until the news of his recapture rendered her fears unnecessary, that he would by some fatality search her out and complete the horrid work he engaged in on that desolate island in the month of March. The island is inhabited again, by Mr. Lemuel Caswell, who occupies the only painted building on it, called the "Hotel."

The Coming Star Shower.

The Scientific American reminds us to be on the look-out for the star shower, which appears to radiate from the constellation Perseus. On the 10th of August, the earth annually passes, for about six hours, through the belt of meteors which originally formed a part of comet III, 1862, returning once in a hundred and twenty years. It is estimated that four hundred million shooting stars daily traverse the atmosphere, adding perhaps, a thousand pounds to the earth's mass. These showers bring us specimens from the remotest realms of space; sometimes meteoric iron, at other times meteoric stones containing hydro-carbons and phosphorus. The weight of these aerolites is generally inconsiderable, but varies up to fifteen tons. The loud report which attends the fall of the larger masses is caused by the air rushing into the vacuum in rear of the projectile when it reaches our atmosphere.

—A strange man, name unknown, was seen darting about a Danbury street, Saturday forenoon, with a pencil and paper in hand, and every once in a while stopping and dotting something down. No one among the women who watched him knew or could imagine what he was up to, but it is understood that eight men who live on that street found no dinner ready at noon, and that they not only knew nothing of the stranger, but unanimously and profanely proclaimed they did n't want to.

REMOVAL.

STOVES, TIN WARE, IRON AND STEEL.

URIAH BLAISDELL

Informs his friends and the public that he has removed to

No. 55 Market Street,

(late the well-known Iron Store of Mr. John P. Lyman,) a few doors north of his old stand, and next beyond the Union Store, where he offers his usual stock of

STOVES OF ALL KINDS,
TIN, JAPANNED & GLASS WARE,
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,
FARM & GARDEN TOOLS, &c.

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the

"NEW AMERICAN,"

improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a good stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

I have now the best store in the city for my business, connections, and ancl, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am selling up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

Iron, Steel, Bolts, Nuts, Axles and Boxes, Horse-Shoe Forms, Horse-Shoe Nails, &c., &c.,

Will find it for their interest to give me a call.

N. B.—Sewards' PATENT AXLE CLIPS AND YOKES, the latest and best articles in this line, in good supply.

PLEASE PAY UP!

The large expense I have incurred in the above change places me much in need of money; therefore all indebted to me will greatly oblige by promptly settling, and especially those owing long standing accounts.

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, so that one can get back the scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

A little concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of

divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	17,000
10 CASH GIFTS $10,000 each	100,000
20 CASH GIFTS 5,000 each	100,000
50 CASH GIFTS 1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS 500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS 400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS 300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS 200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS 100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS 50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS. LL CASH, amounting to	$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 11,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—as usual tickets to be received, as at the First and Second Concerts, as not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 112 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 225 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than one whole ticket at a time.

The unprecedented success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the Fifty-ninth Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars must be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from the office to all who apply as above.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventors Trade Marks & Designs
No. 76 SALE ST., OPPOSITE EDDY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States, also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with despatch. Examine into and determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and send an opinion upon the same, and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

NEVER
NEGLECT A COUGH. Nothing is more certain to lay the foundation for future evil consequences.
WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS
are a sure cure for all diseases of the Respiratory Organs, Sore Throat, Cough, Croup, Diphtheria, Asthma, Dryness of the Throat, Catarrh, Hoarseness, Windpipe, or Bronchial Tubes, and all Diseases of the Lungs.
In all cases of sudden cold, however taken, these TABLETS should be promptly used. Relief is sure. They equalize the circulation of the blood, mitigate the severity of the attack, and will, in a very short time, restore healthy action to the affected organs.
WELLS' CARBOLIC TABLETS are put up only in BLUE BOXES. Take no substitutes. If they can't be found at your druggist's, SEND AT ONCE TO THE AGENT IN NEW YORK, who will forward them by return mail.

The Great South American Blood Purifier.
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these affections; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IF SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEORSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

The Louisville Courier-Journal is facetious:—

"A youthful correspondent desires to know how we would like to sail with Professor Wise on his balloon voyage to Europe. If you will go, my dear boy, and climb the least of the many piles of twenty-dollar gold pieces that would be required to hire us to undertake such a voyage, you will find that its summit is wrapped in perpetual snow."

In the course of half an hour eleven different persons saw the umbrella, knew that its owner had lost it and wanted them to take charge of it, and carried it the length of the string only to let go of it, and wondered what the crowd was laughing at.

Motley's illness is not serious.

An earthquake occurred June 29th at Belluno, Italy. One fifth of the buildings were rendered uninhabitable and many persons were killed.

Galt's and Atlantic wharves, at Portland, with all the buildings thereon, were burned Saturday afternoon; also, steamers Montreal, Dirigo and Carlotta. Several lives were lost.

Mrs. Ann Farley, employed in a skirt factory in New Haven, became entangled by means of her hair in a shafting, and her scalp, one of her ears and a portion of the skin of her face were torn off.

Connecticut having ordained by act of Legislature that a divorced wife shall be entitled to one-third of her former husband's estate, on that individual's demise, in cases where no part of it has been set apart for her maintainance during his lifetime, the arithmetic-puzzle now arises, what shall be done in the instance of a gentlemen who, according to Connecticut customs, dies, leaving three divorced ex-partners and one undivided widow?

A party of Pawnee Indians, while hunting recently, was attacked by a large number of Sioux. The former were defeated with about one hundred killed.

The Potomac River steamer Wawasset, which ran between Washington and Lone River, was burned Friday, and between forty and fifty lives were lost. There were 117 passengers on board and a most fearful panic prevailed. The steamer was about one mile from shore when the fire was discovered, but she was run aground within two hundred yards of the Virginia shore. There were two boats on the Wawasset, but both were lost through the frenzy of the passengers, most of whom jumped overboard. None were burned to death.

The Commonwealth says that there is a rumor that Hon. F. W. Bird will seek reaffiliation with the republican party this fall, and will cooperate with General Butler in the gubernatorial canvass.

Outlaws in the Rocky mountains are attacking mail coaches and committing murders to a fearful extent. Nineteen thousand dollars was recently stolen from Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express, and on another day its treasure box with all its contents was taken.

Republicanism is gaining ground even in Kentucky. At a recent election for State treasurer and members of the Legislature there were large republican accessions in every district.

Donaldson, who is to go with Wise in the Graphic balloon, across the ocean, stipulates that he shall be the last man to leave the balloon. He says in case it becomes necessary "the three men, Wise among them, will take to the life boat, while I shall take charge of the balloon and 'go it alone.' I shall then be compelled to strip the monster of seven hundred pounds of netting, cut away the lower portion of the balloon, and with just a sufficient amount of provisions, I will erect a temporary seat fastened to the seams of the gas chamber, and make an effort to land on the other side."

A crowd of disorderly characters gathered at the canal in Newark, Sunday, and when the officers attempted to arrest two of the men they jumped into the water. The officers remained on the bank, and the men in the water until dusk, when from fifteen to twenty jumped into the canal, and the two men who had been in the water three hours came out with them. In the crowd they could not be identified, and thus escaped arrest.

Judge William H. Cooley, killed by R. Barnwell Rhett, Jr., in the late New Orleans duel, was considered one of the best story-tellers in Louisiana; and he exercised his talent to a wide circle of admiring friends. On his way to the fatal ground, the morning of the meeting, he kept those with him in the railway train in continual roars of laughter—a merry preamble, indeed, to a shocking tragedy.

Fred Anderson, a Swedish sailor, who died on board the brig Daphne on her late voyage from Boston to Lingan, had among his effects a deposit in one of the Boston savings banks. The deposit-book with his other estate has been deposited with the circuit court to await proof of his relatives, by the captain of the Daphne, recently arrived at Portsmouth from Lingan.

People in the State where temperance ideas are in the ascendancy have queer notions, as witness this from the Norristown (Pa.) Herald: "If a man must be robbed by highwaymen, Wisconsin is the place to have it done. A pair of these gentry, who were robbing a farmer, recently, held an umbrella over his head to keep the sun off while they went through him, and offered him a sip of good brandy when they had finished the job. It is believed there are men now living in local-option counties who would willingly submit to being robbed for the sake of a sip of good brandy."

State News.

The condition of Hon. John P. Hale of Dover is now more hopeful than at any other time since his recent misfortune. The fractured parts of the hip-bone seem to be slowly uniting, and there appears no reason why he may not fully rally from the prostration in which the accident left him. Of course he will remain practically crippled, but considering the nature of the accident and his age and recent state of health, even this rallying is quite remarkable, and betokens considerable vitality yet remaining.

An Unsanctified Conductor.

A very amusing incident occurred sometime last week on the Illinois Central Railroad, west of Dubuque.

The train was coming along at the rate of about twenty miles an hour, when the conductor came into one of the passenger coaches, and took a seat by the side of a sober-looking individual, with whom he soon fell to conversing. The conductor soon discovered that his fellow comrade was a minister, and he politely listened to quite an extensive and earnest sermon.

The minister seeing that his auditor was inclined to pay more than usual attention and manifest very earnest heed to his advice and his instructions, at once felt a call to make a special and personal appeal to the conductor, which also he did in the most earnest and pathetic language, which coupled with such vivid illustrations of the final doom of the careless and indifferent, seemed to carry conviction to the heart of the conductor, who hung his head and appeared to be meditating very seriously.

The perplexity and gloom which were depicted in his countenance struck the minister as a positive evidence of conviction. So he very kindly inquired if he was a sinner and in need of a savior, and added that he need not be ashamed to make the confession, as that was a necessary matter if he would obtain forgiveness.

The conductor who had not spoken for some minutes, now looked up, and with a troubled countenance said: "My friend, I will tell you the truth. I am in deep trouble, and know not how to avoid the danger that seems pending with such imminence."

Here the minister took the passive hand of the conductor and said: "That's right, my dear sir. Go on; open your heart to me. Tell all of your trouble and all will be well."

"Well, sir," replied the conductor, "I will explain to you the nature of my trouble." Then lowering his voice as though to avoid being overheard, he said: "I am conductor on this train. We are running now at the top of our speed. We are a half hour behind time, and if we increase our speed the engine must burst her boiler. Scarcely a quarter of a mile behind us is another train, which is also behind time; and being a much faster train than this, if we do not increase our speed, she will telescope this train. This, then, is my trouble. It is only a question whether we shall be telescoped or increase our rate of speed and certainly explode the engine's boiler. Which shall we do? is the question."

The minister sprung from his seat, and throwing up his hands in the most frantic manner fairly yelled, "Burst her boiler! For heaven's sake burst her boiler!"

The conductor vanished from the car, and the minister, believing that his last moments were drawing nigh, fell upon his knees, and had just begun saying his prayers when the locomotive whistled down brakes, and the train gradually and quietly rolled up to the station and came to a full stop. The minister got off the cars and was not inclined to resume his journey until the joke was explained, when some muttered sentences escaped him which were not distinctly understood, but which sounded like that often used by railroad men, and sometimes by conductors.

Wasted Sympathy.

[N. Y. Sun.]

One day recently a respectably dressed man carried a well-grown child, muffled up and apparently sick, into French's Hotel. He placed the child on the stairs and began to talk to it in a very unkind, rough way. The attention of the guests was attracted, and they gathered around.

"You are able to walk up stairs by yourself," the man said, "and I won't carry you."

"Oh, oh," the child sobbed, "do carry me up: please, pa, do. You know, ever since I was run over by the car and lost both my feet, I can't walk up stairs alone."

"That's all stuff," the man answered; "get up at once, or I'll make you."

The poor child began to sob worse than before, and the brutal man gave it a severe thump over the side of the head. The child moaned piteously. The indignation of the by-standers was excited, and one of them said to the man, "Is that child yours?"

"What's that to you?" the man answered, "I won't tell you."

"He's—my—father," the child sobbed, "and—he—killed—my— mother—just—as he—is—agoing—to—kill—me."

The man doubled his fist and made as though he was about to give the child a savage blow. One of the by-standers interfered and said, "say, if you don't stop this I'll call a policeman. I never saw such a brutal father in all my life."

The man began to fumble in his pockets, and the child cried out, "Take care; he's got a knife. He is agoing to stick you."

Sure enough the man produced a knife, and opened it. The crowd slipped off one by one, except two.

"Bring an officer," one of these cried to a friend.

"If I am arrested," the man said, "it shall be for something," and thereupon he plunged the knife into the body of the child. The child shrieked, "I'm murdered, I'm murdered," and a crowd rushed to the spot. The man quietly raised the child in his arms, and removing his hat, said: "Gentlemen, this is a wooden child. I'm a ventriloquist, and any little offering you may be pleased to make will be very acceptable."

—James Turner, of Clay county, Ky., last week released the spirit of the thirteenth person with whom he had difficulties. He is now languishing in confinement, with a fair prospect of furnishing a country holiday some time this fall.

Queen Victoria is said to have been much annoyed at the Shah's kiss. She had only to have held up her hands and John Brown would have bounced him.

In the Shadow of Death.

Mr. John W. Van Brocklin of Twin Bridges, was helping to build a church at Sheridan, O., and was away from home from Monday morning till Saturday night. He had been several weeks so occupied. He was therefore absent from his wife and two little children, the eldest five years old, all the week, except Saturday nights, and Sundays. Mrs. Van Brocklin and the children enjoyed good health, and the husband and father had no fear for the safety of the birds in the home nest. There were near neighbors too. On Saturday evening the two children used to toddle a good distance along the road by which their father came, to meet him and get a ride home in his wagon.

On a late Saturday, Mr. Van Brocklin was returning home as usual, and the two little fellows had gone quite a distance to meet him. He stopped to take them into the wagon, and as he lifted them up he asked, "How is mamma?" Two little voices replied, "Oh papa, mamma's dead." He thought he did not hear correctly and asked again. "Your mamma!" The little voices again chimed together, "Yes, papa, mama's dead in the bed." Van Brocklin hurried his team home. He found his wife indeed in bed insensible, and fast sinking in death. She was there alone; no neighbors were near. He called loudly for help; the neighbors were alarmed; a doctor was summoned, but before he arrived the poor woman had passed away. The doctor said her attack was of a paralytic nature. This is the children's story, gathered from them by odds and ends:

On Thursday evening Mrs. Van Brocklin called her children to her and told them she was sick, and to run and call the nearest neighbor. Then she fell down on the bed. She never said anything more to them, and they at first supposed she was asleep. It was growing dark, and they were afraid to go for the neighbor. They slept in their clothes and tried to awaken their mother in the morning, but she would not rouse. They ate what they could find cooked in the house, and drove up the cows morning and evening to be milked, but there was nobody to milk them, and at the usual time they turned them out into the pasture again. The neighbors seeing the children at the usual tasks, supposed, of course that it was all right with them at home, and it so happened that none of them called. The oldest child began to be a little frightened, and suggested to the other: "What if mamma should be dead. She must be dead, or she would wake up," and so the little boys came to the conclusion that their mother had gone away from them, and wondered what papa would say when he heard of it. Their curiosity on this point was excited, and, with their hearts full of news, they started out to meet their father coming home in his wagon. They had been forty-eight hours with the shadow of death in the house and were not old enough to realize what it meant.

How It Feels.

Mr. Henry M. Putney, employed on the editorial staff of the Mirror, had a very narrow escape from death by lightning on the 10th, at Kensington. After interviewing the lightning he returned to Manchester and attempted to resume his duties, but found that he was so nearly sick from the effects of the "powers of the air" that he has had to go home.

Here is his own description of the affair:

"Where you ever struck by lightning? If not don't hesitate to own it, and trust to us to tell you "how it feels:—"

On a sultry Sundry, under the shade of a spreading maple in your host's dooryard, trying to catch the weak sea breeze and watching a gathering shower, leaning against the tree you sit—ten feet away you lie. It is all at once—there is neither space nor time in the passage. A million infinitessimal needles are darting through your veins and losing themselves in your extremities, eight hundred galvanic batteries are running on double time in your head, your joints crackle and snap, your bones seem charged with a force that is bursting them, and by the time friends pick you up you think you are an Atlantic cable with twenty President's messages running through you. Then, for days afterwards, that fearful snap is ringing in your ears—every time you move, your joints seem to be separating and your flesh creeping off your bones, and you look carefully to see if you have not resolved your body into its original elements—gone to pieces

"All at once and nothing first,
Just as bubbles do when they burst."

Then your stomach seems to be crawling up to swallow your heart, and your heart appears to have swallowed your stomach, and it's uncomfortable everyway. But when you learn that the lightning went straight down the tree on the opposite side from you, shivering the bark and boring a hole among the roots, you feel thankful that there are two sides to a tree, and go off hunting for a lightning rod man who will point you up at 25 cents per foot, and if you are the philosopher you ought to be, congratulate yourself that "it's not as bad as it might be."

She Gracefully Retired.

[Lebanon (Ind.) Herald.]

We gently, and, as it were, unconsciously, pushed a paper weight toward the end of the table where she sat. Directly it attracted her attention. She looked at it, took it up, looked more earnestly, and then, laying it gently down, she calmly rose, gathered her ample skirts about her, and straightway took her leave, not even saying good-bye. Certainly nothing was further from our intention than to give offense. We merely wished to attract her attention to the paper weight as a work of art. We regard it as a fine work of art, and value it solely for that reason—but the effect it has on some visitors is remarkable and inexplicable. It is a small slab of crystal, through which may be seen a sketch representing a skeleton, surrounded by this legend: "This unfortunate editor was talked to death."

Timber For Ties.

[St. Louis Democrat.]

The railroads of this country must, sooner or later, turn their attention to the question of timber supply for their own use. Already wood has become dearer than coal for locomotives on most of the great roads on account of the item of hauling by teams to the stations. Ten years ago a coal-burning locomotive was a rarity in the West, if not in the country; now the wood-burners are the exception. But the most important decrease to be feared is in the kind of timber suitable for ties—oak or locust. The latter is considered the most durable, but the best of either must be renewed every eight years. For every thousand miles of railroad there must be a hundred and twenty-five miles of ties cut every year. Mr. Talmage, Superintendent of the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, has been considering this matter, and has ordered an immense area along the line of his road to be immediately planted with locusts, either from the seed or from young trees. He intends to make this a permanent part of the business of the road and its employes in sections of country in which it is possible; and he believes that other lines will have to start "locust farms" before long, also.

A Tennessee Horror.

A negro named Dan Calhoun, who had been digging a well near Brighton station on the Paducah Railroad, lay down to sleep near his work. While sleeping he was discovered by three men, who thinking to have some fun as they afterwards stated, poured the contents of a bottle of turpentine on Calhoun's clothes and set them on fire. Calhoun awaking and finding himself enveloped in flames, ran shrieking for help, and before he could be caught by citizens was so badly burned that he died next day. The negroes in the neighborhood of Covington heard of the horrible affair, and in vain attempted to have warrants issued for the arrest of the perpetrators of the crime, when becoming alarmed, fled. The negroes in armed squads scoured the woods in search of them, and becoming enraged threatened other citizens, but were quieted by Sheriff Locke, who promised to make every effort for their capture.

Sharp Practice.

Such Chicago boys as take it into their heads to do wickedly are fellows of infinite resource, as shown by the case of Elijah Harris, arrested for highway robbery and temporarily lodged in jail for the want of bail in the sum of $1000, which was more money than he had about him, though he was by no means penniless. This condition characterized another wicked boy of about Elijah's size, who was put in the cell with him preparatory to being taken to a place to "work out" a five dollar fine. So the two exchanged clothes, and Elijah went off to the workhouse next morning, paid the five dollar fine and escaped, whereupon the other boy disclosed the trick, and demanded his freedom, offering to pay his fine with the money which Elijah had considerately left for that purpose.

A Babe Dies from Fright.

The Boston Herald asserts that an infant only five days old died from fright at Newtonville, Mass., on the 7th, under the following circumstances: "On that evening a very large thunder-storm prevailed in this vicinity, and at each report of the thunder the babe jumped spasmodically, and gave every evidence of thorough fright possible in so young an infant. At last a terrific clap came, the child's limbs twitched convulsively, and it died instantly. The lightning struck a house only a few rods distant, but it is not thought that the electricity had any effect upon the child, for it was not felt by any others."

Oh! Shah!

[Cincinnati Times.]

When the Shah was asked what in London he liked best, he is reported to have answerd: "The stars you put under your lamps at night." Of course he referred to the ballet-girls.

—His name was Baumgardner. He was going down to Cape May on the steamboat, and on the way his tooth began to ache in the most frightful manner. Unable to endure the pain any longer, he determined to have the tooth removed summarily. So Baumgardner got a bit of copper wire from the engineer and twisted one end around his tooth, and when the boat stopped at New Castle he fastened the other end of the wire to the walking-beam of the engine, and waited for the jerk that would remove the tooth. That end of the beam, however, was on the down stroke, and the first thing Mr. Baumgardner knew he was proceeding to the boiler-room with frightful rapidity. The next instant he was hauled aloft suddenly and his feet flung upwards into the air. Then he dived down again, then up, then down, bumping against the wood-work, rasping his legs on the rail, scalping himself against the machinery, and plunging about in the most appalling manner, until on a final upstroke the tooth gave way, and Baumgardner was flung to the summit of the smoke-stack, whence he was rescued by the captain, who was going to thrash him for stopping the draft. He is said to have remarked to the landlord upon his arrival at Cape May, that while the low pressure steam engine is undoubtedly a useful invention, its application in the practice of the science of dentistry would be calculated to prejudice the public mind against it.

—An exchange says: "All of those long letters in the newspapers about bringing up children, how to have healthy babes, and all of that, are written by Miss Snoosan Banthony, Hail Gamilton, Fate Kield, and other experienced matrons, who have not been married, but think they know how it is themselves."

—If your errand boy takes an unusually long time to bring your morning mail from the post-office, don't reprove him for being slow until you find out how many postal cards he has had to read.

—Jardon is the name of the Virginia lawyer who wanted to look into Kate Stoddard's clear blue eyes and defend her. His wife has been photographing a broom upon the retina of his optics since he made the avowal.

Business Notices.

☞ Little is left to be wished for by those who quarter at the American House, Boston, by the late improvements. Everything is fresh and nice, and the unequaled management of the past is continued.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. It taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. ta28

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

A Critical Season.

Toward the close of the season the long-continued heat begins to tell upon body and mind. Both become exhausted, and we feel instinctively that nature, after fighting a gallant battle with a debilitating temperature, is drooping at last, and requires to be stimulated and reinforced. This, therefore, is a period of the year when a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is especially useful. The immediate effect of this unequalled vegetable restorative is to strengthen the stomach, sharpen the appetite, tone and regulate the bowels, and give steadiness and vigor to the nerves. As a preventive of the endemic and epidemic complaints that prevail at this season, and as a remedy for indigestion, liver disturbances, nervous debility, constipation, languor, headache, and all irregularities of the bowels, this pure and wholesome vegetable tonic and alterative has no equal among medicines.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. ta6

ORCUTT'S RELIABLE LIGHTNING RODS.

These rods have been in use more than thirty years, on the best buildings in the country, such as the Public Buildings of the city of Boston, and other cities and towns, many buildings of Harvard College and other institutions of learning; Bunker Hill Monument, State Houses in Boston and Montpelier, Vt., very many United States buildings, including Powder Magazines and Shell Houses from Maine to Virginia, Churches of all directions, as also all classes of dwellings, barns, etc., etc.,

And in every instance have afforded Complete Protection,

although buildings with other rods have been injured or destroyed, and persons both injured and killed; especially was this so the past season. This notice is to strengthen the confidence of those having Orcutt's Reliable Rods, and to solicit orders from those who wish to feel secure during thunder storms.

No solicitors employed. Orders received at office or by mail, and rods applied according to the requirements of each building. WM. A. ORCUTT, Grapes That Are Sour.

[Portsmouth Times.]

Phew-ew-w! Just hear them, will you? The Journal begins as follows: "Another government office wanted—the CHRONICLE has another editor." That was rather severe, but just, nevertheless, when we remember that certainly three of the CHRONICLE's numerous corps of editors and reporters are drawing fat salaries from the government and it has just announced that another editor has been engaged. But the CHRONICLE seems to feel sore, for it retorts by saying: "Gentleman wanted—to edit the Journal." Shall we have pistols and coffee?

Our neighbor of the Times might be enabled to tell the truth with proper practice. But one of the "editors and reporters" of the CHRONICLE draws a salary from government—and that isn't at all "fat"—while every resident editor of the Journal has been a candidate for office within the past five months. Want of success has probably soured their lacteal supply, and they could not welcome our new associate without showing their teeth. Our neighbor of the Times can have his coffee at the Rockingham, and his pistols by way of State, Chestnut and Warren streets! But can he expect his sore-head neighbors to show more courage than himself? Did pistols and coffee suggest themselves to him when he swallowed our daily compliments without reference to explosives?

The U. S. S. Monongahela, having been thoroughly "repaired" at the navy yard, is now receiving the finishing touches in her fitting out for sea. She is a fine-looking ship, and though she came here a wreck she will depart as serviceable and formidable a vessel of her class and size as the United States navy can boast. Her history is a peculiar one, she having experienced adventures uncommon to ships of war, or to any other kind.

After her completion at the Philadelphia yard she took part in several engagements of the late war; and afterwards while under command of Capt. Bissell, was wrecked at St. Thomas, in the West Indies, by the great tidal (or earthquake) wave which created such a disturbance there, and which carried her high and dry upon the land, over the coral reefs, and deposited her hundreds of feet from high-water mark, where her safety as a summer residence was much superior to her usefulness as a man-o'-war.

Had the Monongahela been a merchant ship she would undoubtedly have been at once abandoned to the underwriters, if insured, and if not insured, would probably have been burned where she laid, or broken up, for her metal; certainly her sailing days would have been over. But she was a national ship, and national and naval pride determined to float her again, in spite of all obstacles and at whatever cost The difficulties to be overcome seemed insurmountable, but Uncle Sam's credit is good, and where there's a will (well backed pecuniarily) there's a way; and after the ship had remained a short time in her strange quarters the government decided to send out an expedition to again launch her. For this purpose Naval Constructor Thomas Davidson, Jr., and Foreman Shipwright Wm. F. Noyes, were sent out with a gang of men from this navy yard; and after immense labor and not a few hardships, and facing unharmed the dangers of yellow fever and other diseases incident to the climate, they had the satisfaction of seeing the vessel once more riding at her anchors, on the waters of the bay whose treacherous waves had played her such a rough practical joke many months before. We have been told that on her long and weary way to the beach the vessel travelled along the main street of the town of St. Thomas, and that houses were moved back out of the way, at different points, to give the huge mass of wood and metal room to pass.

It was a great triumph of skill and perseverance to have got the vessel afloat; but she was still only a wreck, the hull having been so badly strained and twisted by the rough usage she received when she first took a stroll inland, and by her subsequent overland return to the sea, that very extensive repairs were necessary before she would again be fit for service; and accordingly, soon after her safe arrival at New York, she was sent to this station to be thoroughly renovated.

Repairs were commenced upon her in September, 1870. In November of the same year she was taken into the dry dock and hauled out upon the land by the hydraulic engine, the exact time occupied in hauling her out being three hours and thirty minutes; and having been almost entirely rebuilt, and had most of her frames replaced with live oak, she was again set afloat in September, 1872. Having received a new set of boilers, spars and rigging, she was once more docked in May of the present year, to have her two-bladed propeller exchanged for a four-bladed one, experience having demonstrated, some years ago, that the latter has a decided advantage over the former; and she was then treated to still another launch. She is now in condition to receive her officers and crew, having been inspected by the Secretary of the Navy and several chiefs of bureau, who pronounced her to have been made better than when new, and were warm in their praise of the excellent and workmanlike manner in which she has been completed, which reflects much credit on Naval Constructor Webb, Assistant Constructor Hichborn and all others associated with them in her repairs.

The Monongahela is a second-rate steam sloop of war, having a displacement of 2100 tons, and a tonage of 960. She is estimated to have a speed of nine knots under steam, and carries 350 tons of coal, which, with full sail power, will allow her to make a voyage around the world, if required. Her armament consists of eight 9-inch broadside guns, two 11-inch pivot guns, and one 60-pounder rifle on the forecastle.

Her destination is the South Pacific station, and she will be commanded by Capt. J. S. Thornton, of "Kearsarge" fame, whose numerous friends will wish him a pleasant cruise and safe return. She will probably leave here about Sept. 1st, it being understood that her officers are to report on the 15th instant.

Ship Grandee will be launched from the yard of Tobey & Littlefield at Noble's Island this afternoon at two o'clock.

J. C. Butler's excursion to Star island takes place to-morrow in steamer Major, leaving Portsmouth at 11 o'clock. Tickets, good for any trip during the day, 75 cents.

The Knights of Pythias go to Boston from here, to-morrow morning, accompanied by the Marine Band, leaving for Newmarket Junction in a special train at 5.30, A. M., and going from there in the first up train on the Roston & Maine Railroad, making the trip 50 cents per head cheaper than by the Eastern Railroad.

The new building of the Mechanics' Association is to be in line with the Franklin House and Bell Tavern block and will have a frontage of 54 feet and a depth of 50 feet. This will leave 35 feet depth for yard room. Our citizens will be pleased that the entrance to Beacham's stable from Congress street is closed, a better one having been provided on Fleet street.

Proposals were opened at the bureau of construction and repairs of the Navy Department, Thursday, for the construction, including all the materials, except live oak timber, of a steam sloop-of-war of 640 tons, complete for sea service. The bids ranged from $185,000 to $148,000 and were from New York, Boston and Philadelphia. Of the two new sloops-of-war to be built here, one is to be constructed at the Navy Yard and one by contract with private parties.

The manufacture of ginger ale and pop beer has developed extensively in charge of Mr. C. E. Boynton at the Bow street manufactory. Some prejudice against these beverages has been felt because it has been reported that vitriol was used in their manufacture. The fact is that vitriol is used in manufacturing the carbonic acid with which soda is charged. The soda is then bottled, sweetened and corked by a machine. The process is simple and interesting. Mr. Boynton has the credit of preparing the most agreeable temperance beverage sold in Portsmouth, and we are glad to say, has a constantly increasing demand for its sale.

The New York Graphic is responsible for the following:—

The announcement of Ben Butler's latest movements shows that Rye Beach is not the place for those seeking seclusion, for there is the Little Boar's headquarters.

—The following comes from the Springfield Union: A gentleman of Boston had a son-in-law who was a preacher. He secured his settlement over one of the city churches. He was a feeble preacher, and the congregation soon got tired of him, and a parish meeting was called for a change. The parish voted by pews, and there was one majority for retaining the pastor. Upon inquiry, it was ascertained that the thrifty father-in-law had bought up all the cheap pews in the gallery and elsewhere, and had actually secured a majority of votes. A committee waited upon Mr. A., and remonstrated with him on keeping a preacher in the pulpit so distasteful to the congregation. He replied: "Gentlemen, I know my son-in-law is not much of a preacher, but my position is purely a business one. I have got him on my hands with my daughter, and must support him. All the assistance I can get of you, gentlemen, is so much clear gain."

STOVES OF ALL KINDS,
TIN, JAPANNED & GLASS WARE,
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,
FARM & GARDEN TOOLS, &C.

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the

"NEW AMERICAN,"

improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a good stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am sorting up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

Iron, Steel, Bolts, Nuts, Axles and Boxes, Horse-Shoe Forms, Horse-Shoe Nails, &c., &c.,

Will find it for their interest to give me a call.

N. B.—Seward's PATENT AXLE CLIPS AND YOKES, the latest and best articles in this line, in good supply.

PLEASE PAY UP!

The large expense I have incurred in the above change places me much in need of money; therefore all indebted to me will greatly oblige by promptly settling, and especially those owing long standing accounts.

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT,		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT,		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT,		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT,		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT,		17,000
10 CASH GIFTS	$10,000 each	100,000
30 CASH GIFTS	2,000 each	150,000
50 CASH GIFTS	1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS	500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 224 Tickets for $5,000; 112 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unprecedented success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who love to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY, SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the above. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

AARON H. HILL, President, JOHN CHRISTIE, Treas.

THIS Bank pays five per cent. per annum, free of all tax. A greater rate is prohibited by law.

Two dividends are made in the year,—in June and December; and an extra dividend of the surplus earnings every two years. The first extra will be in June, 1874.

Deposits go on interest on the FIRST day of every MONTH, and deposits made during the FIRST THREE days of each MONTH will draw interest from the FIRST day of that MONTH.

Dividends not withdrawn will be added to the principal, and draw interest from the time when declared.

Money is received on deposit, payable on checks at sight.

Portsmouth, Jan. 1, 1873.

The Great South American Blood Purifier.
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and renover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUANT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Rev. Butler's Chances.
[Commercial Advertiser.]

Note the vote of Massachusetts for several years past:

	Rep.	Dem.	Labor.
1868	136,477	59,408	—
1869	75,106	50,701	13,563
1870	79,549	48,632	19,020
1871	75,120	47,725	6,849
1872	133,472	59,200	—

Now note one or two facts in the foregoing table. Note, first, the uniformity of the democratic vote, whether the election be for President or in the "off years." There is a change of but some 11,000, less than a fifth of the whole. Note next the immense vote of the republicans when the contest is heated, as in '68 and '72, and mark the average reduction of 60,000—nearly one-half—in the other years. Observe, further, that a half of the republican vote is larger than the highest democratic vote in the years when the canvass has been excited. Let Butler be nominated, and Washburne be put in the field, and a democrat besides, and the General would walk over the course. Nor can the republicans be carried over to a democrat, pure and simple. A few maddened bolters might so vote, but the masses of the party cannot be stirred. Their staying power was illustrated last year. Ben. Butler is likely to be next Governor of Massachusetts, unless defeated at the primaries.

Desire of Infancy.
[New York Graphic.]

Colonel Alexander, the President of the Equitable Insurance Company, and the father of all the children in Saratoga, tells this about little Johnny's artless innocence to-day:

"See itty dackass, mamma, stan'in' all loney in the picur!" said little two-year-old Johnny to his mother.

"Yes, dear."

"O, mamma, nursey been tellin' Donney all about itty dackass. He han't any mammy to make him dood, an' no kind nursey 't all. Poor itty dackass hasn't dot no Bidzet to dess him c'ean an' nice, an' he hasn't any overtoat yike Donney's 't all. Oo solly, mamma?"

"Yes, dear, I am very sorry. Poor itty dackass! Dot nobody 't all to turl his hair pritty, bas he, Donney? an' he hasn't dot no soos or tockies on his foots. Dot to yun an' tick all day in e dirt. Tan't ever be put to seepy in his itty beddy 't all, an'—"

"O, mamma!" interrupted Johnny.

"What, baby?"

"I wiss I was a itty dackass."

OF
WILD CHERRY!
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR
CONSUMPTION!
And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all
LUNG COMPLAINTS.
This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of
COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.
CONSUMPTION
CURED
By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.
Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry
Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.
CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,
And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

Daily Chronicle.

TUESDAY, AUGUST 12, 1873.

Well Named.

Officer Alvah Cloutman, of the Boston police, is well named. On a recent Sunday he was detailed to maintain the peace and protect the peaceable on Long Island, in Boston harbor, and in pursuance of his duties he found it necessary to interfere with the amusement of a crowd of drunken roughs, who were having a good time insulting and abusing a party of women and children. The brave fellows immediately turned upon Mr. Cloutman, who promptly clouted one man over the head with his club, after which he clouted another man, and followed it up by clouting some more men. The braves, disgusted at finding themselves confronted by a determined man, able and charmingly willing to break their worthless skulls, instead of by a lot of helpless and terrified women and children, soon gave up the sport and left the officer and his club masters of the battle-field. But two of the defeated ones, named J. M. Flynn and F. M. Hughes, the latter a Boston councilman, anxious for revenge on the man who had proved them as much cowards as they had shown themselves bullies, entered complaints against Mr. Cloutman, and the committee on police of the Boston city government have tried the case, and decided that the officer was fully just fied in using his club, but that he used more muscle than was necessary. But the energetic officer was neither dismissed nor suspended, nor even reprimanded for his excessive expenditure of physical power, unless an order to the chief of police "to caution officer Cloutman against the use of his club hereafter, except in cases of great emergency," can be called a reprimand.

We fancy this decision of the committee will be of more service in checking cowardly ruffianism around Boston than a dozen extra police; and we agree that a police officer, in a fight with thieves, drunken roughs or other criminals, should never use his club "except in cases of great emergency," that is, after he has emptied every chamber of his revolver. A policeman beset by bullies has no right to use his club so long as his ammunition holds out.

Boston Correspondence.

BOSTON, Aug. 9, 1873.

After several weeks' experience as to the suffering incurred by the dwellers in the torrid zone, Bostonians have enjoyed a week of delightful weather. Those who have missed our cool nights and clear days include the vast throng that have added to the crowds at mountain and beach. The steady heat of July rapidly depopulated the city of those able to leave business or home for a while. Churches are closed to a great extent;—the theatres two-thirds still running. The "world's people" are scarcely so timorous of heat as those claiming a higher mission. Eastward bound trains still carry large quantities of baggage. Most of the travel comes from the westward, Boston being well drained. By the way, the managers of the Eastern road may well congratulate themselves on the admirable manner in which that line transported the crowds prior to and since the 4th ult.

I notice an odd hat of Sandwich Island manufacture, at the old house of Shute & Son, 173 Washington street. It is made of large reeds, but is light and decidedly (k)"nobby" for seaside or mountain wear.

The city fathers are having a large new house erected for the deer on the common. I fancy the little triangular inclosure is a "dear" park in reality as well as in name. A constant conundrum to the minds of many is, "what becomes of the increase of the petted venison confined therein?" The spotted beauties are to be seen at all seasons of the year sporting around the limited grounds—not a tithe in extent of the base ball ground; but yet, from year to year, there seems to be no increase in the general number.

Business drives but few people crazy, at present; at least, not in this vicinity. Picnics, excursions, encampments, and the like, are the most engrossing topics. Sewall, Day & Co., the great cordage makers, gave their employees a trip down the harbor to-day, with band of music, and all desired requisites for a nice time. These courtesies from employer to the employed are never lost, and form one of the pleasantest features of business life.

Retail trade goes on fairly in the great thoroughfares, owing to the stream of strangers passing through the city. Some articles seem to me very arbitrary in price, according to location. For instance, a two-button kid glove will cost from $1.50 to $1.88 on Winter street or Temple Place, while a very nice two-button glove may be had for $1 of C. A. Bergland, the well-known Swedish agent on Staniford street. The cheap labor in Sweden may account for a portion of this discrepancy.

The water supply, Miller's river, Ben Butler, and the new State "cops," are the only items of interest, but they all hang fire, something after the style of your own Fleet street improvement in years past.

The public library is an enigma to the absent sons. M.

—A young man in Detroit having, by careful economy, saved $200, with a natural dread of banks, deposited it, in bills, in an old pair of boots in one corner of his room. In the course of a few days his mother was struck with the untidy appearance of his chamber and in the era of reform which she instituted threw the boots into a back alley. There his father saw them and forthwith put them into a manure box behind the barn until he could get time to cut the tops off. That same evening some one stole the box and its contents, and when the boy visited his room and rapidly pursued an investigation he only satisfied himself that he was again penniless.

Readables.

The loss by the Portland fire is estimated at about half a million. The only grain elevator in the city was consumed, and the steamers Dirigo, Carlotta and Montreal were destroyed, and the Atlantic, Halifax and Galt's wharves ruined. One of the saddest features of the fire is the loss of life. How many persons were drowned is not yet known. Five are already known to be drowned—the colored stewardess of the Dirigo and her little girl, the assistant engineer, Frank Taylor, a stevedore named Matteson, and an Irish girl named Nellie McCarthy, all of whom leaped from the Dirigo into the dock, and could not be rescued. Several others jumped into the water and were picked up.

Boston had another destructive fire, Monday. Sewall, Day & Co.'s rope manufactory was destroyed, the fire breaking out about 1 P. M. The insurance on the entire property is stated by the firm at about $100,000, which will in all probability cover the loss.

The investigation into the Wawasset disaster on the Potomac shows that although the steamer was well provided with life preservers, they were stowed away where they were unavailable in the emergency which arose, and were therefore useless. The latest account states that fully seventy lives were lost. The crowning disgrace of the calamity is the fact that a coroner's jury has whitewashed the officers of the steamer.

The steamship Alabama, from Glasgow for New York, which has been reported lost, was spoken on the 5th, a considerable distance west of the locality where the wrecked matter, supposed to have been from that vessel, was discovered. Steamships Ernest Moritz Arndt is also reported safe.

Chess and Billiards.

[Golden Age.]

Among set games, two appear to reign prominent, chess and billiards. The world has set its seal of approval upon chess long since. It is a quiet, intellectual pastime against which, when not played for money, not the shadow of an objection can rationally be raised. Its votaries have been wont to claim it as a means of mental discipline second to none. It has been likened to mathematics and to military strategy; certainly it resembles both, but, for that very reason, is the less a game. The worker with the brain will find, after an exhausting day, that chess is not precisely the sort of relaxation which refreshes him best—especially when played by strict rule, as it ought always to be. Another circumstance about chess (what, with most, will detract from its allurements) is the fact that the game has become so stereotyped in its openings as to be too much a matter of rote. With a less enviable reputation than chess, but superior to it as a pastime, is billiards. The two games present an almost exact contrast, one to the other. The one is played by the brain, the other with the hand slightly controlled by the brain. In this distinction the reason is apparent why the former amusement is ranked above the latter. And yet there may be a little prejudice in it. Billiards is really a beautiful game, and, unlike chess, is sociable in its nature. The effects of motion which a skillful player can produce upon the smooth-running balls are, without exaggeration, wonderful; and the removal of the last vestiges of prejudice against billiards will be a social benefit.

—John W. Young, who was arrested at Northampton the other day, for forging postal money orders, stumped the State of Illinois for Grant last year, and of course was rewarded with a place in the Chicago post office. He improved his opportunities there by contriving the little game which he has worked successfully for about a month. He served impartially on both sides, it appears, during the rebellion, and has since figured in the Mexican struggle and as an insurgent in Cuba. He married an heiress in Chicago last year, and has reached the penitentiary at the age of 35. He has prominent hazel eyes, light brown hair, a light moustache shading a full mouth, makes the most of his height of five feet four, and carries a gold-headed cane. His habits are excellent; he never drinks anything stronger than tea.

—A young lady who jots locals, often quite wittily, for the Holyoke Transcript, says:—"We suppose Providence has an eye out for the little boys and girls that play on the track of the Holyoke and Westfield railroad, and make play-houses under the coal-cars, but if one of them belonged to us, and we were looking out for a staff for our declining years, we wouldn't leave quite so much for Providence to do."

The Festive Fly.

An exchange thus relives its mind on a seasonable subject:—Whether the fly was cotemporaneous with the original monkey-man Darwin could tell—if he would. Our opinion is that no man-monkey, or monkey-man, pollywog-man, nor any other man, was ever permitted on earth without his attendant fly. Whether flies disported themselves in the paleozoicers, or came out at the drift formation, is of no consequence. We have flies in abundance now, and that is all—more than—we care to know. There are many families of flies; but the kind whereof we now discourse is waggishly termed the "house fly." We view it as the "everywhere fly." It is of the sect insect. It disports in the air, perambulates the earth, and dives in the water. It has a head which is all cerebellum, which accounts for its insatiable animal propensities. Its body is shaped like a military shell. It has a miniature trunk, on elephant principles—six legs, six feet, two wings and several thousands of eyes. Viewed by a microscope, it is highly curious and interesting; but a telescope view is far preferable.

Its principal occupation is looking into matters and things generally; but it prefers to do this particularly. Hence its thousands of eyes. It has an appetite for all devourable things. Hence its trunk. It is of pertinacious habits. Hence its fees are on the suction principle. Just what the fly was made for—why so many were made—whence they come or whither they go—is a mystery. How long they live no philosopher has yet determined. They are more numerous than the sands of a dozen seas, and cause more torment and more "shotted discourses" than all other human afflictions. This is written under shadows cast by clouds of flies, and we speak of what we do know.

If to be cursed by flies was not in the primeval doom, we feel assured that Adam and Eve went straight from Paradise into a swarm of flies. Snakes may be scared away or destroyed, but flies never. Lions and tigers and other fierce animals flee from the presence of man. Flies stick to him and follow him to the ends, the middle and the sides of the earth. There is a sportive manner they have in lighting on one's forehead, and cheeks, and hands, and nose, that is not merely insulting; it is positively infuriating. No arithmetical rule ever yet laid down would estimate the number of whangs and expletives which have been drawn from the race of men by flies. It is harrowing to reflect upon the amount of sinful and unholy condition of the human mind, which has been directly provoked by this supreme-est tormentor of our race.

Even as we write, under the fitful glare from the midnight's kerosene, three flies are perched upon the mouth of our ink-bottle, smelling and peering with the evident purpose to know "all about it." But our design in these lucubrations is purely benevolent; ingenuity has devised ways to keep the cold out, and to keep it in; to exclude the heat, and to prevent its escape. But flies defy human skill. They come and never leave until they are glaciated by the frost. The ridiculous devices of fly-paper, molasses shingles and other puny pretences, only prove the hopelessness of all attempts to reduce the fly multitudes. As well catch a barrel of herrings, and talk of thus extirpating that finny infinitism, as hope to escape a billion of flies by destroying a pint or two of them. They were never made that man should subdue them. The fly, alone, scorns and defies his dominion.

But there is a successful way of clearing a room of flies which it is our benevolent purpose herein to communicate. Thus: Procure two large sheets. No washing is necessary. Starch or otherwise stiffen the sheets thus procured stiffly, so that they will give out a "crinkly" sound like unto fair Julia's Sunday skirts. Take one sheet thus procured, and thus made stiff, in each hand—after having put aside tables, chairs and all other impediments to free gymnastics and acrobatics; place yourself at one end of the room, commence to whirl and thrash the stiffened sheets about in your most vigorous and energetic manner, steadily advancing to the further end of the room; then wheel quickly and make your return march, continuing your whirling and thrashing of the stiffened sheets; and thus persevere. The affright which will pervade the breast of every fly in that room will rejoice your heart, strengthen your arm, and inspire you with joyous courage.

You will observe, at your first wheel, that as many flies have slipped to your rear as were at first in front. This call for fresh whirling and thrashing will arouse your resolution anew, and continue to do so as the work in hand progresses. Stick to your endeavor if you would triumph; and if the door has been open the meanwhile, and your muscle is enduring, at the end of half an hour or so you will have the satisfaction to perceive that a dozen, or two dozen, possibly, of the aforesaid flies will have tired of the sport, and retired to the adjoining premises. The remaining five thousand will evidently be sorry when the fun is over. This is the best plan to drive flies ever known—and it is not patented, though patentable.

—The Troy Whig reports a curious accident that happened on Ida Hill, which overlooks that city. A young girl some fourteen years old having a great fondness for picnics and evening entertainments, her father shut her in her room and tied her by both arms and legs. Thus she remained for two weeks. On Monday afternoon, with her limbs still shackled, she fell from a window in the third story of the house to the sidewalk, a distance of about twenty feet. The fall was broken, however, by an awning, upon which she struck and then rolled off to the street. She was picked up by the driver of a grocery wagon who happened to be passing at the time, and carried into the house, where it was found that her injuries were not necessarily fatal. She says the fall was accidental, but a suicidal attempt is hinted at.

Beating the Bell Punch.

A Massachusetts newspaper thus amusingly refers to the "latest Boston notion" of securing the honesty of horse-car conductors by a mechanical device:

"It is reported that the Metropolitan Horse Railroad of Boston will soon discard the bell-punches with which its conductors have been supplied of late. The experience of a year is said to show increased receipts of some twelve thousand dollars, but this has been more than swallowed up by the cost of using the punches, as the inventor, does not sell them, but rents them to the road at a stated per diem for each punch. Few patrons of the road probably know why the tickets are printed on such thick paper, resembling blotting-board. One who professes to know says that it is to circumvent a device of the conductors for 'beating the bell-punch.' When the tickets were printed on thin paper, this expert says, the conductor would often take four or five at a time from a party of that number, and, folding or laying them one upon the other, would punch all five (if that were the number) at once. This would leave five of the round pieces punched from the tickets in the receptacle inside the punch, while the bell would only be struck once, and the dial indicator would register but one. Now, as the number of punchings in the receptacle, the number registered on the dial indicator and the number of fares turned in by the conductor must agree, the conductor has a ticket to show for each of the punchings, but the number on the dial indicator is four short. Accordingly, the next four cash fares he receives, he works the punch, and rings the bell four times, but without punching the 'trip-slip' which makes the dial indicator, the punching and the tickets balance, while he pockets the four cash fares. The present tickets being on thick paper, it is impossible to put more than one, or at most two thicknesses into the jaws of the punch at once, and this ingenious game is defeated."

The Wonderful Virtues of Ink.

[Hartford Courant.]

No fluid, water perhaps excepted, has so benefited the world as ink. It has been the medium through which the great thoughts of all the ages have been preserved and disseminated, the discovery by which the art preservative of all arts was made a possibility. And yet much as has been written on the subject, and long as it has been experimented with, it has remained for the present day to develop some of its most remarkable qualities. Recently a Louisville gentleman, who had retired to rest after a light supper of soft cucumbers, awoke in the night with certain pains which excited his fears of an attack of cholera. No time was to be lost in warding off the fell destroyer. He sprang from his spring mattrass, and seizing a bottle of camphor, took a swallow, and then vigorously rubbed the afflicted portion of his person with the restorative, continuing the application after he had returned to bed. He experienced prompt relief, but as his fright left him, it occurred to him that his camphor had lost its customary odor. Again he rose, and this time turned on the gas. A single glance at his night-dress told the tale. Instead of camphor, he had used a bottle of superior writing fluid.

Another discovery of the virtues of ink was made at Washington during a recent heavy thunder-storm. An elderly lady, a devout Catholic, became so alarmed at the severity of the electric discharges, that she closed the windows and curtains of her bed-room, and having made the room as dark as possible, procured from the cupboard a bottle of holy water, with which in one hand and prayer beads in the other, she sprinkled the room thoroughly. As was to be expected, the storm soon ceased, and with a feeling of relief the curtains were raised, the shutters were thrown open, and the good lady discovered the carpet and furniture and counterpane and walls sprinkled with violet ink of delicate hue. Every effort was made to remove the spots and prevent the joke from leaking out, but in vain—the printer heard of it, and the good old lady is now visiting a friend in the country.

—It is reported that a new cave has been discovered at Niagara Falls. The guides to the cave of winds on Goat Island became impressed that some cave must exist under the American Fall. They accordingly repaired to the first of the ferry stairs, provided with ropes and ladders. After getting beyond this sheet of water without much difficulty, they found it necessary to use their boats in order to reach the desired locality. They then disappeared for some time and were given up for lost, when they made their reappearance and pronounced the new cave one of the wonders of the world. It was pitch dark in the cave, and in one place they stood between two walls of water. They were prevented from going further for want of some more tools and means of lighting the cave.

Business Notices.

☞ Little is left to be wished for by those who quarter at the American House, Boston, by the late improvements. Everything is fresh and nice, and the unequaled management of the past is continued.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. 1m28

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

Success Based upon Merit.

It is a subject of general remark, among both wholesale and retail druggists, that no medicine introduced to the American public ever gained such a popularity and met with so large a sale in all parts of the land, in the same length of time, as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This cannot depend upon its having been more largely advertised than any other medicine, as such is not the case. The correct explanation, we think, is found in the fact that this medicine produces the most wonderful and perfect cures of very bad cases of bronchial, throat and lung diseases, is undoubtedly the most perfect and efficient remedy for all kinds of coughs that has ever been introduced to the public, and at the same time possesses the greatest of blood-purifying and strengthening properties that medical science has been able to produce, thus rendering it a sovereign remedy not only in the cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Hoarseness and Coughs, but also for all diseases of the liver and blood, as scrofulous diseases, blotches, rough skin, pimples, black specks and discolorations. It has therefore a wide range of application and usefulness, and it not only gives the most perfect satisfaction to all who use it, but far exceeds the expectations of the most sanguine, thus eliciting the loudest praise, and making perfect living advertising mediums of all who use it. 6m2

A Critical Season.

Toward the close of the season the long-continued heat begins to tell upon body and mind. Both become exhausted, and we feel instinctively that nature, after fighting a gallant battle with a debilitating temperature, is drooping at last, and requires to be stimulated and reinforced. This, therefore, is a period of the year when a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is especially useful. The immediate effect of this unequaled vegetable restorative is to strengthen the stomach, sharpen the appetite, tone and regulate the bowels, and give steadiness and vigor to the nerves. As a preventive of the endemic and epidemic complaints that prevail at this season, and as a remedy for indigestion, liver disturbances, nervous debility, constipation, languor, headache, and all irregularities of the bowels, this pure and wholesome vegetable tonic and alterative has no equal among medicines.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. 1m8

NOTICE TO BATHERS.

IT is right and proper that men should go into the river and bathe; and there is a proper place to do it. But when they so far forget themselves as to come near a dwelling house as they have several times the last week, it shows a lack of decency and self-respect. I hope those men who can row a boat so well, will in future go around Bath point, out of sight of my house, or come prepared with bathing clothes, if they wish to avoid trouble.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from ulcerated or inflamed uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

A Reform.

The quietude of the South Cemetery on Sundays is a subject of favorable comment by visitors thereto, and may be attributed to the presence of a faithful policeman, Mr. Edwin N. Underhill, who has been stationed there for the past month or more as a special watchman. The loafers are no longer seen on the walls about the main gateway, or gathered in squads along the walks to make rude remarks at the passing of ladies; and an unattended female can now visit the burial spot of a loved friend on the Sabbath, without incurring the risk that involved such an adventure a few weeks ago.

The Catholic Church Controversy.

PORTSMOUTH, August 8th, 1873.

To the Editors of the Chronicle:

DEAR SIRS: We, the undersigned, Catholics of this city, read with great pain and sorrow the scurrilous attack made in our names on our beloved pastor in your issue of Tuesday last, to which we consider it our duty to offer our humble protest. In the first place, we wish to state most truly that we know nothing whatsoever of the said article or lawsuit to which our names are appended till we saw them printed. Secondly, we never authorized Cunningham, Hennessey or any other man to put our names to such a disgraceful document. Thirdly, we have too much respect and veneration for our zealous pastor, who has already built up such a grand church, which is both a credit to ourselves and at the same time a distinguished ornament to the city of Portsmouth, to say one word to wound the tender feelings of his generous soul. We therefore strongly brand this scandalous article as a most wicked falsehood, and at the same time a most infamous forgery. Moreover, most of us have attended divine service every Sunday since the church was burned, and we freely declare before God that we never heard our worthy pastor curse or swear at any person on any occasion whatsoever. Neither has he used the words "cholera" or any of those "filthy low expressions" attributed to him—words indeed so absurd and vulgar that they even carry with them their own strong reputation. Every dollar paid to the church was our own free offering, some of us giving even one hundred dollars, and we would cheerfully double that sum tomorrow if Father Walsh asked us for it. No man would even think of using such scandalous language against our pastor except certain parties who not only refused to pay anything for our new church, but were not even living here when the ground was first bought for it. Therefore they have no right to open their mouths in the church affairs of this city. But, thank God, our faithful pastor can say, what few clergymen of any denomination can, that he is now about seven and twenty years on the mission without a single blot or stain on his moral character. He can therefore well afford to laugh to scorn the ravings of his enemies. We therefore wish this letter published at the request of the whole congregation in self-justification; but really without the least knowledge of Father Walsh, who even does not know that we are getting it printed, lest he should prevent us from doing so. Hoping therefore, Messrs. Editors, you will do us the justice of bringing out this in your next number we shall gratefully remain, yours truly,

WILLIAM KEEFFE, MURTY SULLIVAN,
SAMUEL WALKER, DAVID WALSH,
OWEN O'HAIRE, CON CAREY.

Personal.

[Lynn Reporter.]

The many friends of Miss Annie W. Guilford will be gratified to learn that she is progressing finely in her studies in Italy. She has no intention of returning at present, but will remain abroad some time longer, to avail herself of the advantages now being enjoyed by her. She visited Vienna last July, and sang in a concert given by the best artists in that city, being received with great favor by the large audience. Among the selections sung by her was an English song, by request, in which she was most heartily encored, and upon re-appearing was greeted with prolonged applause, and made the recipient of many bouquets. Miss Guilford will make her debut in the opera of "Lucia" some time next month, and her friends there predict for her a grand success. That such may be the result will be the wish of all her friends in Lynn.

Laconics.

The streets are getting dry and dusty, and farmers tell us that vegetation is suffering for the lack of rain.

The Grandee was launched in fine style at the appointed time yesterday, the spectacle being witnessed by a large concourse of people.

J. C. Butler's excursion to Star island takes place to-day in steamer Major, leaving Portsmouth at 11 o'clock. Tickets, good for any trip during the day, 75 cents.

Will the agent of the Portsmouth Aqueduct Company, or some one of authority in that institution, be kind enough to "rise and explain" why it is that about one-half of the water-takers of this city can get water only at certain hours, and even then are obliged to go down into their cellars after it, and wait a long while for a bucket full to dribble out?

The Wolf Tone Club of this city will hold their annual picnic at Wilkinson's Grove, South Berwick Junction, on Wednesday, Aug. 13. Cars will leave the Eastern depot at 9:45 A. M. Tickets for the round trip, 75 cents; children under ten years of age, half fare. Tickets may be procured of members of the club and at the depot on the morning of the picnic. Music by Harlow's band.

Odd Fellows' hall was the scene of a very pleasant affair, Monday evening, it being the occasion of presenting to Mr. James F. Hartshorn, representative to the Grand Lodge of the United States, an elegant jewel and collar. The presentation address was made by Past Grand Robert C. Jarvis, 2d, of this city; and Mr. Hartshorn's response was feeling and appropriate, as might have been expected. Other addresses were made, and the occasion was one of general enjoyment to the large number of ladies and gentlemen present.

The stone-crusher in its new locality—near Lincoln Hill on South Road—has well nigh ground up the old ledge which obstructed the highway so many years, and which was familiarly known by all the boys and girls—at the South End at least—as "bread and cheese rock." What disposition has been made of this immense mass of stone is unknown to us, though we have sufficient confidence in the street commissioner to lead us to believe that it has been properly applied. Two objects are thus obtained. The streets of the city are improved by this solid addition of material, and the South Road is greatly benefited by the removal of an unsightly ledge of rocks.

STOVES, TIN WARE, IRON AND STEEL.

URIAH BLAISDELL

Informs his friends and the public that he has removed to

No. 55 Market Street,

(late the well-known Iron Store of Mr. John P. Lyman,) a few doors north of his old stand, and next beyond the Union Store, where he offers his usual stock of

STOVES OF ALL KINDS,
TIN, JAPANNED & GLASS WARE,
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,
FARM & GARDEN TOOLS, &C.

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the

"NEW AMERICAN,"

improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a good stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am selling up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

Iron, Steel, Bolts, Nuts, Axles and Boxes, Horse-Shoe Forms, Horse-Shoe Nails, &c., &c.,

Will find it for their interest to give me a call.

N. B.—Seward's PATENT AXLE CLIPS AND YOKES, the latest and best articles in this line, in good supply.

PLEASE PAY UP!

The large expense I have incurred in the above change places me much in need of money; therefore all indebted to me will greatly oblige by prompt settling, and especially those owing long-standing accounts.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000

80 CASH GIFTS	500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 221 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and all purchasers may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs,
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

The Great South American Blood Purifier.
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Daily Chronicle.

—The Albany Journal tells the following concerning the advent of August:

A teamster driving a team of giant horses attached to a long unloaded truck, suddenly stopped in front of the Museum and cried out, "get off there." The promenaders on the sidewalk becoming aware of a man crying at vacancy, stared hard at the teamster, and as he continued to repeat "get, I say," set him down as one who had just risen from tarrying too long at the straight whiskey. But notwithstanding the staring eyes, the teamster cried and cried, until a great crowd had collected around his truck and the street had become impassable. Then a policeman appeared on the scene and sternly requested him at the reins to shut up and move on.

"Let him get off first and then I will," said the teamster.

"Who get off?" asked the puzzled policeman.

"Him in the corner of the truck," and the teamster pointed with his whip to the locality which he desired cleared.

"You're drunk or crazy," rejoined the patience-exhausted guardian of the peace, "there ain't anybody on your truck."

"There is, too," replied the teamster, saying which he coiled his reins about his whip and climbed over his seat down to the far end of his truck and picked therefrom a small grasshopper and held it up in sight of the crowd.

"I've a good mind to arrest you for playin' this trick, which has blocked up the street," growled the enraged policeman.

"Taint no trick at all," said the teamster, with earnest face, "but this is August, and durin' August, grasshoppers is burdens, and I don't propose to carry them if I can help it."

The policeman moved on, the teamster drove off, and August unfolded a scarlet banner, trimmed with crimson, wrote upon it the legend, "Sweltering and to swelter."

—A little Congress Hall (Saratoga) girl toddled up to a venerable "mother in Israel," who was leaning over, engaged in reading, and smoothing her little hand cautiously over the old lady's beautiful silver hair, she said: "Why, ou has dot such funny hair—ou has!" Then, pausing a moment, she looked up and inquired: "What has made it so white?" "O, the frosts of many winters turned it white, my little girl," replied the old lady. "Didn't it hurt you?" asked the little thing in childish amazement. It was the first time she had ever seen gray hair.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 13, 1873.

Readables.

The train reached Portland two hours and thirty-nine minutes after leaving Boston.

At Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Saturday afternoon, John Wenz, a junk dealer, shot his wife and then shot himself. Both are dead. They had a quarrel about money matters. Wenz was intoxicated. They leave seven children.

A camp of Chinese laborers working on a railroad near Benecia, Cal., were attacked, Friday, by a crowd of white men, who tore down the tents, stoned and clubbed the Chinamen. The Chinese fled to the hills.

State News.

The Lancaster Republican says a business firm there procured a lot of postal cards, printed their advertisement upon them, and then put on a one-cent stamp and found them very useful.

The Fourteenth Regiment will assemble at Newport, Sept. 19. Rev. F. H. Buffum of Hartford, Conn., of Co. F., will deliver an address.

W. Goodwin of Newport boasts of two guns which spoke for freedom when our fathers "fought, bled," etc. One was used at New Orleans over the cotton bales.

Arthur Knapp of Warren has cut 200 tons of hay this year—the greatest lot of any man in town. The crop is reported a third larger than last year.

Horace Brown of Bridgewater has a cow which gave 79 quarts of milk in one week, yielding 10 1-4 lbs. of butter therefrom.

The will of the late Paran Stevens, which is recorded in Sullivan county, covers thirty-two pages.

The Strafford County Bank at Dover has been run forty-nine years by an uncle and nephew and has $2,000,000 deposits.

The Congregationalists of Plymouth found Boston professionals in possession of their singing seats last Sunday.

Six horses attached to the morning stage between the Crawford and the Profile houses ran away, Monday morning, upsetting the coach in Bethlehem, instantly killing J. R. Donnell Kierl of Baltimore, and fatally injuring A. S. Butler, a banker from Allegan, Michigan, and Miss Reeves of Pennsylvania, who have since died. The following were also injured: Mr. Reeves of Phenixville, Pa., perhaps fatally; Chaney G. Harrington of Worcester, Mass., seriously; Austin G. Fox and Miss Fox, New York, seriously, and G. S. Fox, slightly; Miss Emma Kennedy of Indianapolis, slightly; Mrs. Culbert, son and daughter, of Irontown, Ohio, slightly; Mrs. Lecroix of Irontown, Ohio, arm broken and slightly injured in the head. Two or three others were slightly injured. It is believed that all of the injured, with the exception, possibly, of Mr. Reeves, will recover. The accident was caused by the breaking of the pole.

A New Discovery.

H. G. Ashland, M. D., writes to a contemporary:

The veil of superstition is torn in fragments by the mathematical precision of a recently proclaimed science, discovered and propounded by Mrs. Elizabeth J. French, of Philadelphia, in a startling treatise upon "Electrical Therapeutics," in which the lady proclaims that not only has she practiced, but that she teaches the science of diagnosing disease through the brain. She has arrived at such a perfect art of delineating disease, as mapped out upon the brain, as to warrant the following announcement. Alluding to the old plan of symptomatic indications of diagnosing disease—as partially confirmed by guess-work—the doctor writes, in a chapter on "Cranial Diagnosis:" "Careful study and systematic research, however, have unfolded to me not only a safer but a surer method of diagnoses, and that by the scientific application of electricity in such fashion as reveals a wonderful phrase of anthropology. It is many years since I discovered that the human brain was a chart upon which may be found delineated all the organs of the body, and with these a correct and comprehensive record of the exact condition in which the organ exists. I am quite aware that the theories of anatomists and many self-selected arbiters of opinion upon medical subjects are opposed to the acceptance even of the possibility that such a system of diagnosis can be made. I can afford to content myself with the brand of insanity, shared by the noblest and most progressive minds in the world, and simply reaffirm to my readers that for twenty-five years I practiced this method of cranial diagnosis with invariable success; that I have communicated it to several of my pupils, who practice it with more or less precision, according to their capacity to master its scientific details."

Then the lady—who has evidently had her system termed "occult," and beyond the realms of mathematical precision,—goes on to say:

"I beg distinctly here to state that I do not derive my system from phrenology or any accepted or rejected method now in use. I conceived the idea that the brain, as the great nerve-centre and focal point to which all sensory and motor nerves report themselves, should be the map on which the organs and their special conditions are represented. The correctness of this hypothesis, proved by experiments, has been resolved into a science."

The lady's claims are no bolder than she seems prepared to substantiate; and, just now, comes the announcement that tDr. Ferrier, of King's College, London, England, is about to make public his experiments on the same subject. The lady has won the emoluments of fame by her early penetration, and whilst Dr. Ferrier stands at the portal of discovery, Dr. French has almost perfected a grand science. If this be charlatanism and humbuggery, let us all seek to expose it by stern and rigorous investigation, but, until then, let she who has won wear the laurels.

Sad Failure of a Brilliant Speculation.

[Saratoga cor. New York Tribune.]

Some years ago Mr. McGrath got quite interested in Spiritualism. There wasn't much racing going on, so he could give the subject his undivided attention. He invited a friend to go with him and see Foster—or some other circulating medium,—and my friend went. But he told me that it surprised him very much to see Mr. McGrath slip a full deck of cards into his coat pocket before starting. It scarcely seemed possible that Mr. McGrath intended to propose a game of spiritual seven-up, or to attempt to beat some unhappy ghost out of every rap he had at draw-poker—which is supposed to be an emphatically blue-grass game. Well, away they sailed and found Foster in. I found him out once, immediately after finding him in. Foster gave them his usual circus, and Mr. McGrath sat it through in solemn awe and silence. Sometimes a shade of impatience was visible, but his face looked radiant at the conclusion. "Mr. Foster," he said, as he laid the usual honorarium down on the table, "this is wonderful, and you deal a square game, you do, I do believe. But there's just one thing more I want you to try, and if you do it and I don't give you just the best farm in Kentucky, my name ain't Price McGrath," and down went his hands into his coat pocket, and out he fished the pack of cards. "There," giving them a scientific blue-grass shuffle, and slapping them down on the table backs up, "You just tell what that first card is without turning it over," and his breath came slow in expectation—Price McGrath's did. Foster couldn't, and Mr. McGrath turned sadly away, leaving the cards behind him in his bitter disappointment. "If Foster could just a-told me what that card was," he said to my friend, as they slowly walked up Broadway, "I'd a-just made our everlasting fortunes. I'd a-taken him with me, and we'd a-busted every faro-bank in this country. And then if I wouldn't a-made their hair curl at Baden-Baden and Monaco I'll be Dee Deed." Mr. McGrath always says that he'll be Dee Deed when he feels solemn and wants to round a sentence handsomely.

A Wonderful Woman.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Globe, writing from Des Moines, Iowa, describes Mrs. Ellen S. Tupper, the bee culturist. This lady was born at Providence, Rhode Island, in 1822. She was a daughter of Noah Smith, afterward a prominent politician in Maine, and for fifteen years First Assistant Secretary of the United States. Her mother was a sister of Henry Wheaton, author of the well-known treatise on International Law. In 1843, she married a Maine lumberman, and in 1857 they moved to Iowa. Reverses came, and Mrs. Tupper turned her attention to bees.

She purchased two colonies, and began to work with them, meanwhile reading everything which she could find relating to bee culture; but she soon learned that theory and practice were two quite opposite matters. Her two colonies increased rapidly. She bought improved hives as fast as she could afford them. She soon after became interested in Italian bees, and procured a few. She then began to write about bees, giving the result of her practical knowledge. Her reputation soon began to be established; she was sought out by various journals, and she now writes regularly for several papers. She also has the position of lecturer on bee-keeping, natural history of bees, etc., in the State Agricultural College at Ames, whither she goes regularly. With the officers of that institution she has visited different parts of the State, holding Farmers' Institutes, and wherever she goes never fails to elicit much interest in her subject.

In the Spring of 1872, she, with her family, removed to Des Moines, in order to gain a more central location. She formed a partnership with Mrs. Annie Savery, thereby adding abundant capital to her practical knowledge, and the firm was known as the Italian Bee Company. An agent was dispatched to Lake Como, Italy, to procure queen bees, and the business was rapidly increased. In the Fall of that year she purchased the interest of Mrs. Savery in the business, and placed her bees for the Winter in the cellar of her house, at Cottage Grove, about one mile from the city.

Early this Spring, while she was in the city, with her family, her house took fire and her two hundred hives of bees were destroyed. Writing to a friend she said:—"I came home at dark to find my house a wreck, and the two hundred stocks of bees ruined. Is it not hard sometimes to believe that all things work together for our good? I have worked so hard, and am so tired that I can form no plan for the future." It was an hour of trial which would have discouraged many a brave man. After years of toil and labor, with a large indebtedness to her late partner, a large family, an invalid husband, thus to find herself almost where she began, was soul-trying, but, with the indomitable will which she possesses, she marshaled her energies for a new battle of life, and amid all her misfortunes, there was not a shadow on her face. Moneyed men came forward and tendered her means, but she refused it, choosing to paddle her own canoe. With two hundred dollars, she purchased four Italian queens, and with a few stocks o bees which she secured elsewhere, she started again. Soon after, a farmer from a distance offered her fifty colonies of common black bees, to be paid for when she pleased and at what price she pleased. Mr. James Smith, the well-known horticulturist, who resides a mile south of the city, and two miles from her residence, offered her the use of his fruit farm, on which to set up her new colonies, and she accepted the kind offer and removed her bees there, and immediately set about removing them to movable comb-hives and Italianizing them.

The colony will this season increase from fifty to one hundred and two, and will produce over 7000 pounds of honey; so that before the year is gone she will have recovered very much from her loss. At her home she has twenty colonies of royal blood from which she supplies her trade, together with importations by each ocean steamer. She will soon be able to fill all orders again. In reply to a question the other day, as to what hives she used, she replied, "Not the cheapest. I can get; they do not cost over $1.50 each; but I want one side so it can be removed, a movable cap, and the inside filled with movable frames. The worst enemies I have are patent hive agents. They cannot buy me, nor will I buy their hives. I own the right for several States for hives, and have a hundred patent hives piled up on my lot, but I do not use them nor sell them."

"Well," said I, "how about the moths and worms?"

"I don't have any about my hives, as I will show you," said she, and she removed the side of a hive, and laid outside frame after frame of comb filled with honey and covered with bees, standing the frames around outside the hive inspecting them carefully. This she does nearly every day, to find the queen and any bug or worm that may get in. These frames she has filled with the comb which she has saved from the ruins of the fire, and the bees are filling it nicely.

Mrs. Tupper in person, is of small stature, dark blue eyes, thin features, well-developed brain, somewhat bent with toil and the weight of years, nervous, sanguine temperament, speaks rapidly, and uses no superfluous words, modest and unassuming in manner, and what would be called in plain terms homely.

As a business person she is one of the most active and resolute in the city. She fits into the business of the Capital City and fills her place just as nicely and as fittingly as anybody. Business men accept it courteously and admire her modest demeanor and perseverance. She attends personally to all shipments of bees, honey-extractors, hives, &c., to all correspondence, and her bees. There was not a day during the last severe winter, and the cold, wet Spring, that she was not in the city attending to business.

—The Chicago Times says: "Mr. L. T. Out, of Belmont Precinct, Otoe county, Neb., is the happy father of a recent pair of twins—a girl and a boy. The former has been baptized Betsey, and the latter I. R. Out. That settles the question between Carleton and the other old maid about the pedigree of 'Betsey and I. R. Out.'"

Business Notices.

☞ Little is left to be wished for by those who quarter at the American House, Boston, by the late improvements. Everything is fresh and nice, and the unequaled management of the past is continued.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. 1a28

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

Putting Down Rebellion.

When the stomach rebels against food, and obstinately refuses to digest sufficient aliment to keep the body well nourished, it can only be compelled to resume its natural duties by a wholesome tonic. The powerful alkaloids so often administered for this purpose are not wholesome. They are, for the most part, deadly poisons, and even when taken in very small quantities, re act violently upon the nervous system. Not so Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This salutary combination of vegetable juices, embracing the finest invigorants and alteratives which the botanical kingdom affords, operates mildly, steadily and beneficially upon the digestive, secretive and discharging organs. In dyspepsia, bilious affections, nervous complaints and periodic fevers, chronic constipation, bodily weakness, mental depression, languor, sleeplessness, and the various disabilities incident to old age and premature decay, its effects are so wonderful that to be comprehended they must be witnessed or experienced.

Success Based upon Merit.

It is a subject of general remark, among both wholesale and retail druggists, that no medicine introduced to the American public ever gained such a popularity and met with so large a sale in all parts of the land, in the same length of time, as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This success depend upon its having been more largely advertised than any other medicine, as such is not the case. The correct explanation, we think, is found in the fact that this medicine produces the most wonderful and perfect cures of very bad cases of bronchial, throat and lung diseases, is undoubtedly the most perfect and efficient remedy for all kinds of coughs that has ever been introduced to the public, and at the same time possesses the greatest of blood-purifying and strengthening properties that medical science has been able to produce, thus rendering it a sovereign remedy not only in the cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Hoarseness and Coughs, but also for all diseases of the liver and blood, as scrofulous diseases, blotches, rough skin, pimples, black specks and discolorations. It has therefore a wide range of application and usefulness, and it not only gives the most perfect satisfaction to all who use it, but far exceeds the expectations of the most sanguine, thus eliciting the loudest praise, and making perfect living advertising mediums of all who use it. 692

A Critical Season.

Toward the close of the season the long-continued heat begins to tell upon body and mind. Both become exhausted, and we feel instinctively that nature, after fighting a gallant battle with a debilitating temperature, is drooping at last, and requires to be stimulated and reinforced. This, therefore, is a period of the year when a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is especially useful. The immediate effect of this unequaled vegetable restorative is to strengthen the stomach, sharpen the appetite, tone and regulate the bowels, and give steadiness and vigor to the nerves. As a preventive of the endemic and epidemic complaints that prevail at this season, and as a remedy for indigestion, liver disturbances, nervous debility, constipation, languor, headache, and all irregularities of the bowels, this pure and wholesome vegetable tonic and alterative has no equal among medicines.

For Loss of Appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATED ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York, and sold by druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other remittent fevers. 1a6

NOTICE TO BATHERS.

IT is right and proper that men should go into the river and bathe; and there is a proper place to do it. But when they so far forget themselves as to come as near a dwelling house as they have several times the last week, it shows a lack of decency and self-respect. I hope those men who can now a-bind so well, will in future go around the point, out of sight of my house, or come prepared with bathing clothes, if they wish to avoid trouble.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

Portsmouth Banks.

[F. in Advertiser.]

Portsmouth had money banks at an early eriod in her history; and they have always een well managed, successfully and profitably; have never suffered at all from robberies direct, and but very little from the obberies politely termed defalcations or deficiencies. Many years ago, perhaps fifty r sixty, a deficiency of sixteen thousand ollars was discovered in the accounts of he cashier of the old New Hampshire Bank. The man was above suspicion, and lenied any irregularity even; but the deficiency was apparent, though the cause was ot. The cashier sorrowfully but readily urrendered his real estate to the bank, and ived and died a poor and dishonored man. The bank officials reluctantly made good their account thus; but nobody ever really doubted the integrity of the cashier. Years passed on, and at length the time came to close up the bank. In doing this it became apparent where the mistake was, and that the unfortunate cashier had merely neglected to record the burning of the missing amount of notes. So the property taken from him was returned "after many days," indeed, to his family,—the last member of which died here within a few years, leaving a competence.

Before the days of railroads large sums of money were sent to and fro by stage-drivers. On one occasion eighteen thousand dollars was stolen from under the seat of Sam Robinson's stage in crossing Chelsea ferry. The money belonged to the old Piscataqua Bank, and the officers of this institution themselves followed up the robbers so closely that they recovered nearly all the money, but it cost them $4000 or $5000 to do it. On the trial of the first man arrested, there was a question as to the jurisdiction, whether the robbery was committed in Essex or Suffolk county; so the offer of the villain's wife to pay fifty cents on the dollar of the loss was accepted. Afterward the president of the bank arrested another party in Baltimore, and took him to Philadelphia, where the mayor and chief of police desired to borrow the fellow for a few hours, on the plea that he was suspected of being concerned in a great bank robbery there; but the city officials were evidently in collusion with the other villain, for our bank officer never saw him again.

During the late war, also, as will be well remembered, an expressman of this city was robbed of $6000 in gold, which he was taking to Boston for a United States purser. The coin was stolen by a prominent railroad employe, now deceased, and was only secured by the exceedingly well-executed plans of the expressman. But no robbery of any bank in this city, we believe, has ever been attempted,—probably because the banks here have always been located centrally, substantially constructed and closely watched, and our police known to be efficient. Several excursions to break into banks in Great Falls and the Berwicks have been organized and started from here within a few years; and had the prospect been favorable here, cracksmen would not have passed us by.

Neither have any of our banks ever met with any serious losses or been run upon to any damaging extent. The United States Branch Bank, located here, which went down with the parent institution before the political whirlwind in Jackson's day, paid $122 on shares of $100 when it was closed up, notwithstanding Old Eternal's assertions that it was bankrupt. The late Jeremiah Mason was its president; and no doubt the causeless and disgraceful riot here, worked up by demagogues, in which the gilt-eagle sign of the bank was torn down and burned by the crowd, and the president afterwards burned in effigy in front of his residence, and the church-bell rung to call the people out, occasioned Mr. Mason's removal hence to Boston.

There are now four national banking houses in this city—the First National, the Merchants and Traders', the Bank of New Hampshire and the Rockingham National; all flourishing and in good standing. There are also three savings institutions—the Portsmouth Savings Bank, the Rockingham Ten Cent Savings Bank and the Portsmouth Trust and Guarantee Company, which has combined a discount business with their savings. The last two are comparatively new institutions, both well managed, flourishing and enjoying the public confidence, and each already having deposits approaching a half million of dollars. The Rockingham Ten Cent Savings Bank will make its first extra dividend next year and is expected to make a good report, as it has never yet lost a dollar, and it is one of the most useful and popular banks ever established here, and has done a large discount business.

But it is of the oldest, best known and heaviest of our banking houses that I now intended chiefly to write—the old Portsmouth Savings Bank. This was incorporated in 1823, just fifty years ago, and just two hundred years after the first settlement of the town. We think down this way that Portsmouth people are, and always have been, good stickers. They stick to their original settlement well, and have always stuck to first principles. Their first newspaper they have stuck to and supported until it is the oldest in the country; and in numerous ways have they shown their stability and reliability. This savings bank is another instance.

The first savings bank in this country was opened in Philadelphia in 1816, the second in Boston in 1817, and the third in New York in 1819. The founders of the latter, when they presented their petition to the New York legislature, asked for a charter "to ameliorate the condition of the poor," under the name of "The Society of New York." A year previous to the opening of the first New York institution a meeting was held in Portsmouth, of gentlemen interested in the subject, and arrangements were begun for establishing a provident institution in this town, as appears by the original paper now adorning the walls of the bank. But a charter was not obtained until 1823, when the Portsmouth Savings Bank was opened "for the purpose of enabling industrious persons of all descriptions, to invest such parts of their earnings as they can conveniently spare, in a safe and profitable manner"—which promise has been fulfilled to the letter and more. Nathaniel A. Haven was the first president, and there have only been six in the half-century. Samuel Lord was the first treasurer, and retained the office until a very few years ago. Jeremiah Mason was a corporator, and among the trustees were Levi Woodbury, Ichabod Bartlett, Edward Cutts and General Upham. The bank was at first located in a chamber, and opened only on Wednesday afternoons. The first day there were nine deposit books taken out. Of these, but one, No. 6, is now in existence, and this, a few years ago, was willed to the North Parish in this city. As showing the rapidity of accumulation, we note that the original deposit was $240, which in 1838 was reduced to $188; but still during the fifty years the dividends have amounted to $1191.71. The bank started with the promise to pay five per cent. per annum, semi-annually; but a year's experience taught them that this was not practicable, and it was reduced to four per cent. and so continued until 1871, when the present rate of five per cent. was again adopted. The extra five-year dividends have amounted in all to one hundred and thirty per centum of the deposits at the respective periods: the regular dividends to 202 per cent. The amount of deposits during the first year was $28,319, and there remained in bank at the close of the first five years $85,280. The amount deposited last year was $235,868, and the amount of present deposits and accumulations is $2,081,363. The aggregate deposits for the half century have been nearly five million dollars, and this only one institution in the little and rugged State of New Hampshire. Taking a sum deposited at the opening of the bank, and the regular and extra dividends to the present time amount to 332 1-2 per cent, being an average at simple interest of 6 and 65-100 per cent.; yet by the fearful all-absorbing power of compounding, the interest has actually amounted to 1860 per cent. on the original deposit, or about 37 per cent. per annum simple interest.

Surely the record shows what the treasurer alludes to in his annual report just made, that "this bank has been very well conducted these fifty years;" and who can estimate the amount of public and private good promoted by it? It has never been the policy of this institution to take mortgages; so much of their funds have gone abroad for out-of-town stocks. The policy has been both strongly supported and as strongly denounced; but by a law passed by the New Hampshire legislature a few years ago, all savings banks are now obliged to invest half their funds at home; and this bank last year invested $246,276 in the State, to $236,234 out of it. The bank is to-day paying 9 2-3 per cent. annually, makes the average on deposit for the five years 6 9-10 per cent. per annum clear of taxes, which is a rate sufficiently high, and, many political economists think, more than money is really worth, or ought to pay. The present President of this savings bank is William Simes; the treasurer, James F. Shores,—to both of whom your correspondent is indebted for information. This bank, like all others in Portsmouth (with the exception of the unfounded partisan opposition to the United States Bank, as related,) has always enjoyed the confidence and favor of the public. There never has been any serious "run" upon this or any other bank here, but there have been two seasons of large withdrawals and decrease of deposits from the Portsmouth Savings Bank. One was in 1861, when, by the unpatriotic declarations and prophecies of certain prominent parties here, ignorant and deluded depositors were induced to withdraw about $200,000 in gold within a few months, to their own disadvantage and loss; and again, in 1865, when the legislature began to lay a tax upon savings bank deposits, a sum nearly as large was foolishly withdrawn. But neither in this move, nor by unfortunate investments, nor in any other way, have any of our banks ever met with any serious or crippling loss.

The President.

President Grant passed through this city on Tuesday, en route to Augusta. The special train conveying the Presidential party arrived at the Eastern depot at 11:30 A. M., having made the distance from Boston in one hour and twenty-six minutes—which may be set down as very good going. Quite a large crowd of people had gathered at the station to pay their respects to the President. As soon as the train stopped, the first countenance that greeted the gaze of the multitude was that of Benjamin Franklin Butler, who hurriedly descended from the car, and entered the train standing on the other side of the depot, ready to proceed to Boston. The appearance of the hero of Fort Fisher, and the evident flurry he was in, caused considerable laughter. His face, which beamed with as much good humor as if he was already seated in the chair of John A. Andrew, was shaded by a broad-brimmed felt hat, his right hand grasped a morning paper and a cotton umbrella, and in his mouth was stuck an unlighted cigar, which in his hurry he had taken butt-end foremost.

As soon as the interest caused by the Butler episode had subsided, Gen. Grant appeared on the platform of the car, and was greeted with hearty cheers by the people. During the few minutes that the train waited in the depot, many of those present availed themselves of the opportunity to shake hands with the chief magistrate of the nation, and all were received with unpretentious affability. As the train moved off, the cheers were repeated. The President goes to Augusta to visit Speaker Blaine.

Laconics.

A fishing schooner commanded by Capt. Joseph S. Hirst, of Kittery Point, recently arrived at Cape Ann from a three months cruise on the Grand Bank, with 2200 quintals of fish,—said to be the largest haul ever made in the same length of time.

The Norfolk County Gazette says of Mr. Charles F. Hatch, general manager of the Eastern Railroad: "We don't know that Tom Scott sent Mr. Hatch to Boston, but we do know that Colonel Scott knew well of him as a tried and faithful railroad manager, and such recommendation from him was praise indeed."

The Wolf Tone Club of this city will hold their annual picnic at Wilkinson's Grove, South Berwick Junction, to-day. Cars will leave the Eastern depot at 9:45 A. M. Tickets for the round trip, 75 cents; children under ten years of age, half fare. Tickets may be procured of members of the club and at the depot. Music by Harlow's band.

Lieut. Frank D. Webster of the U. S. Marine Corps, one of the CHRONICLE's graduates, gave us a call, Tuesday, having returned from a pleasant three years' cruise in the Mediterranean and the European waters. Lieut. Webster is enjoying a two months' leave of absence at Greenland, after which, his numerous friends will be pleased to learn, he is to be assigned to duty at this naval station.

On Sunday, the 3d, an excursion party were sailing in the river at Newburyport, when a little girl, six years old, named Emeline Nashua, was knocked overboard by a boom, the tide running swiftly. Capt. C. L. Perkins, of Wells, Me., was sitting on his vessel and saw her go by under water. He immediately jumped over and reaching the child came to the surface a long distance from his vessel, with the little girl in his arms. Both were rescued after being a long time in the water.

Mr. Frank Caldwell, a most obliging and gentlemanly operator at the Western Union Telegraph office in this city, leaves Portsmouth for Lawrence, Mass., this morning, where he is to be installed as managing operator in the telegraph office of that city. We are sorry to lose from our midst a young man of such strict integrity of character, and of such uniform courtesy; nevertheless we are pleased to record his success in being thus promoted, and bespeak for him plenty of friends wherever he may go.

The Eastern Railroad Company has signified its intention of taking possession of the territory bounded by Austin, Front, Jenner, Bow and Lynde streets, Charlestown, for railroad purposes, under the act passed by the present legislature, June 11. Charles Robinson, jr., is to act as its agent in making settlements with the owners. The company bought last week the Union Sugar Refinery on Front street, just as it now stands, with all its machinery, for $850,000, and the proprietors are given thirty days in which to vacate the premises.

The Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, though its assistant civil engineer, A. R. Fauntleroy, is to begin immediately the construction of a crib wharf, 100 feet deep, with a front of 325 feet, at the upper end of Noble Island, near Portsmouth bridge, on which the company will erect substantial coal pockets to contain from 6000 to 10,000 tons of coal, making an extensive coal depot at this point for the supply of the surrounding country. Vessels can lay at this wharf with perfect safety, there being from 18 to 27 feet of water at low tide. These improvements will cost about $100,000, and the pockets will be ready for occupation by the first of March or earlier. It is probable that a well-known and competent contractor and builder of Massachusetts will have the charge of the work. This company now has six iron steamers of 1000 tons coal capacity, and is building four more.

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.

COAL.

HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.

We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		17,000
10 CASH GIFTS	$10,000 each	100,000

80 CASH GIFTS	500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

SINGER SEWING MACHINE

STILL TRIUMPHANT.

Sold in 1872, 219,758.

These Celebrated Machines are Sold by

J. J. FESSENDEN,

NO. 12 VAUGHAN STREET,

The only authorized agent for Portsmouth and vicinity.

Purchasers will find it to their advantage to call and examine this machine that has stood the best for years and has constantly outstripped all its competitors, before buying the machines which are crowded into their houses. By so doing they can understand the reason why the Singer Co. have sold over

1,000,000 MACHINES.

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL.
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL.
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL.
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL.
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL.
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The Great South American Blood Purifier,
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and recuverator of glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and an imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their remunerative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Climbing Fish.

"Fish in English rivers do not as a rule climb up trees," remarks the Pall Mall Gazette, "but it seems that such a practice prevails among certain fish in India, who occasionally, by mounting the trunks of trees on river banks, are enabled not only to see the surrounding country but obtain a mouthful of fresh air as a pleasant relief to the muddy waters which form their natural home. In the appendix to the twentieth report of the Science and Art Department, just issued, will be found an interesting account by Dr. G. E. Dobson, staff surgeon, Calcutta, of the climbing perch of India, two specimens of which he forwarded to the gardens of the Royal Zoological Society of Ireland, being the first fish of the kind which ever reached Europe alive. These fish it seems, have large cavities in the skull on each side, above the branchial chambers, which contain the greatly expanded, foliated, pharyngeal bones. These bones serve as air receptacles, and from them air is supplied to the branchial fringes; and when all the contained air has been de-oxygenated, the whole is rejected through the gill openings. The manner in which this is done is as follows: The fish rises rapidly to the surface, and at the same instant the mouth is opened to take in fresh air, the used-up air is forced backward through the gill openings and rises in large bubbles to the surface. The fish descends immediately, one or two small bubbles usually passing upward when it has reached the bottom, from the gill openings. The whole thing is done so rapidly that it is impossible to say whether the air taken in by the mouth displaces the used-up air in the supra-branchial cavities, or if the used-up air be first displaced, the vacuum being filled by fresh air entering through the mouth. Almost all the fresh-water fish of India are air-breathers though not provided with such curiously expanded pharyngeal bones. The muddy rivers of India necessitate such a provision of nature, for pure water breathers could not pass through the gills water filled with gritty particles. The 'climbing perch' have obtained their name from the circumstances of their having been frequently found on the trunks of palm-trees on the margin of rivers, which, by means of their highly erectile scales, they wriggle on to as a temporary resting-place whereon to escape for a time the tremendous impetus of a torrent swollen by the tropical rains."

Base Ball.

[Danbury News.]

A North Main street gentleman saw his boy in front of the house throwing a ball in the air, recently. He had not played ball himself for thirty years, and knew nothing of the kind of ball, base-ball clubs have introduced in the past few years, but he felt the old spirit rising in him at the memory of former triumphs, and he held up his hands and told his son to "let her slide." She slid. He caught it full and fair, and then dropped it, and started into the house, with his eyes full of tears, and his hands pressed under his arms. The youth subsequently informed another boy that he could plainly hear the "old man's" bones snap.

George N. Saunders is dead.

Massachusetts republicans will hold their state convention Sept. 17th.

Joseph Titcomb is the Democratic nominee for Governor of Maine.

The Reading, Penn., Dispatch says that General William Tecumseh Sherman will be the next President of the United States, if he lives.

The Reedsburg (Wis.) Free Press employs women exclusively. It says: "We have a calico foreman, two climsy compositors, and the sweetest little devil in pink muslin to be found anywhere."

The Iowa democrats have pretty nearly unanimously concluded that their party sleeps the sleep that knows no waking, and therefore will not put a ticket in the field this year.

The Augusta Constitutionalist has been revived, much to the regret of those valuable newspaper men who do clipping and give proper credit. The work of writing the word Constitutionalist frequently by warm weather is more of a job than a casual observer would suppose.

Fat men to the front. The seventh annual clam bake red face of the fat men of the United States, and Connecticut in particular, is announced to take place at Norwalk, Conn., on Thursday, the 28th inst., at noon.

The first feminine professor appointed in the "Women's College of the Northwestern University," in Illinois, is Miss Frances Willard. She occupies the chair of æsthetics, and has a salary for the first year of $1800, with assurance of an annual advance for the next three years of $200. Five ladies have been elected to the board of trustees of the University.

Mayor Kimball of Concord offers a reward of $2000, and Abbott, Downing & Co. $7000 additional, or half cost of the incendiary who is supposed to have set the last establishment on fire for the third time within a few months past.

The annual meeting of the State Woman's Suffrage Association will be held this year at Lancaster on the 26th inst. Mrs. Mary A. Livermore, Henry B. Blackwell, Esq., of Boston and Miss Mary F. Eastman of Lowell will be present to address the meeting.

The third annual reunion of the "Third Regiment New Hampshire Volunteers Veteran Association," will be held at Manchester, Sept. 3d and 4th. Business meeting at Grand Army Hall, at 4 o'clock, P. M., Sept. 3d. Banquet at Haseltine's Hotel at 9 o'clock, P. M.

Romance in Politics.

There has been a bit of romance in the life of Hon. William Allen, whom the straightout Democrats of Ohio have nominated for Governor, and it involves another. The Columbus Sun-Journal tells the two stories thus: At the beginning of the political campaign in 1820, when Allen was nominated for Congress by the Democrats, and McArthur, the Whig Governor, was a candidate for reelection, Allen was the lover of McArthur's daughter, and between them there was an engagement to be married. But it is said that after McArthur's defeat, the Governor broke off the matrimonial engagement, and the lady married a Kentucky gentleman, who died before the expiration of Allen's term in the House. Gov. McArthur died about the same time. At this point comes in another little romance: A gentleman who was an ultra Democrat, and a great admirer of the then rising young man, Allen G. Thurman, had a daughter, who, much to her father's chagrin, married a Whig. In making his will, the old gentleman disposed of the property to his daughter in such a way that the Whig husband could not acquire title in it. This lady also became a widow; she afterward met Allen G. Thurman, and is now Mrs. Senator Thurman. It was at the wedding of Judge Thurman that Mr. Allen again met Miss McArthur, (by this time the widow of the Kentucky gentleman.) The old love was renewed; they were married, and lived happily together until the death of Mrs. Allen, which occurred before the expiration of Mr. Allen's Senatorial term. Mr. Allen has since been a widower.

—The St. Louis Democrat, alluding to Butler's defence of the salary grab, says: "We do not know what they think of Butler in the virtuous State of Massachusetts, but out here, if we wanted to make anything appear exceedingly bad and improper, we should immediately ask Benjamin to indorse and advocate it. We hope he is not in favor of the Lord's prayer."

Watterson, of the Courier-Journal, has experienced a new sensation in London, though this, too, is of disgust. He met Minister Schenck, and their first sitting lasted thirty-six hours. Watterson was heard to remark at the close that he had never before realized the mediocrity of two pair.

Dropping hot sealing-wax on the thumb-nail cost a young man of Nashville his thumb. Now it is feared that he will lose his arm, as that member is much swollen and a large lump has formed at the armpit.

This is Chicago's way of chronicling deaths in St. Louis: "Those that left St. Louis last week for a better country (no matter which way they went) numbered 252, and of these twenty-one took passage by the cholera line."

A Patent Easy Chair.

[Duxbury News.]

Since the unfortunate accident to Mr. Coville while on the roof counting the shingles, he has been obliged to keep pretty close to the house. Last Wednesday he went out in the yard for the first time, and on Friday Mrs. Coville got him an easy chair, which proved a great comfort to him. It is one of those chairs that can be moved by the occupant, to form almost any position, by means of ratchets. Mr. Coville was very much pleased with this new contrivance, and the first afternoon did nothing but sit in it and work it in all ways. He said such a chair as that did more good in this world than a hundred sermons. He had it in his room, the front bedroom up stairs, and there he would sit and look out of the window, and enjoy him self as much as a man can whose legs have been ventilated with shot. Monday afternoon he got in the chair as usual. Mrs. Coville was out in the back yard hanging up clothes, and the son was across the street drawing a lath along a pickets-fence. Sliding down he grasped the sides of the chair with both hands to settle it back, when the whole thing gave away, and Mr. Coville came violently to the floor.

For an instant the unfortunate gentleman was benumbed by the suddenness of the shock, but the next he was aroused by an acute pain in each arm, and the great drops of sweat oozed from his forehead when he found that the little finger of each hand had caught in the ratchets, and were as firmly held as if in a vice. There he lay on his back with the end of a round sticking in his side, and both hands perfectly powerless. The least move of his body aggravated the pain which was chasing up his arms. He screamed for help, but Mrs. Coville was in the back yard telling Mrs. Coney, next door, that she didn't know what Coville would do without that chair, and so she didn't hear him. He pounded the floor with his stockinged feet, but the younger Coville was still drawing enough from that fence across the way, and all other sounds were rapidly sinking into insignificance. Besides, Mr. Coville's legs were not sufficiently recovered from the late accident to permit their being profitably used as mallets. How he did despise that offspring, and how fervently he did wish the owner of that fence would light on that boy and reduce him to powder. Then he screamed again, and howled, and shouted "Maria!" But there was no response. What if he should die there alone and in that awful shape? The perspiration started afresh, and the pain in his arms assumed an awful magnitude.

Again he shrieked "Maria!" but the distance across the way only grew in volume, and the unconscious wife had gone into Mrs. Coney's and was trying on that lady's redingote. Then he prayed, howled, and coughed, and swore, and then apologized for it, and prayed and howled again, and screamed at the top of his voice the awfulest things he would do to that boy if heaven would only spare him and show him an axe. Then he opened his mouth for one final shriek, when the door opened, and Mrs. Coville appeared with a smile on her face and Mrs. Coney's redingote on her back. In one glance she saw that something awful had happened to Joseph, and with wonderful presence of mind she screamed for help, and then fainted away, and ploughed headlong into his stomach. Fortunately the blow deprived him of speech, else he might have said something that he would forever regret; and, before he could regain his senses, Mrs. Coney dashed in and removed the grief-stricken wife. But it required a blacksmith to cut Coville loose. He is again back in bed, with his mutilated fingers resting on pillows, and there he lays all day concocting new forms of death for the inventor of that chair, and hopes nothing will happen to his son until he can get well enough to administer it himself.

—An Elmira editor met a well-educated farmer of Chemung County, and informed him that he would like to have something from his pen, whereupon the farmer sent him a pig, and charged him $2 75 for it.

A Novel Scheme.

The Philadelphia Press says there is now an effort being made, and with alleged success, to form a company to pipe oil from the petroleum regions to the commercial marts on the seaboard. The proposition is one which will of course strike the general reader with amazement, and command the serious attention of scientists and mechanics; but it must be remembered that this is the age of wonders, and while two Pennsylvania aeronauts are just perfecting their arrangements to cross the Atlantic by means of a balloon, and a combination of other Pennsylvanians will meet this week in Pittsburgh to further consider the project of improving the Ohio river by feeding it with water from Lakes Erie and Chautauqua, we must not be surprised with the offer to pipe oil from its sources of supply to the markets of consumption.

But the proposition to pipe oil from petroleum regions, is certainly most wonderful. How will it be forced over great elevations? How forced through immense depressions? How secured in pipes subject to incalculable pressure? These are only a tithe of the questions which now suggest themselves, but which science readily answers and simplifies. The project is within the range of engineering ability. It is of no more magnitude than crossing the Alleghanies with a locomotive, no grander in conception than J. Edgar Thompson's Horseshoe bend, an achievement in engineering which has won the admiration of every man who has beheld its sublime proportions and mechanical beauty. We expect to see the day, if the Lord permits us to live another decade, when illuminating gas will be supplied to different parts of the States by means of pipes running from the oil regions. The supply of this gas is as certain and abundant as that of coal. The nature of its manufacture is as perpetual as that of water, and therefore no greater risk will be run in laying pipe for its conveyance to distant points, than is now incurred in piping large cities to convey water, in bringing water from long distances, or in laying innumerable miles of iron to facilitate the transportation of material and agricultural products, biped and quadruped.

To meet at the head of the piping scheme are shrewd and practical. Some of them are identified with the greatest of our material projects, and understand precisely what they are about. They are resolved to put this thing through, so that in a few years we may expect to see pipes on the Delaware, from which ships will be loaded with the oily freight running through pipes direct from the tanks on Oil Creek.

The Chances of Being Struck by Lightning.

The Hartford Courant has been figuring up the chances of being struck by lightning, and arrives at the following reassuring results: "Taking the figures of the last census report for our faces, we find that during the year 1870 there were, in the whole country, 202 deaths from lightning stroke. Let womankind take notice that out of these 148 deaths were of males and only fifty-four of females. The total number of deaths from all causes was nearly 500,000. There were 2,437 deaths from other causes to one death from lightning, and there were 190,889 persons living to every one killed by this cause. It is somewhat singular that the lightning was decidedly more desirous of the males than females between the ages of ten and thirty years than with any others; between ten and fifteen years is the most dangerous time, but even then the number is very small. Much comfort for those still inclined to be timorous is to be found in going back further on the record. The deaths by lightning in 1870 were only eleven more than in 1860, while the population has increased more than 7,000,000, and the race is declining, in spite of the hasty conclusions formed by reading the news of a day. In 1860 there were forty-eight deaths by lightning out of every 100,000 deaths from all causes; in 1870, the rate was only forty-two. But now, while only 202 persons died from lightning stroke in 1870, there were 397 deaths from sun-stroke, or nearly twice as many. Yet the number of persons who shudder when they see the sun rise would bear a very small ratio to those who shudder at the rising of the thunder-cloud. The rate of deaths by sun-stroke has declined during the decade from ninety-one to eighty-one in 100,000 deaths from all causes, and with the increase in care and information on the subject is likely to decrease still more, but it will always probably be largely in excess of the lightning rate. It is also noticeable that there were 1,345 deaths by suicide, while there were only 202 deaths by lightning; in other words an individual is six times as likely to kill himself as lightning is to kill him."

Wonderful Escape of a Child.

A little child, one and a half year old, fell into an open well, twenty-seven feet deep, in Brighton, Monroe County, on Tuesday afternoon, and was rescued comparatively unharmed. The well is near its father's home, and an elder sister, who had been to draw a bucket of water, left it uncovered for the moment. Before she could return the child ran to the well, and while looking in lost its balance and fell to the bottom. Its father and two men who were busy at work were sent for, and arrived in about ten minutes. One of the men descended in to the well, and found the little fellow standing up in the water, (which, fortunately, was only about fifteen inches in depth,) holding up his little hands, patiently waiting for his rescuer. A rope was let down, fastened about the waist of the child, and he was carefully drawn up. He uttered no scream, but upon being landed safely, clapped his hands and appeared well pleased with his adventure. Not a scratch could be found on his body, and in a few minutes thereafter he was playing about the yard, as if nothing unusual had happened to him.

—Drummers visiting Holyoke this season usually stop over in Springfield long enough to be vaccinated. The average drummer is sharp, and will resort to "ways that are dark and tricks that are vain" to circumvent a rival. "Col." B——— and Geo. W——, representing two Boston houses, met at the Haynes House, a few days since, en route for Holyoke. The "Col." thought to play it fine on W——— by persuading him to stop at the Haynes till morning.—"So much more comfortable, you know," etc.,—But W——— wouldn't take, and as a last resort the "Col." tried the "sold" box scare, remarking: "There are over 30 cases of small-pox up there." W——, glancing at his watch, coolly said, "Col., we've got just ten minutes before the train leaves. I'll step into the bar and shake you to make it ring or nothing." There was a tableau, "Col." B. officiating.

Business Notices.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, PEREO-PHOSPHATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & Co., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients convalescent from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. 1m28

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

Pushing Down Rebellion.

When the stomach rebels against food, and obstinately refuses to digest sufficient aliment to keep the body well nourished, it can only be compelled to resume its natural duties by a wholesome tonic. The powerful alkaloids so often administered for this purpose are not wholesome. They are, for the most part, deadly poisons, and even when taken in very small quantities, react violently upon the nervous system. Not so Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This salutary combination of vegetable juices, embracing the best invigorants and alteratives with which the botanical kingdom affords, operates mildly, steadily and beneficially upon the digestive, secretive and discharging organs. In dyspepsia, bilious affections, nervous complaints and periodic fevers, chronic constipation, bodily weakness, mental depression, languor, sleeplessness, and the various disabilities incident to old age and premature decay, its effects are so wonderful that to be comprehended they must be witnessed or experienced.

Success Based upon Merit.

It is a subject of general remark, among both wholesale and retail druggists, that no medicine introduced to the American public ever gained such a popularity and met with so large a sale in all parts of the land, in the same length of time, as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This cannot depend upon its having been more largely advertised than any other medicine, as such is not the case. The correct explanation, we think, is found in the fact that this medicine produces the most wonderful and perfect cures of very bad cases of bronchial, throat and lung diseases, is undoubtedly the most perfect and efficient remedy for all kinds of coughs that has ever been introduced to the public, and at the same time possesses the greatest of blood-purifying and strengthening properties that medical science has been able to produce, thus rendering it a sovereign remedy not only in the cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Hoarseness and Coughs, but also for all diseases of the liver and blood, as scrofulous diseases, blotches, rough skin, pimples, black specks and discolorations. It has therefore a wide range of application and usefulness, and it not only gives the most perfect satisfaction to all who use it, but far exceeds the expectations of the most sanguine, thus eliciting the loudest praise, and making perfect living advertising mediums of all who use it. 6m2

A Critical Season.

Toward the close of the season the long-continued heat begins to tell upon body and mind. Both become exhausted, and we feel instinctively that nature, after fighting a gallant battle with a debilitating enemy, is drooping at last, and requires to be stimulated and reinforced. This, therefore, is a period of the year when a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is especially useful. The immediate effect of this unequalled vegetable restorative is to strengthen the stomach, sharpen the appetite, tone and regulate the bowels, and give steadiness and vigor to the nerves. As a preventive of the endemic and epidemic complaints that prevail at this season, and as a remedy for indigestion, liver disturbances, nervous debility, constipation, languor, headache, and all irregularities of the bowels, this pure and wholesome vegetable tonic and alterative has no equal among medicines.

NOTICE TO BATHERS.

IT is right and proper that women should go into the River and bathe, and also a proper place to do it. But when they undress themselves as to come across a lot of big boulders, and in several places the last week, shows a lack of decency and self-respect. Women who undress on a boat do well, but to go into the water without, out of sight of my house, or to come ashore with bathing clothes, I may wish to avoid. Do.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD,

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Yellow Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the iodides of Potassium and Iron, can make a more effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and difficult. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bone, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhœa arising from internal ulceration and similar diseases, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Emaciation and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

Local Matters.

Quick Time.

Among the many recent improvements in the offices of the Eastern Railroad Co. perhaps the most valuable is the introduction of anthracite-coal-burning locomotives, two of which are now in daily use. They possess greater power and speed than engines of the old pattern, and are also in their action more economical. As an illustration of their good qualities, it may be said that a long passenger train arrived at Portsmouth from Portland, recently, thirteen minutes behind time, but although the grade between Portsmouth and Boston are unusually heavy, a hard-coal locomotive made up the lost time and brought the train into Boston according to the schedule. The distance from Portsmouth to Somerville (thirty-four miles) was made in one hour and forty minutes. Reckoning two minutes for each of the six stops, this would make the mean time one hour and twenty-eight minutes over heavy grades with a very heavy train. Superintendent Prescott speaks very highly of these locomotives.

The New Orleans Minstrels

Are to be present at the Temple, on Friday and Saturday evenings. The Bangor Whig of August 4th, says of them:—

This company at their visit to our city last year won a most favorable opinion by the excellence of the entertainment they gave; and the audience in attendance, Saturday evening, were equally well pleased with the programme presented. The singing of Miss Maud Stanley was excellent, and each piece sang drew an encore from the assembly. The music throughout was finely rendered and as a whole the efforts compared very favorably with more pretentious organizations. Southern and West in their songs, dances, etc. are a hoss, and the banjo solo by Mr. Whitcomb, the comic quaranteen, and in fact every part, is first class. One prominent feature of the whole is that nothing that can offend the taste of the most fastidious is let of dreed. Judging by the enthusiasm manifested by those present Saturday evening, the seats will be filled as their engagement continues.

Fun For The Kearsarges.

[Biddeford Times.]

The "Ebens" are making preparations for a grand time on the occasion of the visit of the Kearsarge Engine Company of Portsmouth to this city on the 28th inst. The visiting firemen arrive at 4.15 P. M. In the evening there will be a grand ball at the City Hall. The next day they have a picnic at Hill's beach, to which all friends of firemen are invited. There will be chowder, dancing, etc., at the beach, with music by Raymond.

Laconics.

The New York yacht club is expected at the Shoals. It will comprise twenty-six vessels.

All persons interested in obtaining a full supply of water are requested to meet at the Common Council room on Saturday evening at 7.30.

Mr. William Plaisted's tri-weekly trips to Wallis' Sands are becoming popular, affording a cheap conveyance to picnic and excursion parties.

We have paid our last aqueduct bill, and therefore have a right to inquire how many gallons of water per day are sent to the Isles of Shoals at the expense of the water-takers of the city.

The Wolf Tone club had a very successful picnic on Wednesday at South Berwick. While at the depot, in this city, a little girl who was standing on the track, narrowly escaped being run over by the cars, being saved by a gentleman who sprang in front of the engine to do so.

The Knights of Pythias had a procession of 2000 members at Boston, on the 12th, a large number of the Portsmouth organization participating, with the U. S. Naval Band. On the return home, via the Boston & Maine Railroad, a drunken man belonging in Haverhill, Mass., fell off the train at that place and was killed.

Hon. Frank Jones of Portsmouth is likely to be the next democratic candidate for Governor. Frank doesn't want the nomination, but generally takes everything that comes to him, and having riches enough to satisfy any ordinary man, can have nothing to look forward to except fame; therefore he will be apt to listen to the persuasive appeals of his brother democrats.

The annual meeting of the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad is to be holden to-day at Dover Point. It is said that $620,000 is the amount raised for the completion of the Road, (Portsmouth subscribing $300,000 and Dover $225,000,) and that the bridge at Dover Point will cost more heavily than was anticipated, in which event it would not be very astonishing were the two cities called on for further appropriations. In that case, the next election for city officers may be an exciting one. There was a "wheel within a wheel," last time.

Hon. Frank Jones purchased 2000 more shares of the Eastern Railroad at auction, Wednesday, at $102.75. The Traveller says: Inasmuch as Mr. Jones has but just returned from a trip of investigation into the resources, advantages or disadvantages of the road, during which he took great care to inform himself of the situation of affairs, the purchase of such a large quantity of stock may be regarded as significant. He could not better attest his appreciation of its value. It is understood that this sale retires all Eastern R. R. stock from the market, and that no more is to be offered for the present.

Mr. Luther Lewis, of Kittery Point, narrowly escaped death while working in the laborers' gang at the navy yard on Wednesday. He was engaged, with others, in getting a lot of knees and other ship timber out of the dock, and placing it on the ground; and while prying a knee out of the mud another knee fell from the pile above and struck him on the back of the legs, bruising them badly and throwing him down in such a manner as to cut an ugly gash in his head. Had he been one step nearer the wall of the dock he would have been crushed into the mud and instantly killed by the ponderous piece of wood.

There is a stone post at the head of Brewster street. There was a horse attached to a carriage in front of the Rockingham House, it was Wednesday. A band of music came along and disturbed the equanimity of the horse. It shot out westwardly, then northerly, then resumed its original course. That stone post was in the way of the carriage, and there was a crash. A demure horse was shortly after seen limping back to Stoddard's stable, thinking of the forty miles of trotting he had escaped,—and a carriage with its heels in the air marked the spot where confusion had reigned.

Admiral Butler's excursion to the Shoals on Tuesday, was a much greater success than had been anticipated, so far, at least, as members went. Fifty three hundred people embraced the opportunity to visit our now famous isles. The party was landed on Star island, but many of the other members of the group were visited and rambled over—Smutty Nose, of course, monopolizing the attention of the curiosity seekers. Mr. Butler's careful management, as usual, provided amply for the comfort and safety of the excursionists, but could not prevent some display of temper by the landlord of the Oceanic, who, strange to say, was offended that the excursion should have been so largely attended, fearing that the guests of his house might be discommoded on the passage to or from town. It seems to us poor policy to single out one set of patrons for especial care and attention, but then we don't pretend to know how to run a hotel.

One of the most pleasant and enjoyable chowder parties of the season was that which under the command of Capt. J. Albert Seaborn sailed in an invincible armada, early on the morning of the 11th, for Gerrish's island and a general good time. About twenty-five ladies and gentlemen arrived at the camp during the day and quite a fleet of sail and row-boats rode at anchor near the beach. Eagerness made the chowder and coffee, and everybody knows that that meant success. The party sailed, fished, bathed and rowed about the rocks until dark, the happy fat men amusing them by stepping overboard to tow a boat ashore. A cunningly made a relishable supper. Then a big bon-fire was built on the rocks around which the Modocs of the party danced and sang until the moon came up from beyond the sea. As the party must wait until ten o'clock until the tide should turn, foot-races and other amusements were improvised. The passage of the fleet of the Piscataqua was a memorable occasion—and now the ladies say "let us repeat the picnic."

The Eastern Railroad, in pursuance of its policy of promptly giving its patrons the advantage of all new ideas which promote convenience, comfort and safety of travel by rail, have just issued to the principal offices on their line tickets to all the principal points for the West, to be sold at these stations. By this arrangement the trouble and expense of sending or going to Boston for tickets to points beyond the line of this road is avoided. The tickets more over are in packages and include in many instances transfer tickets entitling the holder to passage in coaches and ferry-boats when necessary to make the proper connection between stations widely separated, and to hotels in cases where it is necessary or desirable to take advantage of them on the journey. In many cases these transfer tickets are included without an increase in the price of the package, thus not only ministering to the convenience of the traveller but actually reducing the expense of the journey.

Jamming Jelly.

[Danbury News.]

This is the height of the preserving season. We saw through the window of a Wooster street house, Saturday, a shirt-sleeved man trying to pull on a pair of boots, and heard him say quite plainly; "Jam the jam stuff to jell."

—A drunken fellow wandered into a Sunday school, and took a seat with the primer scholars, when the teacher thus accosted him:

"Why, James, do you know what condition you are in?"

"Yes, m'm; in the gall of bitterness an' bonds of iniquity. Ask me some hard quesh'ns."

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	17,000
10 CASH GIFTS $10,000 each	100,000
50 CASH GIFTS 3,000 each	150,000
50 CASH GIFTS 1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS 500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS 400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS 300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS 200 each	50,000
255 CASH GIFTS 100 each	32,500
11,600 CASH GIFTS 50 each	580,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to	$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as will be the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

ONE of the large and splendid Steamships of this line will leave Pier No. 42, North River, foot of Canal St., New York, at 12 o'clock M., on the 5th, and 20th of every month, (except when those dates fall on Sunday, and then on the preceding Saturday,) for ASPINWALL, connecting via Panama Railway with one of the Company's Steamships from Panama for SAN FRANCISCO, touching at MAZANILLO.

All departures connect at PANAMA with Steamers for SOUTH PACIFIC and CENTRAL AMERICAN ports.

For Japan and China, Steamer leaves San Francisco first of every month, except when it falls on Sunday, then on the day preceding.

One Hundred Pounds of Baggage allowed each adult.

Baggage received on the dock the day before sailing, from steamboats, railroads and passengers who prefer to send early. An experienced surgeon on board. Medicine and attendance free.

For Freight or passage Tickets or further information apply at the Company's ticket office, on the Wharf, Pier No. 42, Canal St., North River, New YORK. GEO. H. BRADBURY, President.

NOTICE.

Rockingham Ten Cents Savings Bank,

No. 29 MARKET ST., PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

AARON H. HILL, President, JOHN CHRISTIE, Treas.

THIS Bank pays five per cent. per annum, free of all tax. A greater rate is prohibited by law.

Two dividends are made in the year,—in June and December; and an extra dividend of the surplus earnings every two years. The first extra will be in June, 1874.

Deposits go on interest on the FIRST day of every MONTH, and deposits made during the FIRST THREE days of each MONTH will draw interest from the FIRST day of that MONTH.

Dividends not withdrawn will be added to the principal, and draw interest from the time when declared.

Money is received on deposit, payable on checks at sight.

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The Great South American Blood Purifier,
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IF SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is recommended by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Imagination or What?

The Davenport (Iowa) Gazette has the following story: One of the leading citizens of North Davenport had an only daughter, who was betrothed to a young man of fair promise, a clerk in a leading commercial house at Dubuque. His visits to the city were regular, and arrangements had been made for an immediate union, when the bride-elect was stricken down with typhoid fever, and in spite of all that skill and care could do, died. After the melancholy journey to Oakdale the young man returned to Dubuque. Nervous fever set in, and a peculiar hallucination seized him, that his lost one was present in the room draped in the same garb which had enveloped her clay. All remonstrance was in vain. He minutely described her dress, her appearance, and her position in his chamber. Even when his parents or friends would sit or stand where he declared her to be, he saw her glide away and take another place. This went on for weeks, and the patient was gradually sinking under the physical and nervous excitement, when a friendly ruse was tried to cure him of his ecstacy. Coming to Davenport, his mother found that the funeral garments were purchased of C. & M., and made by a Mrs. B. She procured the material, had it made up, and returning, a young lady, as near in height and appearance as could be found, was dressed to resemble his deceased love, and during one of his fevered and brief slumbers was introduced into the room, taking her seat in a shaded corner. His awakening was anxiously watched, and sanguine hopes of removing his hallucination were indulged in. He awoke at length, and, turning his eyes in the direction of the pious fraud, stared with fixed eyeballs for a few seconds, then raising himself almost upright in his bed, flung his arms aloft, and shrieking in an unearthly voice: "My God, there are two of them!" fell back and expired.

Cure for Drunkenness.

There is a famous prescription in England, says the Springfield Republican, for the cure of drunkenness, by which thousands are said to have been assisted in recovering themselves. The receipt came into notoriety through the efforts of John Vine Hall, father of Rev. Newman Hall and Capt. Vine Hall, commander of the Great Eastern steamship. He had fallen into such habitual drunkenness that his utmost efforts to reclaim himself proved unwilling. At length he sought the advice of an eminent physician, who gave him a prescription which he followed faithfully for seven months, and at the end of that time he had lost all desire for liquors, although he had been for many years led captive by a most debasing appetite. The recipe, which he afterwards published, and by which so many have been assisted to reform, is as follows: "Sulphate of iron, 5 grains; magnesia, 10 grains; peppermint water, 11 drachms; spirit of nutmeg, 1 drachm; to be taken twice a day." This preparation acts as a tonic and stimulant, and so partially supplies the place of the accustomed liquor, and prevents that absolute physical and moral prostration that follows a sudden breaking off from the use of stimulating drinks. In cases where the appetite for liquors is not too strong the medicine supplies the place of the accustomed dram entirely, but Mr. Hall continued the use of liquors at first with the medicine, diminishing the amount gradually until he was able to throw away his bottle and glass altogether, after which he continued to take the medicine a month or two, till he felt that he was wholly restored to self-control, and could rejoice in a sound mind and a sound body.

Not Prepared for Death.

The Memphis Presbyterian tells the following good story: "Travelling in his buggy alone, not long ago, in going to one of his appointments, one of our good brethren in the Presbytery of Memphis overtook a "foot pad" with his carpet-bag in his hand. The roads were muddy and he was just at the time about entering a miry bottom. With the politeness for which he is noted, he asked the pedestrian (an entire stranger) if he would not take a seat in the buggy until, at least, they had crossed the mud and the mire. The invitation was readily accepted, and the conversation for a time was free and easy, about things ordinary and general. Presently, however, the good brother, with a view to make the conversation profitable, asked the stranger if he was ready to die! Not knowing the character of the person who had invited him to a seat with him, and misapprehending his meaning, and suspecting foul play, he waited not to reply, but sprang from the buggy immediately, and ran for life through slush and water. The clerical brother, wishing to assure the stranger that he meant no harm, called to him at the top of his voice to stop. But this only hastened his speed, and like a scared hare, he ran until beyond hearing and sight. In his hasty flight he left his carpet-sack, which our brother has now in his possession, being the richer for his faithfulness by the addition of a coarse shirt and a pair of threadbare trousers and a little "backer." If any one should hear of the owner inquiring for such goods they are at liberty to direct him to this office, where fuller information can be obtained."

State News.

Exeter has 203 persons, firms and estates paying taxes of $60 or over.

North Hampton post-office every morning, has the daily probabilities posted in a glass case. The statement is printed at one o'clock in the morning in Boston and comes by the 7.30 train.

The young men of Stratham are making an effort to organize a military company to be known as the Stratham Cadets.

George Eastman of East Weare has lost an eye by the horn of an ox he was driving.

Barney Gallinger jumped out of a window at Milford on the 18th and broke his neck.

A car with open sides and pivot cane seat chairs has been put on the Portland and Ogdensburg Railroad between North Conway and Bartlett for those who enjoy the scenery more than they fear dust and cinders. There are two each way daily.

John W. Brown, of Nashua, was on a load of hay entering his barn, when a wheel entered a partially filled well and the load tipped over. Mr. Brown jumped and struck against the barn, slipping down under the horse's feet. When found he lay under the horse with the shafts across his stomach. He died next day.

Joseph C. Connor of Franklin, a railroad employe who had lost the sight of one eye, destroyed the vision in the other, recently, a piece of iron flying from his work into it.

A house, barn and outbuildings belonging to J. Noble of Lee, were burned on the 11th, with their contents. Loss about $4000; no insurance.

Alfred Chagon, while boating with a companion, on the 12th, at about one o'clock, in the canal of the Nashua Manufacturing Company, was drowned. His age was twenty-one years. A few minutes after the accident the body was recovered.

The New York express over the Concord Railroad ran into a freight train near the bridge over the Nashua River, on the Nashua side, on the 12th, and as a result both trains were badly damaged. The cause was a misplaced switch. The down train consisted of two Pullman and one baggage car, and was freighted with passenger. The engine disconnected with the down train before crossing the bridge. The switchman forgot the freight, and set the switch after the hour passed so as to send the Pullman cars directly into the engine of the freight train. The engine and tender of the freight train were badly smashed, the tender being almost a total wreck. The platforms of the Pullman cars were all stove to pieces except one, which being of the Miller patent stood the shock. Conductor Twombly, who had charge of the train, was slightly injured, and one or two of the passengers were injured. All were very much frightened. It was a very fortunate escape for all on board the train.

Sunday trains are to be run from Plymouth and Lancaster on the Boston, Concord and Montreal Railroad, to accommodate those wishing to hear Henry Ward Beecher, who will preach each Sunday at Carroll during his stay at the Twin Mountain House.

Thirst Quenched Without Drinking.

It may not be generally known that water, even salt water, imbibed through the skin, appeases thirst almost as well as fresh water taken inwardly. In illustration of this subject a correspondent has sent the following abridged quotation from a "Narrative of Captain Kennedy's Losing his Vessel, and his Distresses Afterwards," which was noticed in "Dodsley's Annual Register" for 1869: I cannot conclude without making mention of the great advantage I received from soaking my clothes twice a day in salt water, and putting them on without wringing. It was considerable time before I could make the people comply with this measure, although from seeing the good effect produced, they afterward practiced it twice a day of their own accord. To this discovery I may with justice attribute the preservation of my own life and six other persons', who must have perished if it had not been put in use. The saline particles, however, which remained in our clothes became incrusted by the heat of the sun and that of our bodies, lacerating our skins, and being otherwise inconvenient; but we found that by washing out these particles, and frequently wetting our clothes without wringing, twice in the course of a day, the skin became well in a short time. After these operations we uniformly found that the violent drought went off, and the parched feeling was cured in a few minutes after bathing and washing our clothes; and at the same time we found ourselves as much refreshed as if we had received some actual nourishment. Four persons in the boat who drank salt water went delirious and died; but those who avoided this and followed the above practice experienced no such symptoms.

Report of the Board of Education.

The law providing for a general superintendence of the schools of the State was enacted in 1846 and Prof. C. B. Haddock of Dartmouth College was the first Superinsendent. The next year Prof. Rust succeeded and some years later the law was changed so that a Board of Education was provided, consisting of a Commissioner in each county. Six years ago it was changed to a general superintendent again. Since then Amos Hadley, A. C. Hardy and J. W. Symonds have held the office, each two years.

The report of Prof. Symonds made to the legislature last June, has been received by his favor. I will say in the outset that I have all the reports from the beginning, except that of Prof. Haddock, and they make a valuable part of my library. They constitute a good history of educational matters in the State for 26 years, with statistics and suggestions of immense worth.

But no report in the past is so full and complete as that of Prof. Symonds. There are 318 pages. Some measures of the superintendent were the means of drawing out some things in the condition and workings of our educational syscem, the sad deficiencies in school apparatus, text books, incompetent teachers, &c. This was done by circulars sent out in March last to Supt. Committees in all the towns, and to several experienced teachers, with questions relative to the subjects already named. Answers were received from 85 towns and 13 teachers. The answers in a condensed form are given in the report and the information is valuable indeed.

In this report great stress is laid on the necessity of having qualified and otherwise competent teachers; of the good influence of parental visits to the schools of Prudential and Superintending Committees doing their duty faithfully. It gives a full account of the Teachers' Institutes held in the several counties the past year, with the outlines of the instruction given in them. In this outline there is a vast deal of scientific information. There are extracts from the reports of Superintending Committees and full statistical tables, and then added a list of the Supt. Committees of the several towns with other school officers so far as obtained, and a list of the Academies and High Schools in the State, and the names of those who have charge of them.

It is to be wished that this report could be circulated among the people at large. Our educational interests are important and it is gratifying to know that notwithstanding some bad deficiencies, the cause of popular instruction in the State is advancing.

The Malady of the Sea.

The following remarks respecting seasickness are from the pen of a Tribune correspondent in France, who has often crossed the "herring-pond:"

"Don't hope to escape it. Don't be deluded by the stories of people who found the ocean as smooth as a lake, and were not sick a day. You will have no such good luck. The sensible thing to do is to expect to be sick and to make preparations for it, for by so doing you can moderate the severity of the complaint somewhat and perhaps shorten its duration a day or two. Don't be deluded by the two or three days of still weather, after you leave New York, into fancying yourself proof against illness, and gorging yourself upon the four or five meals a day that will be put before you. You can't tell what kind of a voyage you will have until the steamer has got out of the fog on the Banks of Newfoundland. Then you come to what the sailors call the "Devil's Hole," and if you are not buffeted there by adverse winds and furious seas for two or three days, it will be a piece of good luck that you ought to be thankful for; and the worst of it is that, when you get out of this stormy "Hole" you have only jumped from the frying-pan into the fire, for you come straight into the "Roaring Forties" (40° latitude and 40° longitude,) and here you will get a shaking up if nowhere else.

You can count upon a three days' hard blow here, or in the Devil's Hole, and it will take two or three days more for the sea to go down afterward, so that the ship will become tolerably steady again, and you can go on deck without getting drenched with spray. Usually for the first thousand miles of the voyage and the last thousand the weather is fair and the sea tranquil. It's the middle thousand that you have to dread. There you are almost certain to have rough weather, and of course you will be sick—dreadfully sick—for sea-sickness must be counted among the most severe of all trials that poor human nature is called upon to bear in this world. It is a complete paralysis of the will, a fading out of hope, a bewitching of the brain which keeps it from finding any comfort in memories of the past or expectations of the future. A deathly poison appears to have been infused into every nerve and muscle.

The good, green, solid earth seems a faint vision of some other planet, and there is no reality but the bitter, tossing waves, the lurching, groaning ship, the fierce wind shrieking in the cordage, the dull, gray, pitiless sky, and the torturing malady that has possession of you. Dante never could have been at sea, or he would have had in one of the circles of his Inferno a ship in a north-east gale, full of sea-sick souls longing forever for land. I said that one could moderate the severity of the illness and perhaps shorten its duration. To do this, diet for a fortnight before embarking, living chiefly upon coarse bread, fruits, and lean meat, to get rid of any superfluous bile that may be lurking about your system. When you are sick, don't force all sorts of trash down into your stomach, because your friends say such and such things gave them relief. What helps one man hurts another. The only prescription I know of that is of general application is—eat ice. Have a glass full of small pieces of ice at hand at all times, and eat all you want. It is very light diet: but it is about all you will care to put in your suffering stomach for a while. As to food and drink, trust your own inclinations rather than anybody's advice. Some people find relief in apples, others in champagne, and others in salt or baked potatoes. Get on deck whenever the weather is fair, and if you can't walk get somebody to carry you up. Finally, I can only repeat the advice the French doctor gave me the other day when I called him in after six days of misery in the faint hope that he could do something for me: Il faut supporter votre maladie avec patiencer il n'y a pas d autre remede.

[The fact is, you must bear your malady with patience; there is no other remedy."]

The Habit of Reading.

[Scribner's for August.]

"I have no time to read,' is the common complaint, and especially of women, whose occupations are such as to prevent continuous book perusal. They seem to think, because they cannot devote as much attention to books as they are compelled to devote to their avocations, that they cannot read anything. But this is a great mistake. It isn't the books we finish at a sitting which always do us the most good. Those we devour in the odd moments, half a dozen pages at a time, often give more satisfaction, and are more thoroughly digested than those we make a particular effort to read. The men who have made their mark in the world have generally been the men who have in boyhood formed the habit of reading at every available moment, whether for hve minutes or five hours.

It is the habit of reading rather than the time at our command that helps us on the road to learning. Many of the most cultivated persons, whose names have been famous as students, have given only two or three hours a day to their books. If we make use of spare minutes in the midst of our work, and read a little, if but a page or a paragraph, we shall find our brains quickened and our toil lightened by just so much increased satisfaction as the book gives us. Nothing helps along the monotonous daily round so much as fresh and striking thoughts, so be considered while our hands are busy. A new idea from a new volume is like oil which reduces the friction of the machinery of life. What we remember from brief glimpses into books often serve as a stimulus to action, and becomes one of the most precious deposits in the treasury of our recollection. All knowledge is made up of small parts, which would seem insignificant in themselves, but which, taken together, are valuable weapons for the mind and substantial armor for the soul. "Read anything continuously," says Dr. Johnson, "and you will be learned." The odd minutes which we are inclined to waste, if carefully availed of for instruction, will in the long run, make golden hours and golden days that we shall be ever thankful for.

—Society in India is greatly afflicted by the ravages of man-eating tigers, whose appetites are something appalling. In the British Provinces alone, over 4,000 persons are snatched from life yearly by these destructive monsters, while it is estimated that 10,000 fall a prey to the same scourge in the native states. These beasts lie in wait on the roads like robbers, lurk around the villages, and strike down any that come in their way without respect to age or condition. There is one old man-eating tiger of this description who has feasted for years upon such sanguinary work, and has grown rich by the destruction he has carried into peaceable and well disposed homes. In India a large reward is paid for the scalps of these man-eaters.

Business Notices.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CARWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. ta28

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

Putting Down Rebellion.

When the stomach rebels against food, and obstinately refuses to digest sufficient aliment to keep the body well nourished, it can only be compelled to resume its natural duties by a wholesome tonic. The powerful alkaloids so often administered for this purpose are not wholesome. They are, for the most part, deadly poisons, and even when taken in very small quantities, re-act violently upon the nervous system. Not so Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This salutary combination of vegetable juices, embracing the finest invigorants and alteratives which the botanical kingdom affords, operates mildly, steadily and beneficially upon the digestive, secretive and discharging organs. In dyspepsia, bilious affections, nervous complaints and periodic fevers, chronic constipation, bodily weakness, mental depression, languor, sleeplessness, and the various disabilities incident to old age and premature decay, its effects are so wonderful that to be comprehended they must be witnessed or experienced.

Success Based upon Merit.

It is a subject of general remark, among both wholesale and retail druggists, that no medicine introduced to the American public ever gained such a popularity and met with so large a sale in all parts of the land, in the same length of time, as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This cannot depend upon its having been more largely advertised than any other medicine, as such is not the case. The correct explanation, we think, is found in the fact that this medicine produces the most wonderful and perfect cures of very bad cases of bronchial, throat and lung diseases, and is undoubtedly the most perfect and efficient remedy for all kinds of coughs that has ever been introduced to the public, and at the same time possesses the greatest of blood-purifying and strengthening properties that medical science has been able to produce, thus rendering it a sovereign remedy not only in the cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Hoarseness and Coughs, but also for all diseases of the liver and blood, as scrofulous diseases, blotches, rough skin, pimples, black specks and discolorations. It has therefore a wide range of application and usefulness, and it not only gives the most perfect satisfaction to all who use it, but far exceeds the expectations of the most sanguine, thus eliciting the loudest praise, and making perfect living advertising mediums of all who use it. 692

NOTICE TO BATHERS.

IT is right and proper that men should go into the river and bathe; and there is a proper place to do it. But when they so far forget themselves as to come as near a dwelling house as they have seen several times the last week, it shows a lack of decency and delicacy. I hope those men who can row a boat so well, will in future go around the point, out of sight of my house, or come prepared with bathing clothes, if they wish to avoid public gaze.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA,

FOR PURIFYING THE BLOOD.

This compound of the vegetable alteratives, Sarsaparilla, Dock, Stillingia and Mandrake with the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, makes a most effectual cure of a series of complaints which are very prevalent and afflicting. It purifies the blood, purges out the lurking humors in the system that undermine health and settle into troublesome disorders. Eruptions of the skin are the appearance on the surface of humors that should be expelled from the blood. Internal derangements are the determination of these same humors to some internal organ, or organs, whose action they derange, and whose substance they disease and destroy. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA expels these humors from the blood. When they are gone, the disorders they produce disappear, such as Ulcerations of the Liver, Stomach, Kidney, Lungs, Eruptions and Eruptive Diseases of the Skin, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Pimples, Pustules, Blotches, Boils, Tumors, Tetter and Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ringworm, Ulcers and Sores, Rheumatism and Neuralgia, Pain in the Bones, Side and Head, Female Weakness, Sterility, Leucorrhoea arising from internal ulceration and uterine disease, Dropsy, Dyspepsia, Dysmenorrhoea and General Debility. With their departure, health returns.

Local Matters.

Wonderful Manifestations.

Mrs. Mary M. Hardy, the famous Boston "medium," was in Portsmouth, Wednesday, and we accepted an invitation from a believer in spiritualism to attend a seance at which new developments in materializing were promised, and the request was made that we be watchful and note any deception. Mrs. Hardy is well known to be a lady in whom many have confidence that there is no deceit. As a trance "medium" she is said to have no superior, and messages purporting to come from spirit friends have been accepted as such by the believers in spiritualism. Within three months, we are informed, the new developments of "materialization" have commenced. Eighteen persons, including Mrs. Hardy, were present at the seance, Wednesday evening, mostly believers in the "new gospel of peace." The preparations for the exercises of the evening were made in the presence of all, a wide extension table having shawls tacked around one end of it, so that no light could penetrate the space under it. One leaf was removed from the table and a large box procured from a neighboring grocery was placed over the aperture. This box had a top, sides and back to it, but no bottom or front. Opposite the box, Mrs. Hardy and another lady were seated, the uncovered part of the table being surrounded by the rest of the "circle." A kerosene lamp in full light was placed at one side of the room, and concealed so that it should not shine in the eyes of those present.

A wish having been expressed that messages be written on a slate, a gentleman present procured one from a neighbor and returned with it and a pencil. A tiny piece of pencil was then placed on the slate and the lady who sat opposite Mrs. Hardy held the slate under the table and up against it, Mrs. Hardy being just able to reach it from the opposite side with the tips of her fingers. Instantly the sound of writing was heard and three ticks of the pencil announced that it was finished. Withdrawing the slate, a name was seen written on its upper surface. This was repeated, different persons holding the slate with Mrs. Hardy. One person present was surprised to find the name of one of Portsmouth's ex-Mayors on the slate, written in a bold hand. A message from him being asked for, in about ten seconds it appeared as follows "——, do your duty." "What is my duty?" was the query, and the answer came immediately, "——, tell the truth." The answer was hailed with laughter by the jolly company present. Holding the slate under the table with nothing on it, the pencil being on the table in plain sight, the sound of writing was again heard and the message on the slate read, "You are a good work." The last word being indistinguishable and the sentence indefinite, request was made that it be written again, and without a pencil on the slate, the slate being held close up to the table, the word was plainly written on the top surface (as all the others had been) "work." It is unnecessary to add that most of those present were astonished, and were confident that Mrs. Hardy could not have written the messages. Full examination of the table showed no evidence of machinery, wires or any conceivable thing which could be used to deceive the company.

Finally, the writing stopped, the light was put out and the process of "materializing" commenced, those in the circle singing. This continued about ten minutes, when the raps were heard and the lamp lighted. The "circle" joined hands and watched the box. After a while something arose out of the aperture and some one said it was a baby's hand. More light being desired, the wish was acceded to and several hands were shown very plainly, the fingers and thumb being distinctly seen. Sitting within two feet of the box, we instinctively tried to seize a hand, but it went from under our touch like the "wicked flea." 'Twasn't "thar." On being requested to allow hand-shaking, several of the party walked to the box and the hands would occasionally touch theirs. One man said he had a hand-shake. All this time, Mrs. Hardy and the lady opposite were sitting with one hand each on the box, the others being held in the circle. Finally, a hand purporting to be that of "Big Dick," a negro who was once a well-known character in Boston, was shown and the seance closed. Several of those present thought the whole affair was carried on by trickery, while a majority believed that Mrs. Hardy did not stoop to any such deception. Does "materializing" prove a future existence or that spirits do these wondrous things?

Portsmouth & Dover Railroad.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad was held at the Cottage House, Dover Point, Thursday, for the purpose of choosing a Board of Directors for the coming year, and to decide if the Road will accept the act of the legislature approved July 2, 1873, entitled "An act in relation to the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad."

President Jones called the meeting to order, and, after the reading of the call by J. S. H. Frink, Esq., stated the first business to be that of the election of a Board of Directors. Mayor Marvin stated that the city of Portsmouth was represented at the meeting by Aldermen Sise and Wilson and himself, and requested information in regard to the number of votes they were entitled to cast in behalf of the city. The same question came up from the Dover representatives, Mayor Horton and Aldermen Sawyer and Hayes, who, with the Portsmouth city government, withdrew to consult together in regard to their privileges in acting for the two cities.

It was suggested by President Jones that the cities being largely interested in the Road they should have the choice of the committee to count the votes. On motion of Alderman Wilson a committee, consisting of Alderman Wilson, Mayor Horton and Mayor Marvin, was appointed by the chair.

The following gentlemen were announced as the Board of Directors chosen: Frank Jones, Daniel Marcy, Oliver Wyatt, Andrew H. Young, Albert R. Hatch, John H. Bailey and Amos D. Purinton, each having 1740 votes.

On motion it was voted to accept the recent act of the Legislature relating to the Road.

It was voted that the time of holding the annual meeting be changed to the second Saturday of August.

The President and Treasurer were authorized to dispose of any real estate or other property that may be in possession of the road, and not required for the use of said road.

The Treasurer, Geo. L. Treadwell, Esq., made an informal report which showed the finances to be in a flourishing condition.

It having been reported that the cost of the Road would exceed the original estimates, constructing engineer Johnson made a statement to the effect that such a story had no foundation in fact, as he had no reason to believe at the present stage of affairs that it would exceed the original estimate of $600.000.

The meeting then adjourned and the Directors were immediately called together for the choice of officers, which resulted as follows: Frank Jones, President; George L. Treadwell, Treasurer; J. S. H. Frink, Clerk.

We are indebted to the gentlemanly proprietor of the Cottage House at Dover Point, Mr. Horace A. Lemos, for courtesies. He will have his reward in the future, when the Portsmouth & Dover Railroad makes his house the hotel of that region.

More About Portsmouth Banks.

[Communicated.]

Two gentlemen who were Directors of the old New Hampshire Bank when it wound up business, inform me that the old story respecting the happy return of the missing $16,000 to the family of the deceased cashier whose account was found short by that amount years before, is a myth. They say that they, like the public generally, never regarded said cashier as a defaulter; but his property was taken by the bank, and never restored—though he claimed that the deficiency was caused by the burning of bills at the time the banking-house was destroyed. The story of the repayment of this money was published in the CHRONICLE a few years ago by Uncle Toby and not contradicted; but we do not see how our present informants can be mistaken.

A singular incident in connection with this old bank, the first that was incorporated in the State, we believe, these gentlemen relate: of the first issue of bills, thirty thousand dollars never came back! Whether this was the whole amount of the issue, they could not say; but the engraving and printing of the notes was so coarse and poor that they think they must have been generally regarded as worthless counterfeits, and destroyed.

It may not be amiss here to say that it was not designed to recall any unpleasant allusions, and therefore no names were given, when referring to deficiencies, or defalcations—as the same result differently termed, from different standpoints. And it is but fair to state that the cashier of the Commercial Bank, who was "caught short," always denied anything on his part and numerous well informed friends competent to judge to this day regard him an innocent and aggrieved man.

A gentlemen of long memory informs us that there was a defalcation or deficiency of several thousand dollars—he thinks between $10,000 and $20,000—in the accounts of the old U. S. Branch Bank here.

And, for an incident, another gentleman tells us that the old Commercial Bank, during its eighteen years' existence, we believe,—paid 20 per cent. annually on its capital stock. M.

A Big Boo.

[Dover Democrat.]

Portsmouth is trying to make a big boo because somebody from Pennsylvania, said to be the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, is going to have a coal yard on Noble's Island, near the terminus of the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad. This is all very well, but Dover intends to ship her coal directly from Philadelphia, first purchasing it at the mines, landing it upon our wharves here without going into the Portsmouth "crib." And Dover also intends to have a "crib," or at all events, a coal station at the Point as soon as the P. & D. Road is completed, so we can get our coal from there any time after the ice prevents navigation up the river. Dover don't intend to pay tribute to anybody's coal-hoal much longer. Mind that!

And haven't you any idea that there other places besides Dover which consume coal, Joshua? A "coal hoal" at Dover Point cannot supply the world east and west of it.

Shoo Fly!

The frisky fly is muchly a nuisance in a barber's shop, and occasions profanity compared to which the product of a razor that "pulls" is tame and passionless. Any man who has ever had a fly walk across his forehead, dance a little jig in the corner of each eye and wiggle his legs in his ear, while the barber was holding his head back by firmly griping his nose, and deftly sliding the razor along his throat, will shudder to remember his apostrophe to the fly, as soon as he was released. The proprietor of a shaving saloon in this city has been much annoyed this season by flies, and the language of some of his patrons, consequent on the flies' attention, and fearing for the ultimate destiny of the said patrons in case they did not reform, he at last hit upon a new way to get rid of the troublesome insects. Procuring an iron pot and some sulphur, he waited until business was over for the day, and then closed all the windows of the saloon, built a fire in the iron pot, put in the sulphur, and locking the door of the place, went home and dreamed that he swept up three peaks of dead flies. When one of his assistants opened the shop, next morning he was greeted by a smell which made him for a few moments fancy that he must have died during the night and by some accident had arrived at the wrong place; but a fall over the sulphur kettle and an eye bruised against a chair satisfied him that he was yet in the flesh, and after opening all the windows he laid down on his back upon the floor, and watched the entire army of flies playing hide-and-go-seek in and out of the cloud of smoke in the upper part of the room, for an hour, before the air of the place got fit for a man to breathe. He thinks his boss mistook his vocation when he became a barber.

Laconics.

The next thing in order is a clam-bake.

The stormy weather put the hackmen in high glee. They firmly believe that "every cloud has a silver lining."

"Old Probs" was in bad humor Thursday. Everybody was trying to borrow an umbrella, or to recover the one that had been borrowed.

Gov. Straw has sent an invitation to the President to accompany him on a visit to the Isles of Shoals and from thence to the beaches.

Everybody knows that the democratic party has been ailing for some time; but if it should nominate Frank Jones for Governor, it will ale worse than ever.

All persons interested in obtaining a full supply of water are requested to meet at the Common Council room on Saturday evening at 7.30.

Mr. J. E. Ham is selling gallons of the famous Poland water to sufferers from kidney diseases, and remarkable cures are reported by those who drink freely of it.

A north-east storm commenced here on Thursday. The visitors at the beaches and Shoals were in high glee. The surf came up to the Farragut House and the waves "ran mountain high."

Young rascals will persist in stealing CHRONICLES and GAZETTES from subscribers' door-steps.—We are very anxious to pay a liberal reward for the arrest of these budding Tammanyites.

The republicans of York county have renominated Hon. John E. Butler, of the Biddeford Journal, for Senator. He is faithful, able and fearless, and is an excellent legislator.

The editor of the Times figures Gen. Butler's fortune away up in the millions and states that he "stole every cent of it." It must be consoling to the democrats who stand the regular assessments to keep a daily paper alive, of such accuracy in its statements, that every cent of the deficit in their attempt to publish the truth, is honestly expended by their mouthpiece, who never takes anything out of his reach.

Our annual visitor is snugly ensconced at its summer quarters. They buried some of it deep—in the cess-pool, and the water of the North mill-pond covered the rest of it some of the time. For the partial relief, our citizens were thankful, and just as they thought they were rid of it, it came again. Do you know whereof we write? If not, promenade Islington street when the tide is out and the wind north of west—and keep your nostrils in a receptive condition.

The blasting at Jackman's and Bartlett's springs, Newburyport, is completed. Six dualin explosions were made, which increased the flow from 700,000 gallons to 1,000,000 per day, which will be ample for the city for the next century. Without doubt the committee will report in favor of taking the water from this source. It is very pure, containing but a half grain of organic matter to the gallon. While our citizens are complaining of lack of water, it is pleasing to know that people of other cities are moving successfully for an abundant supply.

Capt. Thos. H. Eastman, of the navy, is frequently accompanied on trips between this city and the navy yard, per steamer Emerald, by a pair of very fine, pure blooded setter dogs. The presence of dogs in the Emerald's cabin is interdicted, a fact of which these two are well aware, and they never offer to enter it, though they generally look in to see who is there. Recently the Emerald was laid up for a few trips, and her place was supplied by the Plymouth's steam launch. The dogs took passage, as usual, but—not as usual—got into the stern compartment of the boat; but after inspecting the cushions and evidently becoming satisfied that they were trespassing on forbidden ground, they jumped upon the landing stage, walked to the other end of the launch and again got on board, without a word of reproof or command being spoken to them by any person. How did they know the stern from the bow of a vessel they had never seen before?

City Huckleberrying.

[Hartford Times.]

Huckleberrying in the city and huckleberrying in the country are no more alike than a sickly "city swell" is like a healthy country squash. In the country the boys and girls get up bright and early in the morning, and soon after daylight the huckleberry pastures are vocal with their shouts and laughter, as they pick the berries and shake the dew drops from the bushes before the morning sun has kissed them. In the city the boys and girls also get up—usually a long time after sunrise—and apparently don't seem to regard it as their mission upon earth to make anybody's huckleberry pasture vocal, or shake the dew drops from innocent bushes before "Old Sol" has had a chance to embrace them. City youths are fond of huckleberries, and delight in picking them. They prefer to pick them from a bushel basket in front of a grocery store. This method may not be so romantic or rural, but it is more to their liking.

Yesterday morning we halted for a few moments on the corner of Main and Mulberry streets, and saw a number of city boys go by with hands and mouths showing the unmistakable "sign" of huckleberries. We wonder if Toohy, Leavitt or Warner hadn't been selling huckleberries by auction. We finally started for a stroll up town, and we met still other boys with huckleberry stains about their classic features. As we neared a grocery store, being of an observant nature, we noticed another thing. In front of the store, in a capacious basket, was a tempting lot of huckleberries. We saw the basket, we saw the berries, and a moment later we saw something else. It was a boy. We feel sure it was a boy. He had a yeast pail in his hand. As he entered the store, down went his hand into the huckleberry basket, and when he raised it he had more huckleberries than any country boy ever got at one dive. When he left the store the operation was repeated. But this was not so very bad, as the youth was a patron of the store. He had just purchased a cent's worth of yeast and it would be hard indeed if he couldn't be allowed to appropriate a few handfuls of berries.

While the boy was inside buying his yeast, another lad came along down town whistling "Yankee Doodle." As he approached the store he diverged from a straight line just enough to carom lightly on the outside of the huckleberry basket, and then without halting in his walk or dropping a stitch in the tune, he grabbed a handful of berries and kept on. Directly the whistling subsided. The lad couldn't eat huckleberries and whistle too.

During our rambles we noticed the other grocery stores were subject to the same toll, and wondered no longer why berries were so high. As a rule, where honey is, bees are sure to be, and where huckleberries are the b's are pretty sure to be boys who ought to let the huckleberries be.

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being deducted, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22½ Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be thrown in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The Great South American Blood Purifier.
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the Stomach and Intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
If SWORN to on FIRSTLY TAKES, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

The Stars at the Branch.

[New York Sun.]

Have you any enjoyments at Long Branch besides the bathing, promenading, dancing and driving? Have you any social pleasures here independent of your own set or family? Is there any exchange of visits and hospitalities among the residents, any forming of acquaintances and general sociality among the habitues of the hotels?

These questions were addressed to a very intelligent and refined lady of New York, a woman of society in the best sense of the word, by a representative of the Sun, as they together watched the game of Chivalrie that some pretty children were playing on the lawn. "Yes; I think there is a great deal," was the reply. "The cottagers frequently attend the hops, and mingle with the hotel guests very sociably. I have formed some very agreeable acquaintances in that way, that have ripened into intimacies after my return to town. I have spent part of the last four summers here, and there is a growing intimacy among those who return every summer. Of course, in such vast crowds there must be formed by those of similar tastes. Like attracts like, and we drift about and settle, naturally, where we find congeniality. There is so much room here, the distances of the summer capital, like those of the national capital, are so magnificent, there is no need of clashing. This hotel is so well managed, and I believe the remark applies to others also, that we are not afraid to form acquaintances among the permanent guests. There are circles among the cottage people also; some are very hospitable and entertain liberally, keeping a kind of open house; others affect to be exclusive, and see but little company, while others strike a medium course and take life and society as they find them, and relax and recreate very charmingly while participating with moderation in the pleasures of the place. Others see nobody, and are suspected of downright don't-care-ative slipshoddity in their way of living.

"Do you know any of the STARS OF THE STAGE

who make their homes here?" said the reporter. "Yes, a few," was the reply. "I know Mrs. Paddock, Maggie Mitchell, and her husband; Mr. and Mrs. Albaugh, Maggie's sister Mary, you know; Edwin Adams and the Chanfraus, Mrs. James Wallack and her mother, Mrs Rufus Blake. I shall be pleased to take you out to see some of them when I drive this afternoon." The invitation was accepted, and, after luncheon, behind Mrs. Y.'s fleet dapple-grays, the reporter was taken by the lady with her three little children down Ocean avenue, past Cottage Place, through Park and out by Cedar avenue toward Eatontown. Along this drive are most of the cottages of the "stars," which Mrs. Y. pointed out.

"THEODORE MOSS

and Lester Wallack do not nestle away among the trees as the others have done," said the lady. "You see their villas here on Ocean avenue. Both are very wealthy, and live here in style, and affect other society than that of the Thespian world. There's Mr. Moss now on the verandah reading a paper. See, he affects the slipshod style. That's fashionable here, and Mr. Moss is a very fashionable man. He wears a striped shirt in the morning hours; the stripes run longitudinally, not horizontally. He takes extra nice care of his teeth and nails. He learned that in Paris. Parisians, you know, are exquisite in the care of their persons. I mean their skins; but they are careless about their linen. A Frenchman is sure to bathe every day, but his shirt-front looks nice only every other day."

Reporter—Does Mr. Moss imitate Frenchmen in these little matters?

Mrs. Y. (opening her eyes)—I don't know. I never saw him but twice. Once at a ball in the Academy of Music, when he was elegantly attired, and his wife was dazzling in her splendor of lace and diamonds; and once on his cottage piazza, where he wore a dark striped shirt-front, and looked uncomfortable.

LESTER WALLACK.

We will not call there nor at Lester Wallack's to-day. Mr. Wallack's house is magnificently furnished, and he entertains the most aristocratic society here. At Mrs. James Wallack's we will stop a few minutes as we return. To Mr. Chanfrau's first. (To the coachman).

It's nice to have a charming woman for a cicerone. "Kit" and his beautiful wife received the party with charming hospitality. They showed them through the house, and told the story of their first acquaintance and falling in love, and marriage; and talked about their varied experiences starring it in winter, then separated by engagements, with the utmost naïveté.

"Do you know," said Mr. Chanfrau to the reporter, "that it has been reported several times that we were separated, and we cannot deny it, for we are separated every winter."

"But we make arrangements to meet," said Mrs. Chanfrau, "more frequently than any one is aware," and she laughed as only a happy and healthy woman can laugh. She is a picture of joyous life, and contented womanhood and motherhood.

THE CHANFRAUS

have two little children, boys, one at school in Connecticut, the other, little Frank, named for his father, a lively little six-year old, running about the "Nest," as they call their home, as full of mischief as a kitten. He tried to play the Arkansas Traveller on his toy fiddle.

There are many interesting pictures on the walls of this pretty home of the Chanfraus. One a portrait of Julia Dean, which hangs in Mr. Chanfrau's little sanctum, is a very fine painting, a full-length picture, representing her in a dramatic attitude, with uplifted head and outstretched bare arm, and dressed in shimmering white silk robe and pearl ornaments. A portrait of Scott and one of Charles Burke—the half brother of the elder Joe Jefferson, the grandfather of Rip Van Winkle Joe—hang on the walls also.

The reporter asked Mr. Chanfrau whether it was true that these Jeffersons were of the same family as Thomas Jefferson, the AUTHOR OF THE DECLARATION.

"It is certainly true," said Mr. Chanfrau, "and I have heard that when the first Joe Jefferson began to attract public attention as an actor, the statesman and sage wrote him a complimentary note, and invited him to visit Monticello. Joe Jefferson, with sturdy independence, declined to do so, writing a polite but firm and manly letter, saying that 'as their pathways in life were in such different directions, the acquaintance would not probably be a source of pleasure or profit to either.'"

Reporter—Your story is too good to be kept from the public, Mr. Chanfrau.

Mr. C.—Print it if you wish to. Col. Thorpe told me it, and he is old enough to know how to tell the truth.

Reporter—Mr. Chanfrau, your house seems to possess that charming diversity of plan and construction which results from additions, made from time to time, as they were required.

Mr. C.—That's just the way we built our "Nest." The old house we bought on the place was said to be

A HUNDRED YEARS OLD.

That was fifteen years ago. We have added a little every year, I believe, until it spreads over a considerable area.

Reporter—What do you do with your little boy when you are starring, Mrs. Chanfrau?

Mrs. C.—When not too far from home (this is our home all the year, summer and winter), I take him and my sister, Miss Baker, with me. When I go West I leave him with my sister, or take him, just as we all think best at the time. If I did not have my sister, I do not know how I could keep my professional engagements. She is a mother to my children. We always have some of our relatives or friends with us.

Reporter—How do you pass your time during your months of recreation down here?

Mrs. C.—Pretty much as others do. We all jump into the wagon every morning and go to our bath on the beach.

THE BATH OF GREATNESS.

Our bathing place is just below the President's. We see him and some of his family in the sea almost every morning. In the afternoon we drive, or stay at home and receive our friends.

Mr. Chanfrau.—The regular theatrical people form a very pleasant circle here among themselves. We visit and have little parties and dinners, and enjoy ourselves like boys and girls out of school during the recreation season. We begin to study about a month before we begin our engagements.

On the way back to town we were told that the Lester Wallack family, the Hoeys, and the Mosses were more associated with the ordinary society people, and less with the theatricals, than the others. Mr. James W. Wallack, who was the pioneer settler among the dramatic people at the Branch, came here twenty-five or thirty years ago. The others followed him. His family are very popular among their confreres of the dramatic circle. The Paddocks, the Albaughs, the Chanfraus, and the Adamses make a little circle of their own. George Ryer, the Napoleon of the stars, is one of that set, too, while J. R. Floyd, the manager of the Boston Globe Theatre, who lost so heavily on Fechter, and Canning, the agent of Carlotta Leclerq, are also intimates of that clique.

For a few minutes the party halted at Edwin Adams' door.

ENOCH ARDEN'S JOE.

He came out to meet them, and one of the children began the interview with Enoch Arden thus:

Little Boy (to Mr. Adams)—Have you any little ones?

Mr. Adams (laughing and blushing)—No, I have not.

Little Boy—I'm very sorry.

Mr. A.—So am I. What's your name?

Little Boy—Benjamin Franklin. What's your name?

Mr. A.—They call me Enoch Arden sometimes, sometimes Mercutio, sometimes Iago, sometimes Othello. Those that know me best call me Edwin. Which name will you call me by?

Little Boy—Edwin. Have you any horses?

Mr. A.—Yes, I have horses. The one I like best is named "Joe," and he can pace faster than any horse at the Branch can trot.

Reporter.—Mr. Chanfrau tells me that you stars have a fine time down here while recreating in the summer.

Mr. A.—Yes, we enjoy life passing well, but not so much as in former years before we became prosperous and adopted the state and ceremony that attend on greatness. We used to be less conventional and less stupid. We amused ourselves a great

Portsmouth Chronicle.

Sleep.

[Gail Hamilton.]

The one requisite to good health, good looks, sweet temper, prosperity in business, and general success in life, is sleep. I do not know whether we shall be able, as Matthew Arnold says, to "hit it off happily" with Solomon. It is, perhaps, not quite easy to tell exactly what he had in his mind; but if he meant that people should try and cut down their sleep to the smallest possible allowance, it may be superfluous, but it is certainly irresistible, to remark that I do not agree with him. But he probably did not mean that. He certainly would not be likely to differ from me. The necessity of sleep, it may be admitted, is a disagreeable necessity. To turn aside from all the pleasures of life, from the sweet consciousness of existence, to give over thought and love and memory and hope—all plans and pursuits—and go down into forgetfulness or unconsciousness, is, or seems to be, an unspeakable loss. It is a death temporary, but imperious and ever-recurring. Yet it is so universal, so gradual, so natural, that we yield to it not only without dread, but with delight. In the silent splendor of star-lit nights, which seem to put us on a brotherly footing with the whole universe, in the blackness of nights that know no star, when we seem to be standing alone in the solitude of eternity, life is too fascinating, and we begrudge a moment lost; but even then, without will, against will, the heavy eyelids droop, and, all unhindered, the sly soul slips away into some remote recess of the brain to lie in ambush for the rising dawn and the strong new world. If we could have been made to get along without sleep I should like it better, but since sleep we must, why should we quarrel with fate? Our ancestors, staunch men in many regards, have yet done the world harm by their indiscriminate abuse of sleep. One would think, to read some books, that slumber was an invention of the Evil One, to be repressed and snubbed continually. On the contrary, sleep comes nearer being a panacea than any pill or potion ever concocted. We do, indeed, yield to the truth of history so far as to tell children of beauty sleep, and bid them go to bed early; but we forget all about it in the morning, and stimulate them to early rising. Indeed, ignorance and folly some times go so far as to awaken children for the purpose of getting them up, which is just not murder in the first degree. Lay it down as the rule of family life that nobody is to be waked by external means. There may be extraordinary circumstances which justify a violation of the rule. If the house is on fire and band and steam engines fail to extinguish the flames, sleepers must be aroused; but even then begin with those nearest the fire, and bestir others only as the danger advances. I suppose it is absolutely certain that when a man has slept long enough he will wake of his own accord. The time at which sleep is taken is of less account than the amount of sleep. If it can be had in darkness, doubtless that is best, but sleep by daylight is a good thing, too. Some people take credit to themselves for accomplishing much before breakfast, but after breakfast you are constantly finding them napping on the sofa or nodding in the lounging chair. What superior virtue is there in sleeping by installment to sleeping in the lump? Some people are called lazy because they take a nap after a noonday dinner, but the efficiency of their waking-hours is a sufficient justification for their mid-day repose. Sleep anywhere and everywhere is good. Ministers complain if here and there a member of their congregation grows drowsy, but as I look around and see the hard-working men and women, all clean and fresh and smooth in their Sunday-suits, sheltered from sun, released from toil, and soothed by the pleasant voice of a well-beloved pastor into a slightly unsteady but richly earned repose, I bless them unaware. Not the least of the many benefits wrought us by the clergy is the sweet somnolence which so gently and benignly broods over a weary and happy congregation on a sultry Sunday afternoon. Foreordination and free-will may be hard to reconcile; moral and natural responsibility may be difficult of discrimination; the hearing of election on duty is not easy to see; but no man can go into an airy, pleasant church, sit down in peace among his friends neighbors, and fall softly asleep to the sound of holy words from holy lips, without great gain to the life that now is, and, I believe and trust, with no less to that which is to come.

As for Napoleon, and the others who are brandished over us as having wrought their great deeds on four hours' sleep, in the first place, I do not believe a word of it, and in the second place, if they did, it was but an exception; and we might just as well put our eyes out because Homer wrote the Iliad without any, as to rub open our eyes at four o'clock in the morning because Napoleon slept four hours in the saddle. One man's need is no rule for another man's life. There is but one infallible rule for sleepers, that every one sleeps till he wakes himself; and for the awake, that they shut the doors softly, so not to disturb those who are asleep. This is the whole duty of man.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of

divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON, Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office. EDMUND BURKE, Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed, on the claims, and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The Great South American Blood Purifier,
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and hertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and ROBORANT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Josh Billings' Experience With Lager Beer.

I hav cum to the conclusion that lager beer as a beverage is not intoxicating.

I have been told by a German, who said he had drunk it all night long, just to try the experiment, and was obliged to go home entirely sober in the morning. I hav seen this man drink eighteen glasses, and if he was drunk, he was drunk in German, and nobody could understand it. It is proper enough to say that this man kept a lager beer saloon, and had no object in stating what was not strictly thus.

I believed him to the extent of my ability. I never drank but three glasses of lager in my life, and that made my head ontwist as tho it was hung on the end of a string, but I was told it was owing to my bile being out of place; and I guess that it was so, for I never biled over wus than I did when I got hum that nite. My wife thot I was going to die, and I was afraid I shouldn't, for I felt as if everything I had ever eaten in my life was coming to the surface, and I believe if my wife had not pulled my boots off just as she did, they would hav cum thundering up too.

Oh, how sick I wus! Fourteen years ago, and I can taste it now!

I never had so much experience in so short a time.

If any man shud tell me that lager beer was not intoxicating, I shud believe him; but if he should tell me that I wasn't drunk that night, but that my stummick was out of order, I should ask him to state, in a few words, jest how a man felt and acted when he wus set up.

If I wan't drunk that nite, I had som of the most natural symptoms a man ever had and kept sober.

In the first place it was about 80 rods from the place where I drank the lager to mi house, and I was just two hours on the road, and a hole was busted through each one of mi pantaloon neez, and I didn't have any hat, and tried to open the door by the bell-pull, hiccupped awfully, and saw everything in the room trying to get round on the back side of me, and in sitting down on a chair, I did not wait long enough for it to get exactly under me when it was going round, and set down a little too soon and missed the chair by six inches, and couldn't get up in season to take the next when it cum round; and that aint awl; mi wife said I wus as drunk as a beast, and, as I said before, I began to spu up things freely.

If lager beer is not intoxicating it used me almighty mean, that I know.

Still I hardly think that lager beer is intoxicating, for I have been told so; and I am probably the only man living that ever drank enny when his liver was not plumb.

I don't want to say enything agin a harmless beverage, but if ever I drink enny more, it will be with my hands tied behind me and my mouth pried open.

I don't think lager beer is intoxicating, but if I remember rite, I think it tasts to me like a glass of soapsuds that a pickle has been put to soak in.

A Bad Boy. [Max Adeler.]

They say that the chief astronomer at the Washington observatory was dreadfully sold a few days ago. A wicked boy, whose Sunday-school experience seems only to have made him more depraved, caught a fire-fly, and stuck it, with the aid of some mucilage, in the centre of the largest lens in the telescope. That night, when the astronomer went to work, he perceived a blaze of light apparently in the heavens, and what amazed him more was that it would give a couple of spurts and then die out, only to burst forth again in a second or two. He examined it carefully for a few moments, and then began to do sums to discover where in the heavens that extraordinary star was placed. He thought he found the locality, and the next morning he telegraphed all over the universe that he had discovered a new and remarkable star of the third magnitude in Orion. In a day or two all the astronomers in Europe and America were studying Orion, and they gazed at it for hours until they were mad, and then they began to telegraph to the man in Washington to know what he meant. The discoverer took another look and found that the new star had moved about eighteen billion miles in twenty-four hours, and upon examining it closely he was alarmed to perceive that it had legs! When he went on the dome next morning, to polish up his glass, he found the lightning bug. People down to Alexandria, seven miles distant, heard part of the swearing, and they say he infused into it much whole-souled sincerity and vigorous energy. The bills for telegraphic despatches amounted to $2000, and now the astronomer wants to find that boy. He wishes to consult with him about something.

Peter Kessler and his son August were arrested, July 25, in Missouri and, taken to Calaway county for trial and were afterward committed to Jefferson City jail to prevent their being lynched. On Friday they were taken to Fulton for trial. On the way August escaped from the train. The old man pleaded guilty and was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary. The sheriff, with a posse of four men, started with the prisoner in a hack to the depot, when it was surrounded by a mob and several shots fired, mortally wounding the Sheriff and seriously wounding the prosecuting attorney, and John G. Provines, editor of the Fulton Press, John Watson, a merchant, and a young man named Dunbar, acting as guards. The prisoner was taken outside the town and hanged.

In Lynn, on Saturday, a staging on the new High street Baptist church gave way, and three workmen, named George Cuzner, James Manning and Patrick Costello, were precipitated a distance of seventy-eight feet, and were seriously, and one of them at least fatally injured.

There was one death from cholera in Louisville on Saturday, the first case in the city for two weeks.

Jeff. Davis' Election as President of the Confederacy.

Ex-Senator Foote writes in his Confederate reminiscences, published in the Washington Chronicle: "By what means Mr. Davis managed to become President I never exactly knew; though I have learned through quite a direct channel that he received for this office in the convention by which he was chosen a majority of one vote only over Howell Cobb, of Georgia. He was only elected to the place of Provisional President. Had not hostilities been actually commenced at once, he would certainly have been beaten in the popular election which afterward occurred. It was therefore all-important to him that the war should be begun as soon as possible, for nothing could be more certain than that the election of a new executive chief in the midst of war would not be deemed safe or prudent. Hence the precipitate order to fire on Fort Sumter, which was dispatched to Charleston."

—The Detroit Post complains of too many goats. It says: "Yesterday an excellent little boy named Gillis, while on the way to a neighbor's to borrow a drawing of tea for his kind mother, stooped down to adjust his shoe-string, when a venerable and vicious goat drew a sight on him and made a rush. Of course the little boy had no well-defined idea what the matter was, until later, when a lady fished him out of a rose bush in her front yard, and in an insensible condition, and carried him into the house and revived him. Boneset tea, hot mustard plasters, ice-water, gingerbread, sassafras and other antidotes were administered, and it is thought he will be quite recovered by the time Barnum gets here."

Mr. Colfax and Oakes Ames.

[Harper's Weekly.]

In the carnival of slander that attended the last Presidential campaign the honorable reputation of Schuyler Colfax was to be weighed against the fading memory and untrustworthy assertions of Oakes Ames. Against Mr. Colfax the opposition leaders seemed to turn with especial malice. Pure as had ever been his reputation in all the paths of life, eminent as were his services to freedom, they hoped to crush him by idle insinuations, and perhaps to revenge upon him the fall of slavery. The feeble and hesitating charges made against him by Oakes Ames were eagerly repeated, and the people were called upon to believe testimony that was either frivolous or contradictory, and to accept a statement as true that was denied by Colfax, and which had once been denied by his assailant. The heat of the contest has passed away, men's impulses have been softened into common sense; and the more candid of his opponents have confessed the integrity of Mr. Colfax, and the errors and contradictions of Ames. It is impossible, indeed, to read over the whole testimony of the latter, and observe the varying nature of his statements at different times, without feeling that his once vigorous intellect had become clouded, and that the disease which was so soon to bear him away had perhaps impaired those faculties which in their mature strength carried on to success one of the greatest of modern financial and engineering labors.

It has since happened that two incidents have occurred that tend to show what became of the $1,200 check marked S. C. which Ames, in one stage of the controversy, said he had paid to Colfax. About two months before his death, Mr. Ames admitted to General Clinton B. Fisk, of St. Louis, with whom he had long been in close business relationship, that he believed the check was paid to himself; that Dillon, the cashier, was correct in his statement; and he further said that Mr. Colfax had been greatly wronged in the matter. In other words, according to General Fisk's statement, which we are authorized to use, Ames himself was convinced at last that the $1,200 check was never seen nor heard of by Mr. Colfax.

No one, therefore, can any longer entertain the preposterous charge, when even its author had abandoned it; and the additional testimony of Mr. Drew, who saw Ames draw a $1,200 check on the 22d of June and pay the money to a stranger, receives confirmation from the statement of General Fisk. We should scarcely have thought this unfounded accusation deserving of another notice, so wholly unworthy is it of belief, had not these somewhat remarkable incidents tended to throw new light upon the whole transaction. The honor of our public men, too, is dear to the people. Mr. Colfax has been deeply wronged, and we believe the country will rejoice to see his untainted reputation saved from the malice of his enemies, and will do full justice to his eminent public services and the unselfish devotion with which he has given his life to the support of pure republicanism.

It would be pleasant to think, as is confidently believed by some of his friends, that Ames, had he lived, would have publicly stated that he was mistaken in the matter, and that death alone prevented him from repairing the injury he had done. Yet his latest statement will tend to show the little reliance that can be placed upon his earlier ones. His memory had plainly become impaired; and the charges he so confidently made against Wilson, Colfax, Blaine, Garfield, and the other republican leaders, the chief defenders of freedom, have received a new refutation. His testimony was evidently not trustworthy. He became sensible himself that he had been led into error; and if he was at last convinced that he had done injustice to Mr. Colfax, it is not impossible that he would have been equally ready to withdraw his other statements. He felt, his friends believe, that he had done wrong, that his memory had failed him, and in the latter period of his life showed a desire to make a proper atonement. Such is the conclusion of the career of Oakes Ames, like that of many other men, an ineffective repentance.

The Rise and Fall of a Stock Gambler.

The New York correspondent of the Chicago Tribune thus sketches the career of Alden B. Stockwell, late President of the Pacific Mail Company:

Will men anxious to make money ever learn when they have enough? I suspect not; because, as a rule, the more they get, the more they want, and, by reaching out for immense sums, they lose the large fortunes they have already secured. Alden B. Stockwell appears to be one of this sort. Only a few years ago, he was, I believe, the proprietor of a livery-stable in Cleveland, O.; and, later, was in command of a Potomac steamboat during the war. In that position he became acquainted with the daughter of Elias Howe, the inventor of the sewing-machine, afterward met her in Europe, and finally married her. Being the husband of a wealthy heiress, and never having had any money before, he was seized with a great financial ambition. He conceived that he had a genius for speculation, and was determined to prove it to the world. Wall street is the arena for large pecuniary enterprise; and into Wall street he went. Backed by his capital, he soon gained control of the Pacific Mail Company, and, with the funds furnished by the Sewing Machine Company, he entered into heavy speculations of divers kinds. At the end of a year, he had cleared over $2,000,000; and, seven or eight months ago, he was worth not less than $6,000,000. It is understood that he might have retired then with that amount, but he wanted to be worth five, or six, or eight, or ten times as much.

Like so many before him, he was anxious to control the street; to stand measured by the monetary scale, above Daniel Drew, Moses Taylor, or Jay Gould, and be on a level, at least, with Cornelius Vanderbilt. He reckoned without his host. The same corporation—Pacific Mail—that carried him up, dragged him down. When the stock rose above par, last autumn, he agreed to take a vast number of shares in two, three, and four months' time, at 80 and 90; and, long before the period of delivery, the stock was 25 to 30 per cent. lower. He tried to compromise; but as he was very wealthy, the contracting parties held him to the covenant. He could not have met his engagements had it not been for Jay Gould, who extended a helping hand.

Stockwell paid up, though the paying up, in the language of the street, pretty nearly "cleaned him out." His ill-fortune he takes very good naturedly; and as he is still very young, ambitious, and hopeful, he expects to recover the position he has lost. A small independence—some $250,000 perhaps—is still left him; but this seems to be a miserable pittance to a man who, only a few months since, had $6,000,000 in hand, and was sanguine of swelling it to $60,000,000. Just now, his affairs are particularly complicated. Entirely out of the Pacific Mail,—certainly no disadvantage,—he has entered suit against the Company for a deal more money than it has any present means of paying. The Pacific Mail is doomed, unless all signs fail, and likely to sink out of sight. It appears odd enough that a corporation whose shares sold readily at 300 before the war should now be selling at 37 to 38, with a fair prospect of going to 0.

Ingenuity of a Poor German Miner.

The Philadelphia Press of Wednesday contained the following description of a wonderful clock wonderfully made, from a correspondent at Shamokin, Penn:—

Karl Ketter, a poor German miner of the Excelsior Colliery, which is situated within a few miles of this borough, has exhibited a clock here, during the past week, of a most remarkable character. He had been three years constructing it—the first two years at intervals of time, and the last year has worked at it day and night, scarcely taking time enough to sleep and eat.

He became almost a monomaniac on the subject. The clock was in his mind during his waking hours and in his dreams at night. He occupied alone a small shanty, where he worked, slept and cooked his food. Whatever sleeping and cooking he did, however, was but little. It is thought he would have nearly starved but for the kindly interest which his neighbors took in him and his clock. They took him food and encouraged him in his labors.

The clock, which was made with no other tools than two common jack-knives, is eight feet high and four feet broad. Its frame is of the Gothic style of architecture. It has sixteen sides and is surmounted by a globe, on top of which is attached a small golden cross. On the front of the clock there are four dial plates; one shows the day of the month, another shows the minutes and fractions of a minute, and the other the hour of the day. These dials are carved in a most unique manner, having emblematic figures upon them of almost every imaginable description. Above the dial plates is a semi-circular gallery, extending around about half the width of the framework of the clock. Immediately in front, in the centre of this semi-circular gallery, is the carved wooden figure of our Savior.

At the ends of the gallery, on either side, there is a small door opening into the body of the clock. Over the door, on the right-hand side of the clock, as you stand facing it, is an eagle. Over the door, on the left-hand side, is a cock. Twice a day—that is, at 12.05 in the day and at 12.05 at night—a sweet chime of bells begin to play, the small door on the right-hand side opens, and the small wooden figures, admirably carved, of the twelve Apostles, appear and walk out slowly and gravely in procession Peter in the lead. Advancing along the gallery until they get opposite the figure of Jesus, each in turn, except Judas, slowly turns round, and bows his head to the Master, then recovers his former position; as Peter does this the cock crows. They continue to advance to the other side of the gallery and enter the small door on the left. As Judas (who is in the rear), with his right hand shielding his face, and his left hand clasping the bag which is supposed to contain the thirty pieces of silver, comes in full view of the cock, the cock crows again. By a simple arrangement this procession can be made to come out and pass around the gallery at any time desired.

On pedestals, at the extreme corners of the front of the clock, are carved wooden statues of Moses and Elias. In the rear are two obelisks of the Egyptian style, upon which are carved hieroglyphic characters to represent the ancient period of the world's history. The clock will run thirty-two hours without winding. Mr. Ketter, who is a native of Freiburg, in Baden, is very proud of his workmanship. He can scarcely bear to be away from it long enough to eat his meals. He has been offered ten thousand dollars for it by a person from New York, but he refused it.

Mr. Ketter says he had often heard of the celebrated clock in Strasburg, but he never saw it, and he has no knowledge of how it was constructed, neither has he ever had any instruction in mechanics of any kind. His purpose is to exhibit it for a few months in this country, and then take it with him to Germany.

—A floating item informs us that "Jerusha Bryan slew a panther with a pine knot in Pennsylvania. She is not married." And she won't be, for all us. We wouldn't go home mellow to such a woman for all that could be offered—no, not for worlds! Better would be a dinner of herbs and a stalled ox therewith, or something of the kind.

Balloons in Politics.

We find the following in the Chicago Inter-Ocean. It is rather an amusing hit at the singular bouleversements of our last year's Presidential campaign; but the Inter-Ocean seems to have fallen into the mistake of supposing that the Liberal Club dabbled in politics. The club is "liberal" in this, that it offers its platform to all classes of thinkers of every shade and variety, in science and art, philosophy and abstract politics. But with the muddy politics of the day it never troubles itself at all. The paper alluded to says:

"Professor John Wise, the balloonist, has been addressing the Liberal Club of New York. The Albany Evening Journal observes that it would have been much more sensible if the Liberal Club had addressed Professor John Wise. What the Liberal party don't know about going up in a balloon isn't worth knowing. We are not sure, however, that the experience of the Liberals would be encouraging to the Daily Graphic aeronaut. They went up like a rocket, but they came down like a stick; and the manager of the air-ship don't want to do the thing that way. Still, there is much similarity between the theories of Wise and the theories of the Liberals. Wise believes there is an eastern current that will waft him to the desired place with no expenditure of muscle. The Liberals believed there was a psychological wave that would take them into power if they could only get into the current. Wise has two parachutes, both filled with gas—one much smaller than the other, to which he will resort only in case of emergency. The Liberals had their big balloon, also inflated with gas, and a democratic kite tied to the tail of it, upon which they hoped safely to descend in case of a wreck. Both affairs came down, but they came down so quick that it knocked the breath out of the passengers and ruined the apparatus beyond hope of repair. A lot of rash men are just now trying to make a new ballon out of the old material; but the pieces don't fit, and the gas escapes so fast in the effort of inflation that the spectacle of another such disasterous tumble will probably be spared us. The fall will be just as sure, but the distance will be less."

Believe in Yourself.

It is said that when John C. Calhoun was in Yale College he was ridiculed by his fellow students for his intense application to study. "Why, sirs," he replied, "I am forced to make the most of my time that I may acquit myself creditably, while in Congress." A laugh followed, when he exclaimed, "Do you doubt it? I assure you if I were not convinced of my ability to reach the national capital as a Representative within the next three years, I would leave college this very day!" Let every young man thus have faith in himself, and take earnestly hold of life, scorning all props and buttresses, all crutches and life preservers. Let him believe with Pestalozzi, that no man on earth is either willing or able to help any other man. Let him strive to be a creator, rather than an inheritor, to bequeath rather than to borrow. Instead of wielding the rusty sword of valorous forefathers, let him forge his own weapons, and, conscious of the God in him and the Providence over him, let him fight his own battles with his own good lance. Instead of sighing for an education, capital or friends, and declaring that "if he only had these he would be somebody," let him remember that, as Horace Greeley said, he is looking through the wrong end of the telescope; that if he only were somebody he would speedily have all the boons whose absence he is bewailing. Instead of being one of the foiled potentialities of which the world is so full—one of the subjunctive heroes, who always might, could, would, or should do great things, but whose not doing great things is what nobody can understand,—let him be in the imperative mood, and do that of which his talents are indicative. This lesson of self-reliance once learned and acted upon, every man will discover within himself, under God, the elements and capacities of usefulness and honor.

An Old House Removed.

An old stone and log house, which has stood for many a long year in Lancaster, Penn., is being taken down: Of this ancient building the Examiner, of that city, gives the following account: "It is believed to be the oldest house in the city, having been built in the year 1737—136 years ago. The building was a remarkably substantial one, and, no doubt, was considered a model piece of work in the days of its erection. Above the door an old marble slab was embedded in the wood-work, which bore, as near as it is possible to make it out, the following inscription: 'Durig Gottes hilf erbout von Matthias Roser, yohr 1757 Juli 30,' which, when translated, means, 'Built through the help of God, by Matthias Roser, July 30, in the year 1737.' The doors of the old house are of solid walnut, some of them handsomely carved, and hung on massive wrought-iron hinges. The windows are almost square, and are fitted with walnut frames. The joists are grooved on either side, and into these grooves have been fitted pointed pickets, wrapped round with straw that had been dipped in mud, thus closing up the entire space between the joist, and making the house not only very strong, but very warm, and at the same time deadening the sound, so that noises made in one story could not easily be heard in the other. The chinks between the logs of which the walls were constructed were also closed with straw dipped in mud. The floors were of solid oak plank, and the lath of split oak. Much of the timber is as solid to-day as it was when put in the building nearly a century and a half ago."

—An Indiana man humbugged the potato bugs nicely. He planted a grain of corn in each potato hill, and as the corn came up first the bugs thought it was a corn field and started for other scenes.

Room for the Magdalen.

[Baltimore American.]

There are some women and girls in the world in such a position that it is hard to imagine their having brothers. If one of them has a brother, he is generally a good way off, and very seldom indeed do the brother and sister meet. They take particular care to keep out of each other's way, and the world is wide. The other day such a sister met her brother for the first time since her fall from family love and shelter, in a street in Indianapolis. It had been two years since they had seen each other. The sight was an accident, and would have been avoided by both if either had had warning. The old love of virtue and home and homefolks flashed into the heart of the girl like light from heaven. She rushed to her brother with extended hands. If he had seen the light he might have saved her. Sympathy, to say nothing of love, just at that moment, might have warmed her soul and moulded her life anew. She did not get it. He, in his blindness, turned away, and in his dumbness would not speak the tong which her heart was aching to hear. He fled from her touch, and all her senses being denied, she hurried to her miserable lodgings, and ended her life by poison. Probably the news of a sister's death reached the sensibilities of the hard man who refused to touch her hand on the street.

—A country editor has discovered that the farmers, through their secret organization, are going to nominate Commodore Vanderbilt for President in 1876. What will bring this about is the quadruple track he is laying on the New York Central Railroad. When he gets this completed he will say to the "oppressed millions of the West," according to the newspaper in question, "I come to emancipate you. Behold your benefactor!" And the conundrum it wants answered is, how the country can "withstand the popular pressure which such an appeal will make in this material age?"

Business Notices.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. ta28

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

Putting Down Rebellion.

When the stomach rebels against food, and obstinately refuses to digest sufficient aliment to keep the body well nourished, it can only be compelled to resume its natural duties by a wholesome tonic. The powerful alkaloids so often administered for this purpose are not wholesome. They are, for the most part, deadly poisons, and even when taken in very small quantities, re-act violently upon the nervous system. Not so Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This salutary combination of vegetable juices, embracing the finest invigorants and alteratives which the botanical kingdom affords, operates mildly, steadily and beneficially upon the digestive, secretive and discharging organs. In dyspepsia, bilious affections, nervous complaints and periodic fevers, chronic constipation, bodily weakness, mental depression, languor, sleeplessness, and the various disabilities incident to old age and premature decay, its effects are so wonderful, that to be comprehended they must be witnessed or experienced.

Unlike other Cathartics, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets do not, after their operation, have a secondary tendency to render the bowels more costive. This is an important improvement, as all who have ever taken many pills or other cathartics for the purpose of overcoming constipation, know to their sorrow that the secondary effect of all such medicines has been to "render a bad matter worse." These Pellets produce such a secondary tonic effect upon the bowels as to bring about a permanent healthy action. Hence their great value, taken in small doses daily for any length of time, in habitual constipation and in Piles, attended and produced, as they generally are, by torpor of the liver and costiveness. Sold by Druggists at 25 cents a vial. 693

The U. S. Branch Bank.

Messrs. Editors :—An article in your paper of Friday signed "M." states that "there was a defalcation or deficiency of between $10,000 and $20,000 in accounts of the late U. S. Branch Bank here." Exception being taken to that by the writer of this, you state in Saturday morning's paper that "that article did not refer, and was not intended to refer, to the cashier of that bank." So far, well, but that article conveyed a totally wrong impression. There never was a "defalcation or deficiency" of a single dollar in the accounts of that bank during the twenty years of its existence here under one and the same cashier. One of that bank's presidents was U. S. Pension Agent, and there was a deficiency in his accounts with the government and a misapplication of its funds in his hands. But there was nothing in this to warrant the assertion made. The correctness shown in that bank's account never was and never will be surpassed.

A large number of caulkers have been required on the navy yard to work on the Marion.

A grand picnic and re-union of the Sons of Temperance of Rockingham county will be held at Exeter on Wednesday. An oration will be delivered by John D. Lyman of Exter.

"None need apply." That's what the Journal says in reply to our suggestion that a gentleman was wanted to edit that paper. It is evidently determined to get along without one.

A gentleman from Stratham reports crops in that section looking finely. Potatoes and corn are much better than common; the hay crop about a quarter larger than usual. All kinds of fruit, except apples, are doing well, and promise an abundance.

Gov. Hill steam fire engine company, No. 1, Capt. Frank Mason, of Concord, with fourteen men, and Assistant Engineer Ladd, and ex-members of the Hill, with Odlin's brass band, passed through here on Saturday, en route for Hampton beach, to encamp over Sunday. The uniform of the company was tasteful, and they were a fine-looking body of men.

A delegation from the Boston police force visited Portsmouth a few days ago—not in pursuit of any law-breakers, but in the more pleasurable search of summer recreation. Their mission was a complete success. They were taken in hand by their brethren of the Portsmouth force, and carried down river and chowdered to their hearts' content. They went home as happy as it is possible for policemen to be.

The Merrimack Journal takes this view of Frank Jones' recent purchase of 2,000 shares of Eastern Railroad stock: "His policy is clear—to make Portsmouth a power in the corporation, so that when its property is disposed of in East Boston, its machine shops and car factories will be located in Portsmouth, which would be worth more to that town than all the stock it holds. This is a grand operation, and Frank Jones is to be commended for his pluck and enterprise."

The fun of being humbugged was enjoyed the other evening on Market Square, when three or four travelling fellows talked-off, with an unceasing gab, sundry articles of jewelry, books, blacking, pencils, &c., and in every instance at prices higher than is charged for the same article in the stores. One enthusiastic Kittery purchaser shew a purchase to a friend on getting home, which he made at twenty cents, and was astonished to find that the regular price for the article at any store in Kittery was twelve cents. The wonder is that such people are permitted to peddle their wares, without prosecution either by the authorities or some merchant who sees the various articles sold at such prices before his store by a brawling man who, without cost of rent or license, might undersell him if the street buyers did not so delight in being cheated.

—In a vigorous chase after rats, a boy broke down a shelf in the cellar and immolated six jars of preserves. He gazed on the ruins without a sigh, caught and killed the rat, laid it among the debris, and daubing his faithful dog's nose and legs with the fruit, sent him up stairs, while the boy hid in the coal shed. He heard feminine shrieks of dismay; he heard the wrathful objurgations of his sire; he heard the unsuspecting dog led into the back yard and shot, and spreading forth his hands said solemnly, "Another victim of circumstantial evidence."

—A conductor on the Chicago and Alton Road is reported as having forbidden honeymoon "billing and cooing." Observing a bridegroom's arm out of place, he forbade further demonstrations. "But I have a right to hug her," said John. "Not on a railroad," said the conductor; "there is a law against all unjust discriminations on railroads, and as I haven't a woman for each man on the train to hug, your action is in violation of the law, and must be stopped."

—The truly happiest family is not attached to Barnum's show. It consists of a poor widow, with eight little girls, at Thornton, Ind. She inherited $97 the other day, and now rejoices in a $75 silk dress, and each of the girls has a bright pink sash.

How the Saratoga Lawyers do it.

Saratoga lawyers are unequal to the exertion of a complete dance, and this is the way they manage to slide out. Eli Perkins is our authority. The young lady is introduced to the substitute with the following casual remark: "I give and bequeath to you to have and to hold in trust one-half of my right, title and claim, and my advantage, in a dance known as the 'Railroad Gallop' with Amelia Johnson, with all her hair, paniers, grasshopper bends, rings, fans, belt, hairpins, smelling bottle, with all right and advantage therein; with full power to have, hold, encircle, whirl, toss, wriggle, push, jam, squeeze or otherwise use—except to smash, break or otherwise damage—and with right to temporarily convey the said Amelia Johnson, her hair, rings, panniers, and other objects heretofore or hereinafter mentioned, after such whirl, squeeze, wriggle jam, etc., to her natural parents, now living, and without regard to any deed or deeds or instruments, of whatever kind or nature soever, to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

—Dr. Gruwell of Oskaloosa, Iowa, had a barn. He had also a small son named Joshua He had also in his residence a box of matches. From the fact that Joshua took the matches to the barn, Dr. Gruwell of Oskaloosa, Iowa, has now neither a barn, a match, nor a Joshua.

—A Cincinnati paper declares that evil-minded persons steal the dippers from the Louisville public fountains, and bad boys plug up the spouts with clay, while half the women crowd their letters into fire-alarm boxes.

The Minneapolis Tribune says: "The Chicago Times declares that the platform of the People's party in Ohio is 'sound.' It is. Mere sound."

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the

"NEW AMERICAN,"

improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a GOOD stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am selling up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

Iron, Steel, Bolts, Nuts, Axles and Boxes, Horse-Shoe Forms, Horse-Shoe Nails, &c., &c.,

Will find it for their interest to give me a call.

N. B.—Seward's PATENT ALE CLIPS AND YOKES, the latest and best articles in this line, in good supply.

PLEASE PAY UP!

The large expense I have incurred in the above change places me much in need of money; therefore all indebted to me will greatly oblige by promptly settling, and especially those owing long-standing accounts.

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		17,000
10 CASH GIFTS	$10,000 each	100,000
30 CASH GIFTS	5,000 each	150,000
50 CASH GIFTS	1,000 each	50,000
100 CASH GIFTS	500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of Inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

CHARLES E. LAIGHTON & SON.

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.

COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:

HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.

In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also
LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON
And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

WISTAR'S BALSAM
OF
WILD CHERRY!
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR
CONSUMPTION!
And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all
LUNG COMPLAINTS.
This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of
COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.
CONSUMPTION
CURED
By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry
Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.
CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,
And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signatures of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.
$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

The Great South American Blood Purifier.
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and WEAKENED Frames.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.
JOHN Q. KELLOGG, 18 Platt St., New York.

Helmbold, the erratic apothecary, has been again confined to a lunatic asylum in France.

A singular circumstance occurred in Waterloo, Iowa, last week. A man named Byron Wright was shot in the head last winter, and has been carrying the ball in the substance of the brain ever since—one of only three similar cases who have survived. Last week Wright was thrown from a wagon and struck on his head. A physician was called, who, upon examination of the wound, which has never healed, found that the ball had been thrown near the orifice by the fall, and extracted it.

A terrible disaster occurred on the Chicago and Alton Railroad about twenty miles from Chicago, on Saturday night. An express train came in collision with a coal train, and eleven persons were killed and thirty-five wounded. More will undoubtedly die. The casualties were confined to the passengers in the second-class car and the train hands. The accident is said to have been caused by the reckless carelessness of the conductor of the coal train, who is not among the dead and cannot be found.

The Evening Wisconsin Republican, in alluding to the charges published against the private character of Senator Carpenter, says: "The charges are too grave to pass unnoticed. The New York Tribune and the Chicago Times can be made to suffer most seriously if they have given currency to reports false and libellous, and the constituents of the Senator have a right to know the truth. If they are false, personal malevolence could go no further, and any jury could award such damages as would be a lesson to journalists in the future. The people demand that the Senator of their choice should vindicate his character."

State News.

Charles H. Smith of Newmarket had a very narrow escape from drowning. While sojourning at Wells Beach for a few days' recreation, he chanced to go into the water to bathe in front of the Island Ledge House, and swimming out some distance, (supposing the tide to be coming in,) started to return, when he found that he could not make any headway, and that the tide was actually going out. After trying his best to regain the shore and finding that he could not do so, he shouted for help, when George W. Lord and Millet Wentworth of Great Falls, took a boat and went to the rescue. Mr. Smith had given up all hopes of his ability to regain the shore, and was doing his best to keep afloat, and on being taken from the water became insensible, and remained so for some time.

As the wife, baby and mother of L. W. Aldrich of Revere were driving through Westmoreland village, on Friday evening, the horse became ungovernable, and before they could be controlled the carriage was overthrown and dashed in pieces. The occupants were thrown violently to the ground, but fortunately escaped with a few severe bruises only. The babe was quietly sleeping in its mother's arms, and was so protected in the crash that it was not awakened.

Cornelius Casey, aged 28 years, fell down stairs in Manchester on Sunday, and was killed.

North Conway is not as well filled this year as usual. Indeed, all through the mountain region there is lack of expected company, perhaps for the reason that the mountaineers have got their prices up as high as their hills, and the seashore, which is easier of access and less expensive, takes the precedence.

A mail-bag which was lost in the Connecticut River, near Dummerston station, last spring, was fished from the river a few days since, and the contents were found in good condition.

They know all about it in France, and the Paris Figaro gives us the very latest news from New Hampshire. It says:

"The State has for some time been infested with a band of assassins, who slaughtered victims without number, including several thousand members of the legislature. These assassins used to kill by severing the carotid artery. The State police attacked them and the banditti dashed through a town, passing a photograph gallery at full speed. The photographer turned his machine upon the flying band and took all their portraits in a twinkling. By the portraits these New Hampshire Ku Klux were recognized as the most respected inhabitants of the district. The population of New Hampshire has been diminishing for some time, but we were not aware of the cause before."

Expert Testimony in Criminal Trials.

[Boston Medical and Surgical Journal.]

The Wagner trial has furnished additional evidence of the need of a thorough reform in the methods of obtaining expert testimony in our criminal trials. Here, as in the Alley trial, self-qualified experts were summoned by the opposing counsel and made to contradict each other on the witness stand; and the daily papers have, as usual, indulged in sage remarks on the uncertainty of scientific testimony. The facts in the case were briefly these: Certain stains had been found on the clothing of the accused, which the government undertook to show were blood-stains, and, moreover, not produced by fish-blood. For this purpose, an expert witness was introduced, who entered into a lengthy description of the histology and chemistry of the blood, in the course of which he denied to the white blood globules all importance in the animal economy, except in so far as they might be changed into red globules, and described the red globules as closed sacs containing fluid. In justice to this gentleman, however, it must be said that, in those parts of his testimony which had a direct bearing on the case at issue, his statements seem to have been clear, straightforward, and (making due allowance for errors of reporters), in the main, correct. His testimony was to the effect that, after the blood-stains had been soaked in a fluid of suitable specific gravity, circular globules made their appearance, which, by micrometrical measurement and by direct comparison, were found to closely resemble the human blood-disc.

The defence having failed, in the cross-examination, to weaken the force of this testimony, introduced a chemist, who gave it as his opinion that the Government witness had "testified to an impossibility," though the imperfection of the report leaves it a little doubtful to what this phrase refers. He then went on to deny the possibility of distinguishing human blood-stains from those produced by the blood of other mammalia, and asserted that even the oval and nucleated blood-globule of fishes might be mistaken for the human blood-disc, acknowledging however, that "in fish-blood there would always be many corpuscles which could not be mistaken." These statements seem to have been made, not as the result of careful observations and measurements by the witness himself, which alone could have given value to his testimony, but from the examination of photographs of blood corpuscles and the writings of various authors, whose names, though excluded by the courts, are nevertheless given in the newspaper report of the trial, and who are by no means so unanimous in their opinion on this subject as the witness would have us believe. Thus, we have another instance of the impossibility of getting at the truth by our present methods of obtaining expert testimony in judicial investigations. The case occurred, it is true, in another Commonwealth, but the same system prevails in Massachusetts, and has led, and will continue to lead, to similar disgraceful results.

That the responsibility for this shameful condition of things does not rest with medical or scientific men, but with the Government and the courts, has been already pointed out in the pages of this journal. The unsuccessful efforts of the medical profession to procure a reform have also been there recorded. Not discouraged by previous failures, a joint committee of two medical societies and of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, has, within a few months, made another effort to procure legislation, providing better methods of obtaining expert testimony. A bill, drawn for this purpose by Hon. Emory Washburn, was presented to the Judiciary Committee, which had been specially ordered by the House of Representatives to consider the expediency of such legislation. The result was simply a report of "inexpedient." A reform in this matter can only be brought about by the united efforts of the medical and legal professions; and, until lawyers feel, as keenly as medical men feel, all the disgrace which is brought upon the Commonwealth by such scenes as occurred in the Alley and Wagner trials, the efforts of physicians to effect a change in the law which regulates such matters can scarcely be crowned with success.

Can These Things Be?

Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, on the fashions in the Independent, says:—"Suppose, in short, that by one subtle, strong coup d'etat the thinking women of America could make it fashionable to dress like rational creatures?" She proposes a conspiracy of "seven hundred, perhaps a thousand women," and that the leaders of the "republican Court" shall be "let into the secret," with "Mrs. Grant for our President, and Mme. Demorest for our committee on design." She says that dress skirts shall be shortened from four to six inches, that the bias waist and corset shall give way to the plaited gamp, that clothing shall be suspended from the shoulder, etc. Then she has a new issue: "Does either the essential modesty of feminine nature or the safety of society require drapery below the knees?" Good gracious!

—The Danbury News says no man can be a successful poet whose liver is not diseased.

—There's many a good bit o' work done with a sad heart.

John Stuart Mill's Atheism.

[M. D. Conway, in Harper's.]

He seemed to me quite different from any other man I have ever seen. He was in no sense a negationist or a destructive as to the character of his mind; he never approached any person or say dogma with bow and spear; he never sought to make captures. He dealt in affirmations, uttered his truths in a luminous, genial way, and if he offered an opinion fatal to your prejudices, it was as if he offered you the rarest flower from his garden. Such tenderness! There was something pathetic in his treatment even of wrongs, as if there were written in his breast the motto of the Eastern king, "Act as if you watched over an infant." Such humility! "Buddha sat down on the grass, and the grass became a jeweled throng." He took the lowest seat, and published therefrom eternal laws. Never shall I forget the sensation produced here, during the second great canvass in which he stood for Parliament, by his outburst of horror at the image which Mansel had set up as the Christian God, in contending that the highest human morality must be altogether different from the morality of an Infinite Being. "I will," said Mr. Mill (whom I must here quote from memory)—"I will call no being good who is not good in the same sense as I mean when I apply that term to my fellow-men. And if there be any such being, there is one thing which, however powerful, he can not make me do—he can not make me worship him. And if such a being can sentence me to hell for not so calling him, to hell I will go." This sentiment was dragged out at the election, and placarded the walls as a specimen of "Mill's atheism!" Canon Kingsley preaching at the time in the Chapel Royal, quoted the words, and said, "To my mind these words express the most exalted Christianity." And another said, "The religious world owes a great debt to this man it has distrusted, who, when a blow was aimed at the moral majesty of God, upheld the shield." They who had best studied and pondered Mr. Mill's works—still more they who knew him personally, and could witness his life and conversation—required no such vindications. They would not be at any loss to see in this outbreak of feeling in the midst of a philosophical essay an instance and expression of the depth and strength of its author's religious feeling. And it is probable that if Mr. Mill's intimate friends were one and all asked to-day what they considered the profoundest element in their great friend's character, each would reply: his essential religiousness.

The Art of Hanging.

As long as capital punishment is the law of the land and hanging the mode of accomplishing it, there is satisfaction in the thought that men are to be found who, regarding it as a scientific process, or an art, if you will, are ready with advice to make it perfect. An English clergyman, Rev. S. Haughton, who is also a Fellow of the Royal Society, has been publishing a work on the "Principles of Animal Mechanics," in which he does not disdain to devote a portion of the space to this subject. He says that this method in use is unworthy of the present state of science, and the long drop, which causes instantaneous death by the fracture of the vertebræ, is recommended, the length of the drop to be obtained by the following rule: Divide 2,240 by the weight of the "patient" in pounds, and the quotient will be the required length in feet. This rule is simply obtained by supposing (as was found to be actually the case in one instance) that 2,240 foot-pounds of shock is sufficient to cause fracture in any case, no allowance being made for differences of age, weight or sex; thus, by this rule, the lighter the criminal or "patient" the longer must be his drop, and the longer time of his agony in the air. Besides an immense number of measurements, of dissections and experiments on the bodies of animals, in order to obtain data for his calculations, Dr. Haughton has made experiments on the living subject, sometimes of a somewhat amusing character. But the above is the practical result at which he has arrived, and we would suggest that there is ample means in this country for testing its value.

How to Make a Mustard Plaster.

Not one in a hundred, at the most, knows how to make a mustard plaster, and yet mustard plasters are used in every family, and physicians prescribe their application, never telling anybody how to make them, for the simple reason that doctors themselves do not know, as a rule. The ordinary way is to mix the mustard with water, tempering it with a little flour; but such a plaster as that makes is simply abominable. Before it has half done its work it begins to blister the patient, and leaves him finally with a painful, flayed spot, after having produced far less effect in a beneficial way than was intended. Now a mustard plaster should never make a blister at all. If a blister is wanted, there are other plasters far better than mustard for the purpose. When you make a mustard plaster, then, use no water whatever, but mix the mustard with the white of an egg, and the result will be a plaster that will "draw" perfectly, but will not produce a blister even upon the skin of an infant, no matter how long it is allowed to remain on the part. For this we have the word of an old and eminent physician, as well as our own experience.

—A newly married man in Danbury was directed by his wife to order some yeast, and not having a very well-defined idea of yeast himself, he told the baker to send up a couple of dollars' worth. At nine o'clock the next morning, three men might have been seen tugging up the front stairs of that man's house with a cask of yeast.

—It's poor work allays settin' the dead above the livin'. We shall all of us be dead some time, I reckon—it 'nd be better if folks 'nd make much on us beforehand, instid o' beginnin' when we're gone. It's but little good you'll do a-watering the last year's crop.

Copyright in Turkey.

Turkey now has a copyright law, by the provisions of which an author is to enjoy the copyright of any work he may publish for forty years, to begin from the issue of the first edition; and he can, by a notice appended to his work, reserve the right of translation during the whole of the time specified. In case of the death of the author before the expiration of this term, the copyright of his work descends to his heirs. The proprietor of a book, as well as his heirs, is entitled to sell a part or the whole of his privilege, and in case of the death of the buyer before the expiration of forty years, the heirs of the latter are considered as the part or whole proprietor of the book. With the exception of the duration of the privilege, which is fixed at twenty years, this provision of the law is also applied to the translation of books.

Substitute for Rubber.

Daniel M. Lamb, of Strathoy, Canada, is the author of a method of producing gum from the milkweed plant, or other plants of the asclepias family, and flax and other seeds, which consists by macerating and fermenting the substances, and then by evaporation reducing the resulting liquid to a thick, gummy mass. The gum thus obtained may be cheaply produced, and is alleged to have many of the valuable qualities of rubber. It is insoluble in water, may be vulcanized with sulphur, etc. The price of pure rubber is now very high, and the discovery of an economical substitute is a matter of the greatest importance in the art.

Marble Dust.

[Chicago Post.]

We trust that Marble, of the World, will accept the Graphic's invitation to go up in its balloon. He will never have an equally favorably opportunity to learn how the World lies.

—A Danbury family had a little social gathering, the other evening. During the evening, the head of the house volunteered to crack some walnuts, but cracked his thumb instead, and the walnut from which the hammer glanced flew against a ten dollar vase, and knocked in its abdomen. Then the head of the house threw the hammer through a fire screen, kicked the pan of walnuts across the floor and into the legs of the minister, and went into the kitchen to deliver an address. The party broke up.

—So much of our early gladness vanishes utterly from our memory; we can never recall the joy with which we laid our beads on our mother's bosom or rode on our father's back in childhood; doubtless that joy is wrought up into our nature, as the sunlight of long-past mornings is wrought up in the soft mellowness of the apricot; but it is gone forever from our imagination, and we can only believe in the joy of childhood.

—A colored debating society in Trenton, Tenn., has just debated the question, "Which is the most profit to man—money or education?" One of the debaters argued that if it had not been for education the world would not have been half so large as it is. This clincher was met, however, by the irresistible argument that "If 't won't for money how you gwine to ride on the kyars?" It was at once decided in favor of money.

—"O, you old devil, I've caught you at last!" was the exultant remark of a Fort Wayne matron who had been greatly annoyed by the depredations of a neighbor's cow upon her flower garden, as she sallied from her ambush behind the rain barrel, broomstick in hand, just as her pastor raitled the gate-latch in making her a friendly call. She was absent from her pew in church next Sunday, when the subject of the discourse was "The Unruly Member."

—Probably the sickest man since the days when Hezekiah turned his face to the wall and wept sore, is the author, Mr. George Augustus Sala, who, according to the London Medical Times, is "suffering from an etythematous affection, which, however, has yielded to the local application of the styptic colloid and the use of the faradisation."

—An English reviewer points out the fact that at the present time it is the novel and not the ballad that forms the nation; and that the school of sensational writers, who almost monopolize the popular reading of two countries, are doing the English language a mischief that can hardly be cured.

—It may help to account for cigars being so high, that the sailors on the West Indian steamers smuggle them in packages at the mast-head. The custom house officers at New York have lately captured large numbers of cigars on the Morro Castle and the Cleopatra.

Business Notices.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, PERUO-PHOSPHORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. aug8

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

Putting Down Rebellion.

When the stomach rebels against food, and obstinately refuses to digest sufficient aliment to keep the body well nourished, it can only be compelled to resume its natural duties by a wholesome tonic. The powerful alkaloids so often administered for this purpose are not wholesome. They are, for the most part, deadly poisons, and even when taken in very small quantities, act violently upon the nervous system. Not so Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This salutary combination of vegetable juices, embracing the finest invigorants and alteratives which the botanical kingdom affords, operates mildly, steadily and beneficially upon the digestive, secretive and discharging organs. In dyspepsia, bilious affections, nervous complaints and periodic fevers, chronic constipation, bodily weakness, mental depression, languor, sleeplessness, and the various disabilities incident to old age and premature decay, its effects are so wonderful that to be comprehended they must be witnessed or experienced.

Unlike other Cathartics, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets do not, after their operation, have a secondary tendency to render the bowels more costive. This is an important improvement, as all who have ever taken many pills or other cathartics for the purpose of overcoming constipation, know to their sorrow that the secondary effect of all such medicines has been to "render a bad matter worse." These Pellets produce such a secondary tonic effect upon the bowels as to bring about a permanent healthy action. Hence their great value, taken in small doses daily for any length of time, in habitual constipation and in Piles, attended and produced, as they generally are, by torpor of the liver and costiveness. Sold by Druggists at 25 cents a vial. 603

Costiveness, Jaundice, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Dysentery, Foul Stomach and Breath, Eruptions, Headache, Piles, Rheumatism, Erysipelas and Skin Diseases, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Tetter, Tumors and Salt Rheum, Worms, Gout, Neuralgia, as a Dinner Pill, and purifying the Blood, are the most convenient purgative yet perfected. Their extensive adoption show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organs into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole system. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and over vast citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the easiest and best physic a sufferer can take, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

WHITEFIELD'S

NEW VIEWS OF PORTSMOUTH.

THESE views have been taken within the last six weeks, are highly finished in India ink, and show Portsmouth as she is in 1873. One view is taken from the North Pond and the other from the South. Every son of Portsmouth should carry back with him a specimen of these beautiful views, which can be obtained at Foster's bookstore and Burleigh's picture store on Congress street, also at Montgomery's, 23 Market Street.

Only a limited number have been issued.

They are of two different sizes.

Should the large copies be selected, they will be sent, carefully packed, to any part of the United States free of expense.

ORCUTT'S

RELIABLE LIGHTNING RODS.

These rods have been in use more than thirty years, on the best buildings in the country, such as the Public Buildings of the city of Boston, and other cities and towns, many buildings of Harvard College and other institutions of learning, Bunker Hill Monument, State Houses in Boston and Montpelier, Vt., very many United States buildings, including Powder Magazines and Shell Houses from Maine to Virginia, Churches in all directions, as also all classes of buildings, barns, etc., etc.,

And in every instance have afforded Complete Protection,

although buildings with other rods have been injured or destroyed, and persons both injured and killed; especially was this so the past season. This notice is to strengthen the confidence of those having Orcutt's Reliable Rods, and to solicit orders from those who wish to be secure during thunder storms.

No solicitors employed. Orders received at office or by mail, and rods applied according to the requirements of each building. WM. A. ORCUTT,

Local Matters.

Railroad Accidents.

As the Monday morning train from Newmarket Junction was nearing Stratham, a man named Jacob Winn was seen running ahead by the side of the track, as if desirous to reach the depot before the train. He seemed confused and stepped on the track, was struck by the locomotive and instantly killed. He was about forty-five years old and had been employed by Mr. Eara Barker of Stratham.

Coroner Rider summoned a jury of inquest, consisting of Messrs. Benjamin Cheever, Ashela F. Thurston and Thos. H. Odion. Testimony was given to the effect that the engineer whistled down brakes, but the brakeman in the baggage car was unable to get to the brakes in season, there being too much baggage in the way. It is thought the jury will return a verdict against the Concord Railroad.

"Kent" informs us that a man got off the Boston and Maine train at Newmarket Junction, Monday evening, to speak to some of the Concord fireman. He was a stranger to them, but said he was a brother fireman and was going east to say a week. When the cars started he sprang to get on, but slipped and fell under. A Concord fireman and one of Odlin's hand seized him and nearly saved him, risking their own lives, but the wheels caught him and four cars passed over him, cutting him in two across the abdomen, crushing bones, and strewing his lungs and intestines along the track. The platform was crowded with passengers, four trains having met there. Several ladies fainted and there was great excitement. Our informant says the man was sober and nice appearing. He searched the body to ascertain where the man belonged, and found a fire man's silver badge on his vest, on which was inscribed "Rough and Ready Fire Co., Hyde Park, Mass.," a check for Biddeford, and letters in his pocket addressed to C. C. Gilpatrick, Hyde Park, Mass., mailed at Biddeford. These documents Mr. Kent turned over to Mr. Leavitt, the station agent, and then telegraphed to the City Marshal of Biddeford and to the Chief Engineer or Chief of Police of Hyde Park, giving particulars and description, but at 8.30 P. M., when the office here closed, no answer had been received. The accident was within a mile and a half of the place where Mr. Winn of Newmarket was killed the same day.

P. & D. Railroad.

It is said the Road will be in running order by November 1st. The alleged difficulty with the bridge at the Point is now said to be of no considerable consequence. The contractor is rapidly driving piles and narrowing the span over the deepest and swiftest current. A sub-marine explorer has been down to see what could be found at the bottom of the river there, and reports boulders of various sizes and shapes imbedded in clay, which would indicate that piling might possibly be used the entire length of the bridge. But it is preferable to maintain an open space for the passage of the ice. Hence trusses of from 150 to 200 feet in length are to span this point, and preparations are being made accordingly.

Foster's Democrat says that just as soon as the grading is completed on this Road, which will be short of two months, all the laborers are to be transferred to the Dover and Great Falls connecting branch, and early next season that also will be completed.

Laconics.

Now is the time to give your soul a rest.

"The Sons of Jonadab" is the latest organization.

Yacht Dollie, Alberto C. Fernald master, arrived here from Boston on Monday, after a two days' passage.

Old Probabilities varies his usual prognostications by predicting for New England for this week "less humidity."

A son of Mr. John Malsbenden had his foot badly jammed, Sunday, by getting it caught in a railroad turn-table, and it is feared amputation may be necessary.

Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Shillaber have just celebrated by a family reunion the twenty-fifth anniversary of their wedding. Only two parties who were present twenty-five years ago were present at the silver anniversary.

Three cars of the express freight train from Boston jumped the track a little below South Berwick, Sunday morning. Wrecking trains were sent out from Portland and Portsmouth. The cars were not much damaged, and after being replaced upon the track they were run back to South Berwick. No one was injured. The Bangor express for Boston was delayed about four hours.

The time made by the train containing the Presidential party, last week, is said to be the quickest ever made in New England. The run to Portsmouth—fifty-six miles—was made in one hundred and eight minutes, including stops; and the trip to Portland—one hundred and eight miles—in two hundred and eight minutes, including stops. This is an average of less than two minutes to the mile, which is fast riding.

The Gov. Hill steam fire engine company, on their way home, Monday, were surprised at the Eastern Railroad depot in this City by finding assistant engineers Ham and Locke, and clerk of the fire department Hidden, who took them in hand and escorted them through the principal streets to Kearsarge steam fire engine company's house, where Three's boys had a collation spread. The Concord company was welcomed by W. L. Hidden, in behalf of the officers and members of the Kearsarge. After looking at all of the Engine Houses, inside and out, they marched to the depot with a delegation of Three's boys and left for home on the 5.10 P. M. train.

Too Genteel to Work.

"Why," asks the World, "do we have our roofs badly mended, our houses badly built, our work badly done in fifty ways? Because Americans are too 'genteel' to be plumbers and journeymen mechanics at five dollars a day, though they will clerk for two dollars. Consequently, we have to put up with, and pay enormously, for bad work, by the inferior, half-taught foreign artisan, for the best class, having plenty of work at home, are loth to leave the country."

A Reversal of Last Year.

[Chicago Post.]

The liberals and democrats are not shaking hands across the bloody chasm. They are taking scalps across it.

—Our dead are never dead to us until we have forgotten them; they can be injured by us, they can be wounded; they know all our penitence, all our aching sense that their place is empty, all the kisses we bestow on the smallest relic of their presence.

PROPOSALS

FOR

Building Sloop-of-War at Kittery Navy Yard.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
Bureau of Construction and Repair,
July 30, 1873.

PROPOSALS will be received at this Bureau until 12 o'clock, M., on the FIRST DAY OF SEPTEMBER NEXT, from builders or mechanics qualified to do the work, for the raising, framing and ribboning, planking from keel to rail, ceiling, including keelsons, clamps, spirketting and battery, to rail, putting in decks, including all bitts, etc., putting on main and hammock rails, channels and chains, building store-rooms, magazines and lockers, joiner work inside and out, caulking and scraping, building quarter-galleries and setting head, and painting complete, of a Sloop-of-War of about 987 tons. The materials, tools and facilities for doing the work will be furnished by the government.

The Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair will be at Kittery Navy Yard on WEDNESDAY, the 20th of August next, and in connection with the Naval Constructor of that yard will meet persons desiring to make proposals for the work above mentioned, and will give all necessary explanations concerning the work to be done, and in regard to the character of the materials, tools and facilities to be furnished by the Government.

Plans and specifications may be seen and examined on applying to the commandant of the Kittery Navy Yard, after August 1st, 1873.

REMOVAL.

STOVES, TIN WARE, IRON AND STEEL.

URIAH BLAISDELL

Informs his friends and the public that he has removed to

No. 55 Market Street,

(late the well-known Iron Store of Mr. John P. Lyman,) a few doors north of his old stand, and next beyond the Union Store, where he offers his usual stock of

STOVES, OF ALL KINDS,
TIN, JAPANNED & GLASS WARE,
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,
FARM & GARDEN TOOLS, &c.

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the

"NEW AMERICAN,"

improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a good stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am selling up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

Iron, Steel, Bolts, Nuts, Axles and Boxes, Horse-Shoe Forms, Horse-Shoe Nails, &c., &c.,

Will find it for their interest to give me a call.

N. B.—Seward's PATENT AXLE CLIPS AND YOKES, the latest and best articles in this line, in good supply.

PLEASE PAY UP!

The large expense I have incurred in the above change places me much in need of money; therefore all indebted to me will greatly oblige by promptly settling, and especially those owing long-standing accounts.

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		17,000
10 CASH GIFTS	$10,000 each	100,000
50 CASH GIFTS	5,000 each	150,000
50 CASH GIFTS	1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS	500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 221 tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, the particulars of which may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"He has no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"Mr. R. H. Eddy has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.
JOHN TAGGART."

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and then being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The Great South American Blood Purifier,
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the wasting weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their respective power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is unequaled by medicine as a vigorous but efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Skillful Counterfeiting.

A N. Y. Times reporter writes concerning a visit to the New York Sub-Treasury as follows:

Referring to the practice of counterfeiting, Mr. Ashley remarked that there were "filled" coins of the denomination of $20, and then added: "I suppose you don't know what a filled coin is?" On receiving an affirmative response to his query, Mr. Ashley took from a small drawer a double eagle which, to all appearance, was perfectly genuine. The minutest examination of the surface and of the milled edge failed to disclose any marks of fraudulent manipulation; the weight was correct to the decimal of a grain, and when struck on the counter the coin gave a loud, clear ring, true as any which were taken from a neighboring pile of the genuine article. Nothing seemed wanting in this skillful counterfeit; but it was a counterfeit nevertheless.

"This is a 'filled' coin," continued Mr. Ashley, as he balanced it on the tips of his fingers: "The weight is correct, it appears good, the acid test would fail on it, and the sound is true. It is one of the most dangerous counterfeits ever made. Here is another, cut through the centre, to show the filling. You see that the inside of the coin is filled with a composition of platina. To fill in this, the milled edge has been carefully removed, the coin sliced in two, and the inside of it pared away, leaving the two faces intact. An amount of the composition of the same weight has been substituted for the more valuable metal removed, and the several parts of the coin have been skillfully joined together again; and none but an expert can detect the signs of the work. From a double eagle the amount of gold thus removed amounts to fourteen dollars, so you see a man could make a living if he only made one of these filled coins a day."

In response to an inquiry how these fraudulent coins were detected, Mr. Ashley stated that there was a clerk in the building who could pick every one out of a heap of genuine coins as unerringly "as a mother would pick her children out of a schoolful of others. You shall see," he continued, and taking the filled piece he placed it edgewise among some forty or more pure ones. Then laying the pile down he called from his place, some distance off, one of the clerks, and said: "Mr. Tandy, will you please separate the good from the bad in these coins?" The gentleman thus addressed scrutinized the upturned edges of the coins, and threw out the counterfeit in an instant. Mr. Ashley then spread them out on the counter, and thoroughly mixed them up. Again the counterfeit was detected at a glance. Twice the experiment was made, and with the same result. Some one diverted Mr. Tandy's attention for an instant, and Mr. Ashley quietly removed the counterfeit coin, and once more asked the expert to search the mass. He did so, but was not deceived, though for a moment puzzled. He pronounced all the coins to be genuine; and Mr. Ashley triumphantly threw down the counterfeit. Mr. Tandy could not explain how he detected the false pieces, further than that "they did not look right;" and Mr. Ashley frankly confessed he could not himself tell how it was done; neither could he do it. Some of the filled pieces were shown which seemed absolutely perfect; particularly one five-dollar piece, which was pronounced a "marvel of workmanship." To successfully "fill" a coin so small and thin as this is naturally a more difficult and delicate operation than filling the thick and heavy double eagles; but the perverse ingenuity of the counterfeiters is equal to it, and only the eye of so skillful an expert as the gentleman who admiringly displayed the coin to the reporter is competent to detect the fraud. Of course an assistant possessing such exceptional skill is too valuable to be parted with. It need scarcely be said that political changes do not effect the position of such as he. Mr. Ashley stated, however, that he had a standing offer of a situation in one of the principal banks at a much higher salary than the Government paid—which was not munificent—and that he remained in the service only because the Sub-Treasurer and he (Mr. Ashley) had personally guaranteed that his salary should be the same as that offered by the bank. It may be mentioned that English sovereigns have been subjected to the "filling" process, which the well known automatic weighing machine of the bank is totally useless to detect. The attention of the British authorities has doubtless been called to this new fraud by this time, as when the English detectives were over here looking after the bank forgers, they were shown several sovereigns which had come to the Sub-Treasury "filled." It was a new revelation to the officers of the law, and doubtless proved so to their employers.

—In an editorial on the horse disease the Congregationalist suggested that it might be well to sit at the feet of a horse and learn humility. "Just so," says the San Francisco News Letter, "sit down at the hind feet of a mule, and if he don't humiliate you, pull his tail and tickle the inside of his legs with a stable fork."

—Sarah DeCamp was laughing and giggling in church at Grand Banks, Nebraska, when the preacher said "The devil has his eyes on Sarah DeCamp." The next day she committed suicide.

Readables.

The barque Abeona of Liverpool, from Montreal for Glasgow, was run into by the steamship Alabama on the night of August 4. She sank in five minutes, and all on board, except three seamen, were drowned.

The conduct of the officers of the Chicago and Alton Railroad is severely criticised. They are charged with withholding from the friends of the killed and wounded and the public, until the latest possible moment, all information of the disaster, and with being remiss in their efforts to give early and proper attention to the injured. Two more of the wounded have died, making the whole number of fatalities thus far thirteen.

Johnson Jordan of Coleb-ook, aged about 60 years, committed suicide on Saturday by taking morphine. No cause is assigned.

A Tell-Tale Skeleton.

The following advertisement appears in the last numbers of the Gestimunde (North Germany) Gazette:—

"The following heirs of Catherine Spelling, and her daughter Dorothy, both of whom died a violent death in 1852, at Aasterdam, are requested to send their addresses immediately to the Royal Probate Court at Aasterdam:—Sophia Behrensburg, Otte Kelenaer, Anna Dorfing, Maria Dorfing, Joseph Dorfing, all of whom emigrated to the United States since 1864.

ERNEST BEDIGER, Solicitor.

This advertisement was issued in consequence of the discovery of the murderer of the widow of Spelling and her daughter, and of the recovery of the spoils of his fearful crime, upwards of twenty years after it had been committed.

In July, 1862, the police of Amsterdam saw on the door of the house on Haarlem street, where Catherine Spelling lived with her daughter Dorothy, a notice to the effect that the two women had gone to the country. This notice aroused no suspicion, but when the old lady and her daughter did not return after the lapse of six weeks, the police entered it. A fearful sight met their eyes. The widow and her daughter, with their throats cut from ear to ear, were lying on the floor in an advanced state of decomposition, while all the bureau drawers were rifled of their valuables.

It was ascertained that the murderer had carried off diamonds, money and bonds, amounting to nearly one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Time passed by, and the double murder was almost forgotten, until on the third of July last the house in which the crime had been committed was torn down. Between it and the adjoining house was a space of about one foot in width, and hemmed in there was found a male skeleton. At the bottom of this space lay a large leathern pocket, containing the diamonds, the money, and the bonds of the murdered widow. This skeleton was undoubtedly that of the murderer of the two women, who, after assassinating them and bagging the blunder, had tried to escape over the roof of the house, but, slipping his foot, had fallen into the space between the two buildings. There he met with the just retribution of his terrible crime. He died there the excruciatingly painful death of slow starvation.

Housekeeping Amenities Among the Cannibals.

[Max Adeler.]

Housekeepers will be surprised to learn that their custom of sending to a neighbor to borrow a little butter or sugar or other articles of diet is quite common among the savages of the Feejee. When a lady in Feejee has some friends to dinner unexpectedly, she goes over to the woman across the way and says, "Yak Yak and his family have just dropped in to dine, and I haven't a thing in the house. How do you think your hired girl would work up into a stew? Can I borrow her for a few days?" Then she seizes that domestic by the hair and drags her over, chops her up with parsley and carrots, and celery-tops and cloves, and lets her simmer over the fire. Or may be the other woman sends over and says: "I'm entirely out of meat; can you lend me your little William Henry for hash, or your Mary Jane for a pie?" And over go William Henry and Mary Jane, and they are stuck with a fork and basted and put on to cook gently, and the debt is paid off the next week by the borrower sending back her aunt, already boiled and suitable for cutting down for tea, or one of her twins corned so as to make a nice lunch. Sometimes a woman in this manner will work off a couple of her mothers-in-law, or a rich uncle, or a plump second cousin, and then she will sit at the window and sniff them as they are cooking in the kitchen next door, or watch one of the company in the dining room nibbling at the elbow of her late hired girl. The custom seems to us an excellent one, particularly when it is applied to hired girls. We have had girls whom we would have loaned to a neighbor at any time under a solemn promise that they should be butchered and boiled as quickly as possible.

I can't abide to see men throw away their tools! that way, the minute the clock begins to strike, as if they took no pleasure I' their work, and was afraid o' doing a stroke too much. I hate to see a man's arms drop down as if he was shot before the clock's fairly struck, just as if he'd never a bit o' pride and delight in's work. The very grindstone 'ull go on turning a bit after you loose it.

South American Earthquakes.

[Cor. N. Y. World.]

Do you remember that pathetic touch, in one of Tom Hood's most pathetic poems, about the sailor lost on the lee shore of his own country?

"O God! to think man ever Comes too near his home!"

This is the ever present terror and pathos of the earthquake. A man's house, which in other lands is his castle and his refuge, in a land of earthquakes is his trap and his tomb. His first thought in the presence of danger is not to seek but to abandon it. Provision is made for this peril in most Spanish-American cities by the breadth of the streets, the size of the interior patios or courts of the houses, and the amplitude of the public squares. But Valparaiso is built on a narrow shelf of the beach at the base of a huge and steep mountain side. It has increased so greatly in trade and wealth within the last twenty years that ground in the narrow space of level and available land has become immensely valuable. The consequence is that the inhabitants, like those of New York, have taken to building up. The best part of the city is made up of stately buildings, much more English than Spanish in appearance, full of comfort and luxury, but certain, if they should fall, in their fall to choke the narrow streets utterly. My hotel in which I am now writing for example, would pass muster as a high house at the West End of London. It fronts on the poorest street of the city, and from the windows of my rooms at the rear you have a glorious view of the whole bay, the shipping, and the amphitheatre of mountains which surrounds it. As I write I hear the dash of the surf on the sea-wall of the low beach. Fancy a "tidal wave" such as destroyed Talcahuana in Darwin's day, or Arica a few years ago, sweeping up over the ruin of lower Brooklyn and New York, and you will have some notion of the peril in which these people are put by such an earthquake as this of which I am writing. Is the danger over yet? Of course, there is no reason for thinking that it is. It was odd at San Salvador to observe the intense effect upon people's minds, of the strictly personal interest which we commonly take in all the greater catastrophes of nature. You would have thought that the earthquake which destroyed San Salvador had occurred specially and intentionally with that object in view. The universal feeling was: "Well, this earthquake has done all it came to do. It has knocked our city to pieces, and now it will be satisfied." This is what theologians call the theological way of considering the world we live in. Is it ever worth much more than in such cases? Another curious feature of this visitation is that people seem to feel safer by day than by night, not merely from the consequences but from the occurrence of a shock. Of course by day when all the world is "up and dressed" wide awake people are less likely to be crushed and caught in the general ruin than they would be by night in their beds. But can there be any truth in the impression (it can hardly be called a belief) that the shocks of the earthquake are less likely to occur by day than by night? If so this would be an interesting contribution to our study of the obscure subject I have already alluded to, of the connection between these subterranean phenomena and the atmosphere. The earthquake of San Salvador did its very worst work, you will remember, at about the same time of the early morning at which the great shocks of to-day took place. The sharpest shock, too, that I ever experienced in Mexico, I remember occurred at Orizabat about half-past six o'clock on the morning of Good Friday. On the other hand the great earthquake of 1835, on the Chilian coast, came at half-past eleven o'clock, A. M., and the destruction of Arica took place in broad daylight. A fearful scare that must have been! The traces of the awful devastation are still most pitiful, after half a dozen years. I went over the ground on my way down the coast with an Englishman who was living there at the time. He had a beautiful house on what was the promenade and the sea-wall. It stood through the shock of an earthquake; but all who were in it fled when they saw the ocean recede and roll out half a mile from its former limits. They fled not too soon. When they reached the first rise of the mountain slope, an eighth of a mile away, a deafening roar was heard behind them. There was the huge ocean billow dashing up almost at their feet. The whole town was partially submerged, the sea part of it wholly so, and when the wave receded again their home went floating out to sea, a helpless wreck. Nothing was ever recovered but a heavy consular seal which belonged to the owner's office, and which was picked up days afterward on a beach half a mile to the southward of Arica. Our man-of-war, the United States steamer Wateree, which, as you remember, was driven a mile and more inland and there remained, still stands in the sands, a startling monument of the great catastrophe. I am sorry to say that the Peruvian authorities, who ought to have purchased the vessel and kept her as she was—hull, masts standing and all the rest in order, in eternam rei memoriam—have allowed her to be sold by the American government to speculators, who have gradually dismantled and stripped her until she seems the skeleton of a mighty ship, with ghosts of wheels, making her weird way up the Andes.

—Falsehood is so easy, truth so difficult. The pencil is conscious of a delightful facility in drawing a griffin—the longer the claws and the longer the wings, the better; but that marvellous facility which we mistook for geniusis apt to forsake us when we want to draw a real unexaggerated lion. Examine your words well and you will find that even when you have no motive to be false, it is a very hard thing to say the exact truth, even about your immediate feelings—much harder than to say something fine about them which is not the exact truth.

—In every parting there is an image of death.

Sunday Letter-Writing.

[Danbury News.]

The family letter is written on Sundays. The reason that day is selected is not alone because of the leisure it presents. The quiet of the day, its relief from all influences that irritate or agitate, frees the mind from irrelevant and antagonistic matter, and makes it pre-eminently a fit occasion for communing with distant loved ones. In nine cases out of ten the letter is written by the head of the family, and of those sent an equal proportion are addressed to his wife's folks. We don't know why it is that a man so rarely writes to his own folks, but as it is not the province of this article to treat on that subject, we will pretend we don't care. The hour being selected for inditing the letter, the first thing to find is the paper. There is always a drawer in every well-regulated family for keeping such things. It is either in the table or stand. Here the writing paper and odd screws and fiddle strings and broken locks and fish lines and grocery receipts are kept. There may be other things, but if there are he will see them. The sheet of paper is finally found, the fly stains neatly scraped off, and the search commences for the ink and pens. The former is invariably found on the mantel next to the clock, and is immediately laid on the table convenient to the perspiring man, who sarcastically inquires if the letter is to be written to-day or next Sunday. This inspires the wife with new zeal in the search. She goes over the drawer again because she knows she wouldn't see anything if it was right under her nose; but the pen is not there. Then she looks over the top of the bureau, and has everything on the front-room table, and says it seems so singular it can't be found, when she saw it only the day before, and thought about the letter. Then she goes into the pantry, and after exploring the lower shelf in vain, stands upon a chair, and carefully goes over the top shelf where the medicine bottles and unused pans are stationed. After she has done this, she starts up stairs, and presently soon returns with the pen, and takes it to the sink to wash the grease from it, but does not succeed in quite effacing the delicate scent of bergamot. This leads him to observe that anybody who takes a pen-holder to lift hair grease from a bottle, is too pure and innocent of this world. Everything now in readiness, good humor is restored, the wife takes a seat opposite with her elbows on the table, and her chin in her hands, and assumes an expression of countenance that is mysteriously calculating to both encourage and depress the writer; and he grasps the pen tightly between his fingers, and stares at the paper with an intensity that is entirely unnecessary. The date line starts off glibly, and then suddenly ceases as it reaches the date itself. He puts the holder in his mouth, and immediately spits it out again, making up a face that is in no wise suggestive of bergamot, and petulantly asks her if she knows the day of the month. Of course she does. It is the 13th—or is it—but no—it must be. She hesitates, stares at him, wavers and is lost. She don't know whether it is the 13th or 18th, but the almanac will tell, and she once starts to hunt it up. This occasions a delay of some fifteen minutes, during which he makes ninety-five passes at one fly. The date having been satisfactorily settled upon, and the things which rolled over the floor, as that stand-drawer unexpectedly fell out, having been restored to their place, the date line is completed, and "Dear mother" started. The pen is a home pen, of bashful mould, and whenever it starts a line it requires half a dozen passes to make it give down. All home pens do this. And all home sheets of paper have weak spots which the ink refuses to cross, thus creating some remarkable divisions of words, and considerable confusion among sentences. Some of these spots are two inches in diameter, and anybody in the next room can tell the moment the writer comes to them, just as well as if he was looking over his shoulder. When the letter is completed, which generally occurs at the fifth hour from the commencement, it is carefully read over and supplied with absent words, and then gone over again and artistically touched up with the pen at the bare places. Then it is folded up ready for the envelope, and the discovery is made that there is no envelope in the house, and the letter is tucked in behind the clock until the want is supplied.

A Horse Beats a Locomotive.

[Montgomery (Ala.) Journal.]

When the train left Alpine a horse was seen on the track about one hundred yards in advance. The train came thundering on, and the noble beast was not slow to take the hint, and moved himself off at a rate which told he knew a thing or two himself about railroads. The chase continued for a mile right along the track. When the horse reached the bridge over Talladega creek he went boldly forward on a twelve-inch plank. When about half way across he turned to look back, not heeding the Biblical fate of Lot's wife. He thereupon lost his balance and fell across a scantling which formed part of the frame work of the bridge. The train was stopped, and the animal which had made such a race was rescued from his perilous condition by means of ropes and chains. In that single mile dash the horse ran over three trestles, and what is wonderful to relate, the horse actually widened the gap between himself and the train, and but for turning around to see how the old thing worked, could have bid defiance to his snorting iron rival.

A Democratic View of the Kentucky Ku Klux.

The Louisville Courier-Journal (dem.) thus speaks of the recent outbreak of Ku Kluxism in that State:

"The strongest invectives and the harshest epithets that could be used in reference to the authors of this crime would fall short of expressing the detestation and abhorrence which all good citizens feel for this exploit of ruffianism. It makes one's cheek burn with shame to think that such a wrong could be perpetrated in a civilized community. These lynchers, Ku Klux or bandits pretend to regulate labor and dictate to honest people whom they shall employ on their farms and in their shops, although it would be safe to wager a million to nothing that the lynchers never did an honest day's work in their lives, and devote to the mysteries of gambling and bad whiskey all the time they can spare from the perpetration of such felonies as they have just committed in Owen county. They should be hunted down forthwith. Society must take up arms against them as it did in other localities against the Bender murderers and the Iowa railroad robbers, criminals not a whit more cowardly or villainous than the Ku Klux in Owen county. Their presence has become insufferable, and good men must either rule these lynchers and bring them to a short shrift and a long rope without mercy, or make up their minds to be ruined, impoverished and finally forced to abandon their desolate farms by a devilish fraternity dead to every generous feeling and alive for the perpetration of crime only. Every intelligent citizen knows that the humblest and most ignorant negro who toils honestly for a living is the superior in every respect to the dastardly white wretch who prowls about the country at night committing trespass and murder on the premises of defenceless women, and issuing insolent orders to farmers whom they shall hire to tend their crops. They are the pest of the commonwealth. They are the blight of our dearest interests. Their baleful influence keeps out immigration, compels useful citizens to emigrate, depreciates the value of our farming lands heavily, induces capital to seek other fields for investment, and makes education and every industrial enterprise which is dear to every enlightened Kentuckian languish away. Ku Kluxism and midnight marauding are crimes for which there can be no apology. Their authors are guilty of the blackest treason against society, and the State must meet them with the halter in its hand."

—"Bluffing" at Martha's Vineyard does not consist in "going better" on a poor, hand but in perambulating the beach and by loving protestations winning a rich hand and a girl with it.

Business Notices.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRIS' PHOSPHORUS BITTERS CAUTIONARY is made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. 1m28

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate with the ingesta in the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

Putting Down Rebellion.

When the stomach rebels against food, and obstinately refuses to digest sufficient aliment to keep the body well nourished, it can only be compelled to resume its natural duties by a wholesome tonic. The powerful alkaloids so often administered for this purpose are not wholesome. They are, for the most part, deadly poisons, and even when taken in very small quantities, react violently upon the nervous system. Not so Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This salutary combination of vegetable juices, embracing the finest invigorants and alteratives which the botanical kingdom affords, operates mildly, steadily and beneficially upon the digestive, secretive and discharging organs. In dyspepsia, bilious affections, nervous complaints and periodic fevers, chronic constipation, bodily weakness, mental depression, languor, sleeplessness, and the various disabilities incident to old age and premature decay, its effects are so wonderful that to be comprehended, they must be witnessed or experienced.

Unlike other Cathartics, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets do not, after their operation, have a secondary tendency to render the bowels more costive. This is an important improvement, as all who have ever taken many pills or other cathartics for the purpose of overcoming constipation, know to their sorrow that the secondary effect of all such medicines has been to "render a bad matter worse." These Pellets produce such a secondary tonic effect upon the bowels as to bring about a permanent healthy action. Hence their great value, taken in small doses daily for any length of time, in habitual constipation and in Piles, attended and produced, as they generally are, by torpor of the liver and costiveness. Sold by Druggists at 25 cents a vial. 6m

That Controversy.

A few weeks since we published the bill in equity, M. Cunningham et als vs Canon Walsh et als. Shortly afterwards Messrs. James Norton and Martin Garvin brought to this office a document which denied that they were engaged in the suit. We published this communication, which purported to be signed by six persons, on the 12th, since which time Messrs. Samuel Walker, Owen O'Haire, Murty Sullivan and David Walsh of the Plains have informed us that their signatures to the last named document were forged and their names used without their authority. David Walsh of State street, it is said, was the one intended in the document we published. The controversy which the bill in equity is brought to settle is serious enough without either party resorting to such trickery or fraud as in the case in point.

The Portsmouth S. P. C. A.

[Our Dumb Animals.]

Dr. A. P. Stevens of Portsmouth has a lecture entitled "Man, Bird, and Beast," which he has already engaged to deliver at several places the coming winter. Dr. Stevens is a gentleman of culture and refinement, an active member and officer of the Portsmouth Society, and is deeply interested in the cause. We are glad to commend his lecture to the favor of all lecture committees, for we know it is deeply interesting. We wish friends of the cause, and kindred societies everywhere, will appreciate the good effect a lecture would have in their several communities, and will endeavor to have the subject introduced in their courses of winter lectures. The Portsmouth Society P. C. A. are to have a course of lectures under their own auspices, and Dr. Stevens will be one of the lecturers. James T. Fields delivers a lecture to this Society, showing his interest in the cause. This example of the Portsmouth Society is worthy of imitation by kindred organizations.

Laconics.

The Bolton Sporting club returned on Monday after several weeks' jollification at Wallis' Sands, cook Jimmie having served his time and Artie Willie being satisfied with campl'fe.

A whale weighing about 2000 pounds was captured at York Beach on Sunday. The fish got in an opening among the rocks and was speared to death. Its length was twenty feet.

The action of dog-owners is called to a notice from City Marshal Johnson in our advertising columns. The Marshal desires us to say that the law will be strictly enforced immediately.

The North Parish Picnic, postponed from yesterday on account of the rain, will take place to-day. All interested will bear this in mind. The pic-nickers will start from the Middle street chapel this morning at 8.30.

The Portable Rubber Bath Tub, which was introduced here last winter and for which there has been much inquiry, may be seen at E. A. Joy's Sewing Machine Rooms, No. 38 Market street. Persons desiring to obtain them should call and examine.

Mt. Sinai Encampment, I. O. of O. F., are making arrangements for the reception of Merrimack Encampment of Newburyport on the 19th of next month. The visitors will dine at the Farragut House and return to Portsmouth for a promenade concert and ball in the evening.

Moral Courage in Every Day Life.

["Moral Courage" was printed in large letters and put as the caption of the following items, and placed in a conspicuous place on the door of a systematic merchant in New York for a constant reference, and furnished by him for publication.]

Have the courage to discharge a debt while you have the money in your pocket.

Have the courage to do without that which you do not need, however much your eyes may covet it.

Have the courage to speak your mind when it is necessary that you should do so, and hold your tongue when it is prudent that you should do so.

Have the courage to speak to a friend in a "seedy" coat, even though you are in company with a rich one, and richly attired.

Have the courage to own you are poor, and thus disarm poverty of its sharpest sting.

Have the courage to tell a man why you refuse to credit him.

Have the courage to tell a man why you will not lend him your money.

Have the courage to cut the most disagreeable acquaintance you have when you are convinced that he lacks principle; a friend should bear with a friend's infirmities, but not with his vices.

Have the courage to show your respect for honesty, in whatever guise it appears, and your contempt for dishonesty and duplicity by whomsoever exhibited.

Have the courage to wear your old clothes until you can pay for new ones.

Have the courage to prefer comfort and propriety to fashion, in all things.

Have the courage to acknowledge your ignorance, rather than to seek for knowledge under false pretenses.

Have the courage, in providing an entertainment for your friends, not to exceed your means.

Have the courage to insure the property in your possession, and thereby pay your debts in full.

—There is a power in the direct glance of a sincere and loving human soul, which will do more to dissipate prejudice and kindle charity than the most elaborate arguments.

—The golden moments in the stream of life rush past us, and we see nothing but sand; the angels come to visit us, and we only know them when they are gone.

"Grand-Daddy-Long-Legs."

[Mass. Ploughman.]

Everybody in the country is familiar with the little, long-legged insect, which he calls by a variety of names, the most common perhaps being "grand-sir-long-legs." It is as nimble as a cat, and a cunning, curious creature.

This is a species of spider, and is carnivorous or flesh-eating in its habits, seizing its prey very much as a cat seizes a mouse; but it differs from other spiders in that it devours its victims bodily, while most spiders suck out their juices, or blood, and leave the flesh untasted.

The grandsir-long-legs is very beneficial, and ought never to be destroyed. It devours immense numbers of plant lice and small insects that infest our gardens and fields, and at the West it has attacked the larvæ of the Colorado potato beetle, and is really doing something to help keep this terrible pest in check. We are afraid that we shall have plenty for it to do within five years, so let us not harm the grandsir-long-legs.

—M. Buffet, the president of the French Assembly, is so short-sighted that in one of the last sittings of that body, he seized a decanter instead of his bell, and threw the whole of its contents upon the heads of the house secretaries seated just below and before the Presidential chair. A general laugh ensued, and for a short while good-humor prevailed throughout the Assembly.

—In this artificial life of ours, it is not often we see a human face with all a heart's agony in it, uncontrolled by self-consciousness; when we do see it, it startles us as if we had suddenly walked into the real world of which this every-day one is but a puppet show.

PROPOSALS

FOR

Building Sloop-of-War at Kittery Navy Yard.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
Bureau of Construction and Repair,
July 30, 1873.

PROPOSALS will be received at this Bureau until 12 o'clock, M., on the FIRST DAY OF SEPTEMBER NEXT, from builders or mechanics qualified to do the work, for the raising, framing and ribboning, planking from keel to rail, ceiling, including keelsons, clamps, spirketting and battery, to rail, putting in decks, including all bitts, etc., putting on main and hammock rails, channels and chaines, building store-rooms, magazines and lockers, joiner work inside and out, caulking and scraping, building quarter-galleries and setting head, and painting complete, of a Sloop-of-War of about 640 tons. The materials, tools and facilities for doing the work will be furnished by the government.

The Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair will be at Kittery Navy Yard on WEDNESDAY, the 20th of August next, and in connection with the Naval Constructor of that yard will meet persons desiring to make proposals for the work above mentioned, and will give all necessary explanations concerning the work to be done, and in regard to the character of the materials, tools and facilities to be furnished by the Government.

Plans and specifications may be seen and examined on applying to the commandant of the Kittery Navy Yard, after August 1st, 1873.

A Sham and a Cheat.

[N. Y. Tribune.]

Gentlemen correspondents and gentlemen grabbers in esse and in posse please understand—not the Tribune, but the fact. This money is already drawn. It stands to the credit of each member who has not returned it. The disbursing officer of each House holds it subject to the member's order. It is his just as much as though it was on deposit in bank; his to draw, today, to-morrow, this year or next. For any member to say he has not drawn it is a sham and a cheat. He knows it and the people know it. There has been altogether too much of this humbuggery. It does not answer the purpose to talk loftily about its being "an obnoxious measure," and refusing to have anything to do with the money. The New Hampshire sneak did that on the stump and immediately after the election was over sent on and drew it. That will not do. But two courses are open. Either draw the money and face the odium of it, or turn it back into the Treasury. The list published by the Tribune may contain the names of some who have not yet drawn the money from the disbursing officer. Let them draw it and return it to the Treasury if they want to escape the opprobrium of the grab. There is no other way. To leave it in this sneaking way, to be drawn hereafter when the storm has blown over, is to add to the disgrace of the original theft the shame of cowardice.

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by a special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and leave on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT	17,000
10 CASH GIFTS $10,000 each	100,000
30 CASH GIFTS 5,000 each	150,000
50 CASH GIFTS 1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS 500 each	40,000
160 CASH GIFTS 400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS 300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS 200 each	50,000
225 CASH GIFTS 100 each	22,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS 50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to	$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22½ Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON,

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them as early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.

EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges.

JOHN TAGGART."

NOTICE.

Rockingham Ten Cents Savings Bank.

No. 29 MARKET ST., PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

AARON H. HILL, President, JOHN CHRISTIE, Treas.

THIS Bank pays five per cent. per annum, free of all tax. A greater rate is prohibited by law.

Two dividends are made in the year,—in June and December; and an extra dividend of the surplus earnings every two years. The first extra will be in June, 1874.

Deposits go on interest on the FIRST day of every MONTH, and deposits made during the FIRST THREE days of each MONTH will draw interest from the FIRST day of that MONTH.

Dividends not withdrawn will be added to the principal, and draw interest from the time when declared.

Money is received on deposit, payable on checks at sight.

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also
LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON
And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

WISTAR'S BALSAM
OF
WILD CHERRY!
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR
CONSUMPTION!
And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all
LUNG COMPLAINTS.
This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of
COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.
CONSUMPTION
CURED
By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.
Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry
Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.
CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,
And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Great South American Blood Purifier.
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently stagnating impurities, from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly adapted to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IF SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DROBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.
JOHN Q. KELLOGG, 18 Platt St., New York.
Sold by Druggists. Sole Agent for the United States. Price One Dollar per Bottle. Send for Circular.

Daily Chronicle.

JAKE'S LUCK.

"Whatever will Mr. Squimps say? Oh, girls, to think of it—poor washed-out Amanda Liza, with her check aprons and faded calicoes—to think of her turning out an heiress! Whew! it takes my breath away. What'll Jake do now I wonder?"

Miss Jenny Smith was an acknowledged leader in the Squimps Academy. She had maintained her rotund person and round good-natured face in spite of sour bread and scant rations. We thin and starvling girls looked up to her as a star of the first magnitude. We clustered round her in high conclave, as she sat on a desk in the schoolroom during the temporary absence of our worthy preceptor.

"Oh, she'll never think of Jake again," cried a sharp-faced girl in the corner.

"I'll bet she will," rejoined Miss Smith, slapping her hand energetically on her old grammar. Miss Smith had "big brothers," which may partly account for the vim with which she was wont to express herself. "But oh, don't I wish it was me! To think that Amanda Liza, that I used to lend my old collars to—"

"Young ladies, Miss Bimm!" cried a warning voice; whereat Jenny, with more haste than dignity, abandoned her lofty position, and there was a general stampede for seats, as Miss Bimm, the head teacher, came striding in, followed by Mr. Squimps, the principal, black, tall, and solemn as the shadow of a lamp-post. Now for stricter rules, longer lectures on propriety, and a general surveillance founded on "certain recent occurrences."

What would Mr. Squimps say? Ay, to be sure that was always a question of importance, and Mr. Squimps always said a good deal. Here was an especial theme for his eloquence; for this case of poor Amanda Liza, who had been his bond-slave for ten years, cuffed and cornered, making no sign, and at last turning out to have relations of her own and a heap of money, and leaving his establishment "for good and all" in his absence, was a leetle too much for human nature, as he declared. For Mr. Squimps did not disdain to descend to "familiar colloquialisms" once in a while as a relief from the high mental strain of too much Latin and Lexicon.

Mr. Squimps should have been a public speaker—so his wife declared, so all his friends affirmed—only the trouble was he would never have known when to stop. There was no "cork up" to him, the girls declared. Once given a little rope, a small vexation, an accidental jarring of his arrangements, and Mr. Squimps flowed out into limitless rivers of rhetoric. He argued his point down to the last whittle, wound up splendidly, touched up his fine whiskers, looked round for applause, turned over his wristbands, and, before you knew it, began again.

This was a splendid opening, this of Amanda Liza's—a girl whom he had taken out of "pure charity when her folks died of fever; a girl whom he had educated, brought up in his very family, and—and—and"—Mr. Squimps felt himself possessed on this occasion of all the stock in trade necessary for an orator.

"And Mr. Squimps like a father to her, too!" cried Mrs. Squimps, elevating her shriveled little hands.

Mrs. Squimps was a small wrinkled lady, rustling about of an afternoon in a stiff, voluminous silk, so little, so shrivelled, she seemed to rattle in it as she walked, like a withered kernel in a walnut shell. She had had the benefit of Mr. Squimps's eloquence the greater part of her life, and was much like a worn-out text—thin and thumbed and faded.

The good lady was humbly aware of her deficiencies. A mere bit of quartz, she did not attempt to shine even in her husband's refulgence. All real authority in her department was delegated to Miss Bimm, who carried things with an air, taught "higher branches," and took the lead.

Mrs. Squimps meekly took the kitchen, eminently fitter, as her husband declared, for that department, which was the foundation of all others. The foundation, prepared under Mrs. Squimps' supervision, was not very substantial. But elegance was the aim, gentility the law, at the academy, as Mr. Squimps observed, and no one asked twice for the same dish. An army of hungry girls, he remarked privately to Mrs. Squimps, would devour all before them unless properly restrained. Under this aspect sour bread and chill pancakes were judicious.

Amanda Liza, the girl about whom we were all just now in a furore, had assisted Mrs. Squimps and the maids in the kitchen. She was a drooping little thing, who never spoke up for herself; and if Jake hadn't spoken for her once in a while, she would scarcely have held her own even under Mrs. Squimps' motherly sway.

"Old Jake," as we called him, was a black-eyed, ragged lad of eighteen, the factotum of the school, general fag, bootblack, and boy-of-all-work to the establishment with an occasional elevation to coachman. Jake was subject to a state of chronic break, restive, forgetful of his duties, "dreadful sassy," the maids said. Jake had his ideal, and it was Mandy Liza. He was soft, quiet with the girl in [illegible] high ambition to help her through with her chores and get her into class. Jake's guardianship of the girl was an accepted fact in the school and village round about. No boy dared play any tricks on Amanda Liza.

"Jest you wait till I get my luck, an' I'll teach you!" was Jack's admonition, accompanied with a clinchfug of his sunny fist that ably seconded the argument.

The girl took it very quietly in her gentle way, and seemed to have a kindly regard for Jake—mending his coat occasionally, or darning his stockings—a thing which Jake gallantly declared "she shouldn't do never agin; he wouldn't have no ladies wattin' on him."

Ladies! The girls used to nudge each other and smile; but for all that they were very good to Amanda Eliza, whose faded dress and meek ways set her apart from the noisy youth-laces of the rest of us. We never begrudged the extra polish which Jake in his capacity as boot-black bestowed upon her shoes; and we did not laugh when those same shoes made their appearance one day adorned with a couple of silent pair of steel buckles, which were also well discovered to have been abstracted from the coachman's rig, in which Jake occasionally did duty, and to which, I am sorry to add, he was ignominiously obliged to remove them.

Occasionally, on some rare holiday, we girls had the privilege of a drive out into the country, when the Squimpses' superannuated sorrel, covered with an elaborate netting to conceal his deficiences, and pricking up its tasseled ears with quite a show of spirit, would set off on a brisk trot, animated, no doubt, by the prospect of a grassy nibble along the road. Gay times were those. Jake was as his jollies, and we all—old Dobbin included—forgot our "short commons" and long lectures, and grew hilarious together. Even poor Amanda Liza, quietly stowed away in the back seat, brightened up in the sunlight, and was meekly merry. Ah! the twilight that summer evening was warm and mellow, and we heard a refrain of the grand poem on the jolting seat of the old wagon, though Jake was silent the rest of the way, looking furtively now and then at the girl beside him, and being very attentive to old Dobbin. Poor Jake! Amanda Liza had shot up clean out of his reach since then, and what we wanted to know was whether the girl would remember him now in the days of her elevation.

A wealthy uncle, a splendid home, and money on her own account—ah! no wonder we had not seen Amanda since.

"They touched her off like a sky-rocket, and she vanished," said Jake ruefully.

Had she vanished for good? Then poetical justice was a myth, and Amanda's patched shoes and faded dresses were not more worthless than she. We waited. We pricked up our ears at every ring of the door-bell, but weeks passed, and the golden coach-and-six in which our Cinderella was to arrive did not rattle up to the Squimps academy.

I think we had almost given it up, and Amanda Liza's base forgetfulness and ingratitude were becoming an old story, when one day at noon Jake came rushing in among us, hot and shining, and holding between his thumb and forefinger a dainty billet. He looked like an embodied "hurrah" at that moment.

But to tell the truth Jake could not quite make out the writing, for with all his "opportunities," as our worthy principal designated his vicinage to wisdom and learning in the capacity of shoe-black, the lad was unable to decipher manuscript—"hadn't the patience," he declared.

Jenny Smith read the letter for him amid general applause. Justice and righteousness had triumphed, it appeared, and Amanda Liza had proved herself a "regular brick," as Jenny, with brimming eyes, observed, handing back the precious scrap of paper to Jake, who carefully wrapped it in his ragged handkerchief. The letter contained a brief invitation to the lad, urging him to come and see his old friend—a day was appointed for the visit, and the street and number where she was to be found were written out in a round, school-girl hand; a fashionable and wealthy quarter of the city, where Jake was not likely to be very familiar.

Jake set himself to work without loss of time at blacking his boots, albeit the appointed day was somewhere about a week ahead. But it would take a deal of fixing, he explained confidentially, to get ready, and he hadn't much to fix with. Jake's normal condition was not that of a dandy certainly. He could only, as a general thing, be lured by the prospect of a drive to "red himself up," as Mrs. Squimps said. To be ragged and let alone was his heaven. But this time he rose to the greatness of the occasion—he brushed and scoured, washed out his sole white shirt, dusted and straightened his battered old hat, and mended his trowsers.

Deeply interested in Jake's fortunes, we watched the proceedings.

"But Jake," said Jenny Smith one day, "what are you to do for a coat?"

Unhappy suggestion! Jake looked aghast. He hadn't thought of that. Certainly he couldn't make his appearance in that overgrown coachman's rig, in which he was wont to illustrate the academical respectability on the road. And he had nothing else. No necessity had ever before developed itself for anything save shirt sleeves and a woolen jacket.

An awful pause came over our deliberations for Jake. Miss Smith whistled, and finally suggested her water-proof—we all were ready to fling ours at his feet—but Jake couldn't go muffled like an Italian brigand. He shook his head.

Night closed without any solution of the difficulty, but we trusted that somehow the lad's quick wit would find a way out of it.

The next morning, however, a new sensation turned us from the contemplation of Jake's disasters. The house had been robbed. We were all terribly scared, and Mr. Squimps was in a fever of declamation and wrath. His coat, his best-beloved blue-black coat, in which he was wont to dignify trustee meetings, ornament his pew of a Sunday, and pay visits of state to his patrons—his coat had been stolen! His coat, a man so devoted to the interests of education that he scarcely had time to go to the tailor's; to think that an ungrateful, inappreciative, idle world should have permitted him to be robbed! He raved, he stormed, he threatened vengeance, he lectured us on the degeneracy of the times, and forgot our Latin.

Vague forebodings of lurking assassins, masked robbers, and frequent skirmishes into the wardrobe and dormitories about this time kept us all in a nervous flurry, to the exclusion of all thought of Jake. But late one twilight afternoon, as we sat huddled in the windows of the long school-room waiting the supper-bell, we saw him issue from the outhouse. Oh, horror! Oh, apparition of terror! For with its tails nearly touching the ground, its long sleeves overlapping his hands, Jake wore, without a doubt, the missing coat, boldly marching in his stolen finery down toward the road in sight of all.

In sight of sharper eyes than seemed, for not far from the house Mr. Squimps himself pounced upon him.

Poor, kind, light-hearted Jake! We held our breath that day and the next, for Jake had been marched off to prison, and Mr. Squimps's eloquence and morality in full flow. He said a longer grace than ever at dinner, and we were all afraid when hungrily eyeing the scanty board, we heard the visitors' bell summon him to the parlor. I think we were in better appetite that usual that day, and left little behind us for our Mentor as we filed upstairs toward the school-room. Passing the parlor door there rushed out upon us a little figure in a trailing silk dress and a bonnetful of nodding French flowers. It was Amanda Liza.

"Oh, girls!" she cried, hysterically, bewildered with an apparent desire to embrace the whole troupe. "Poor Jake!"

Mr. Squimps, tall and solemn, rose with dignity, and closed the parlor door upon their further conference. We heard him make this consoling remark,

"I always knew he'd come to no good!"

It seemed that Amanda had learned of Jake's mishap through some stray newspaper, where the well-known name of the virtuous and vengeful Squimps had met her eye. She comprehended the situation, and came to the academy to plead for her old friend.

We waited the news of Jake's fate breathlessly, nodding and whispering among ourselves. For there would be a trial of something terrible, of course, we hardly knew what. Mr. Squimps was away all the afternoon, the classes were demoralized, and we stood idly gazing out of the window at four o'clock, when a carriage came up the drive. To our amazement Jake sat on the box, elate and erect. He sprang down, and opened the door with a flourish, and out stepped Mr. Squimps.

"The girl pleaded so hard that I have decided not to prosecute," said Mr. Squimps; and if a splendid new coat from the tailor's and a plump silken purse of unknown manufacture had anything to do with this decision we were not informed of it.

"And I'm going to live with Miss Mandy Liza forever!" cried Jake, when he came among us, his face lit with a glory as if he were departing for heaven.

Would Amanda Liza dress him in a blue coat and brass buttons, and make him her coachman at good wages? Ah, what a rise for poor Jake! Amanda Eliza was his saint, his angel, the hem of whose garment he touched reverently. There was no commonplace element about such love as this, and Jake would be content to let down her carriage steps and look after her ponies all the days of his life, we thought. And that was the last we saw of him at the Squimpses.'

But years after, when I was travelling in Australia with my husband, Mr. Smith and myself were invited to the ranch of the magistrates there, whose broad estates covered miles of mountain and meadow, and who owned almost literally "the cattle upon a thousand hills." In the lady of the mansion, a delicate and dainty personage, I recognized with a cry of surprise and delight my old school-mate, Amanda Liza; but I did not know the portly dignitary upon whose arm she hung until I heard her laughingly-whisper—"Oh, Jake, don't you remember old Squimps?

—What is the use of making dying requests of your friends, anyhow? The case of that poor old lady at Oswego is an illustration. She had not lived on the most agreeable terms with her husband (he preceded her to the happy land just seven days), and her dying request was that she should be buried fifteen miles from the "old man," that the dog should be killed, so that it could not visit a neighbor that the old lady disliked, and that she should have the very best coffin that could be procured, and be buried in a white alpaca robe. Alas for the hard-heartedness of humanity! As the old lady was largely dependent upon her neighbors, the distance she got from the old man was reduced to five miles. Her coffin was of plain wood—she didn't have that white alpaca, but only a plain shroud—and when last heard from the dog was still alive, but the way the old lady's ghost stalks around that region is alarming.

—When Jones' board bill was presented, he said that he did not have enough money to pay it, opening his wallet at the same time. His landlady seeing quite a number of bank notes, rather doubted his word, and inquired what denomination those bills were. "Denomination?" said Jones. "Well, I don't know; but I guess they must be of the Unitarian denomination for they are all ones."

—We are told that nothing is made in vain. But how about a pretty girl? Isn't she maiden vain?

The lower part of the city of Quebec was threatened with destruction by fire on the 19th. Lumber-yards, wharves and two schooners were destroyed before the flames were brought under control. Great excitement prevailed. The loss is estimated at from $150,000 to $200,000.

It has transpired that the peculations of McClellan, late chief postal clerk before Washington and New York, amounted to $40,000.

There was a tragedy in Bridgewater, Lunenburg county, N. S. on Sunday, the 17th. Peter Mailman is supposed to have lured his wife into the woods and murdered her, and then set fire to the woods, with the purpose of destroying all traces of his crime. The ashes of the remains of a human being, supposed to have been those of his wife, were found in the burnt district in the woods, and Mailman is now under arrest. After he came out of the woods he was heard to threaten to hang his children, and persons seeing him going into the bush followed and prevented the commission of a second crime.

State News.

Mrs. J. H. White of Manchester attempted to commit suicide on Monday evening, but was rescued before a fatal result ensued. She returned home last January from the Concord insane asylum.

Polar Research.

The Stockholm Aftonblad of the 17th of July contains some official account from the commander of the North Pole expedition. They wintered in 76 degrees, 53 minutes north latitude and 19 degrees, 15 minutes east longitude, where they put together a house, the intention being for the ships to proceed farther north in the middle of September, to make depots of stores along the route proposed to be taken by the sledging parties that would follow at a later period. This design, however, was frustrated by the early severity of the winter. On the 4th of October the scientific men of the expedition took up their abode in the house. On the 20th of the same month the sun disappeared below the horizon, it having been already hidden from their view on the 13th by high mountains. Still daylight continued to some extent till the latter part of November, when it may be said it was totally dark at mid-day. Occasionally up to this date the temperature fell to 28 degrees Celsius, but it was not painful either when moving about or while sleeping in a tent on the ice. No open water was visible at all! The health of all was satisfactory, until the rations were reduced in order to assist starving ship' crews who walked across the ice on hearing of the expedition. Scurvy resulted from this privation. Important results are expected from the observations taken, especially of the northern lights as analyzed by the spectrum. As regards the deep-sea dredging, it could be continued nearly the whole time, and the specimens brought to the surface showed that animal life was in no way interfered with by severe cold and darkness continuing for so many months, and that sea-weeds also flourished. The sun was not visible from the 20th of October to the 21st of February following, but the moon showed itself uninterruptedly night and day during every alternate fortnight, for ten days of which it never disappeared below the horizon. The dispatch was dated the 23d of February this year, and ended with the expression of a hope of being able to proceed further north as soon as circumstances should permit. One of the three ships forming the expedition had lately come into harbor in Norway.

People who Get under other People's Umbrellas.

[Scribner's.]

The ferry-boat is favorable to the development of the best specimens of this class. If you stand on the forward deck, toward the end of the voyage, of a drizzly afternoon, you will, no doubt, see several excellent examples of the species. I noticed a fine fellow this afternoon. He had two large brown paper bundles in each hand, which, together with his own person, were entirely protected from moisture by being jammed up against the form of a meek little gentleman, who was compelled to hold his blue silk umbrella uncomfortably high in order to accommodate his uninvited guest.

You see that is an invariable feature of the case; the calm security. I may say the magnificent repose, of the intruder is never more marked a phenomenon than the pathetic air of resignation that envraps the always meek and always little gentleman thus imposed upon. It only imperfectly expresses the situation to say that the gentleman with the brown paper bundles gives evidence of a cheerful faith in the Providence of his neighbor's umbrella; and that the owner and bearer of the umbrella accepts his fate in the same religious spirit.

It is a very suggestive sight. I often wonder what is the right thing for the little gentleman to do—for you to do, supposing you to be the little gentleman; especially when the other man is not only a nuisance as to odor, and the weariness of the uplifted arm, and the inconvenient pressure upon the body; but becomes additionally obnoxious by stepping upon your toes. Are there not moments even in the lives of little gentlemen—no matter how meek by nature—when it is not only possible but praiseworthy and safe for them to kick? Are there not improvident, self-conceited, busybody vagabonds in this world to whom a sharp surprise of this kind may be the appointed means of saving grace?

But, ah, me! I fear it is easier to be "mellow" than to be hard. I am afraid you (and I) will weakly suffer the scrouging rather than exert ourselves sufficiently to be eased of the thousand impositions of the life that now is.

Would it not be an odd bit of tragedy if some day we should find the brown paper bundles in our own hands, instead of the blue silk umbrella.

An Aerial Hotel.

The latest thing in hotels is suggested by an ingenious correspondent of the Galveston News. It is to be a huge balloon, firmly secured by strong attachments at a proper height. "Galveston," he says, "is within one mile of the most delightful climate in the world, and this climate is directly overhead. To the enormous balloon there is to be attached a framework of sufficiently strong wire, fitted up to accommodate one hundred guests. This airy saloon will be reached by a smaller balloon acting as an elevator. When the barometer indicates disturbing weather, the gas can be let off and the whole establishment brought down to solid earth. We can imagine a caravansary of this kind perfectly delightful. Owing to the purity of the air the chamber-maids would bloom in perpetual youth; and in such vicinity to the immortal gods every man waiter would develop into a Ganymede and every table girl into a Hebe. As for the gentlemanly clerk, what limit would there be to his celestial gifts and graces? And here would the landlord grow solid, impressive, and jovial as Jove himself. So near the moon and stars, what more charming place could there be for flirting? And when we call to mind how easily the bores could be thrown over, we feel that we need say no more.

—A San Francisco milliner recently hit upon a novel expedient to advertise her store. She had among her assistants one remarkably handsome young woman, and having attired this damsel in the choicest garments of the establishment, placed her in the window of the store. The girl stood in a half reclining attitude, perfectly still, and very soon an immense crowd of people had assembled to see the beautiful milliner's sign. The crowd soon grew to a perfect mob, quite blocking the street until the curtains were lowered and the living model relieved from her position.

—Several young fellows have broken off their engagements with fashionable fiances this summer. They say that kissing a lady with an Elizabethan ruff on is about as much fun as embracing a circular saw in full motion.

Business Notices.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. ta29

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

The Beginning of Sickness.

Never trifle with what are called small ailments. A disorder easy of control at first, if neglected for a few weeks, may become a mortal disease. Be especially careful not to let debility gain upon you, for it is the door through which maladies enter the system. If you feel languid, inert, and, to use a common expression, "as if there was no life left in you," resort at once to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The great vegetable tonic will supply the vitality you so urgently need. It is nerve food, for its tonic action the Stomach is so invigorated that digestion becomes regular, easy, perfect; while its mild, cathartic properties relieve the bowels from obstructions, and its alterative operation beneficially affect all the secretive organs. For the miseries of dyspepsia, and they include almost every unpleasant feeling that belongs to physical disease and mental wretchedness, this potent tonic is a certain and speedy balm.

Unlike other Cathartics, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets do not, after their operation, have a secondary tendency to render the bowels more costive. This is an important improvement, as all who have ever taken many pills or other cathartics for the purpose of overcoming constipation, know to their sorrow that the secondary effect of all such medicines has been to "render a bad matter worse." These Pellets produce such a secondary tonic effect upon the bowels as to bring about a permanent healthy action. Hence their great value, taken in small doses daily for any length of time, in habitual constipation and in Piles, attended and produced, as they generally are, by torpor of the liver and costiveness. Sold by Druggists at 25 cents a vial. 6m

Local Matters.

Laconics.

An excursion party from Laconia visited the Shoals on Wednesday.

The NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE for this week contains thirty-five columns of reading matter, including six columns of local news.

The great-grandfather, grandfather and uncle of Miss Jennie Burnham, one of the Newmarket victims, were drowned in the same bay, within a mile from where her body was found.

Hon. Frank Jones and family left this city, on Saturday last, for a trip through the White Mountains, and were the guests of Hon. John G. Sinclair, at Littleton, on Sunday.

It is said that the Eastern Railroad Company is about to build a freight and passenger station near the rubber factory in Caryville. It is said that the Cary Improvement Company have given land owned by them for improvement by the Eastern road.

Wednesday morning the vane of the North church pointed south-west; that of the Temple north-east. People could take their choice. It hasn't been decided yet which vane needs greasing, but it is thought somebody would do well to write to the weather man at Washington on the subject.

The New Hampshire Lecture Bureau announces among its list of lecturers Hon. W. H. Y. Hackett of this city, whose subjects are: Some of the Causes of Success and Failure in Life; and, Independent Individuality of Character. J. P. Bartlett, Esq., is announced as a reader.

At a fire on —— street in the winter of 1860, some of the firemen were at work with picks, axes and bars, cutting the ice and frozen earth from one of the aqueduct stops near the fire, when our old friend Sam Grover came near to see what was going on. After looking at them a few minutes, he turned away in disgust and vented himself thusly, "A pretty time to dig a well when the town's a-fire."

A Lazy Man's Cares.

[Henry Ward Beecher.]

The cares of a large and increasing family must leave their marks upon the most patient and willing persons. Here am I on the hills, retired from the crowded anxiety of the city, but only to take up new duties. On me comes all the care of the robins, the sparrows, the cats, the various pets, and no small task is it to keep nature in good-nature. Quarreling is the bane of the world. Self-defending combativeness has stepped forth from its sphere, and is turned to attack in every form of teasing, tormenting, quarreling, fighting, slaying. I must take the part of the dogs against intrusive dogs; of the cats against the dogs; of the robins against the cats; of the small fruits against the robins. And so it goes?

Early in the morning, between four and five, a great city is raised right out of my window—a ground-floor room. I know the sharp sound of a robin's mingled fear and anger. There is a nest with young in a fir tree close by the window. I know it. The bird knows it, and Tommy knows it—that is the city cat. "Whenever he takes his walks abroad" he turns his eyes toward heaven, and you would think him a saint in his morning devotion, or a true lover. Not he. He has an eye to breakfast. He has learned all the domestic habits of birds; espies their nests; waits till the brood fill the nest. It's a rare chance if one does not get crowded out, in which case Tom, without gracing his meal with a blessing, puts the featherless wretch inside of his fur, and walks off demurely and most innocent looking.

Then, too, a cat is deeply interested when young birds make their first attempts at flying. Of course mistakes will happen. Many a one comes down to the ground, and no one is so willing to help them up as Tommy. And so it comes to pass that he has a bad name among all birds round about. His presence is reason enough for setting up a clamor; and on several recent mornings he has tried to look into the robin's nest near my window. As I am bishop of birds and bugs, I feel bound to look after my flock, and must c'en step out barefoot (and not my feet alone) to throw stones at the gray wretch. He dashes through shrubbery in a twinkling. The bird lays down its ruffled feathers. I give one look at the "morning upon the mountains." The air is cool; the sky pure; the distance without smoke or haze; the first touches of sunlight glance along the hills; here and there a languid curl of smoke is slowly ascending; the grass sparkles; the trees round out with freshest green, as if they too had slept and aroused in new vigor. One wide look at the opalescent morning, and then I return to sleep like one who has done his whole duty.

But all day long, morning, forenoon, afternoon and evening, the cats will plague the robins, and I am kept busy stoning the cats. Bessey, the model matron, mother of an endless succession of kittens, seldom troubles birds—at any rate she is never found out. The city cat is an enthusiast in ornithology. Then come the barn cats without names, unsocial, wild and predatory. They live by hunting. Add to these two nice half-grown kittens, that show decided symptoms of a love of nature, and you may see what a diocese I have.

Dogs fill our minds with little less vexation. The breed in vogue just now is the Spitz, long-haired, white, medium size. The face is that of surpassing intelligence, carried to the verge of foxiness. They frolic well and make good pets. But barking is their specialty. Everything in them tends to barking, as in a Jersey cow everything tends to milk. They bark with reason and without, at everything and at nothing—at distant sounds, at each other, at everybody that stirs. They bark and run, and run and bark; they dream bark, and wake up with an explosion. They sit on their haunches and bark as if they threw a bark up into the air and then barked at it. But all ordinary barking is as nothing to that which moonlight nights evolve. There are four of them, two here and two just yonder, but they are all intimately acquainted; and though they sleep and eat at home, they bark together promiscuously all over the hill. Now a gentleman with a pocket full of stones, on a moonlight night, subduing four dogs that were everlastingly set forth to bark and who know their vocation, will find all the amusement he wants before going to bed, or at any hour of the night when they come racing like a rushing wind, barking as if, like an alarm clock, they had been wound up to bark, and all had gone off together, and couldn't stop till they had run down; only they won't go off, and when they run down they come back again.

These Spitz dogs come from the far frigid North, and bring with them the wild, untamed liberty of the poles. The idea of obedience never enters their heads. You put down your foot, and they slip away and repent the act forbidden. They are as slippery as eels, and yet, with all their noisiness and insubordination, they are so merry, affectionate, good-natured and knowing, that you cannot help liking them.

—A man in Pennsylvania has invented a rat-trap that is made to operate upon the selfish passions of the poor rat, and lure him into trouble. A mirror is set in the back part of the device, beyond the bait, and as his ratship is out on a foraging expedition, he espies the bait; at the same time he believes his image in the mirror to be another rat making for it on the opposite side. This is too much for rat nature to stand and be cool over, so he rushes for the bait, and is caught.

—A little girl in Boston, who had learned that human beings have souls, but that animals have not, recently lost her pet squirrel. She mourned his death bitterly, and when her mother suggested that she ought not to grieve so much at the loss of an animal, she said, pathetically: "I shouldn't care, mother, if Benny went anywhere." The answer was a touching evidence of the consolation derived from the Christian's belief in the immortality of the soul.

REMOVAL.

STOVES, TIN WARE, IRON AND STEEL.

URIAH BLAISDELL

Informs his friends and the public that he has removed to

No. 55 Market Street,

(late the well-known Iron Store of Mr. John P. Lyman,) a few doors north of his old stand, and next beyond the Union Store, where he offers his usual stock of

STOVES OF ALL KINDS,
TIN, JAPANNED & GLASS WARE,
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,
FARM & GARDEN TOOLS, &c.

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the

"NEW AMERICAN,"

Improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a good stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am storing up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

Iron, Steel, Bolts, Nuts, Axles and Boxes, Horse-Shoe Forms, Horse-Shoe Nails, &c., &c.,

Will find it for their interest to give me a call.
N. B.—Seward's PATENT AXLE CLIPS AND YOKES, the latest and best articles in this line, in good supply.

PLEASE PAY UP!

The large expense I have incurred in the above change places me much in need of money; therefore all indebted to me will greatly oblige by promptly settling, and especially those owing long-standing accounts.

PROPOSALS
FOR Building Sloop-of-War at Kittery Navy Yard.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
Bureau of Construction and Repair,
WASHINGTON, July 25, 1873.

PROPOSALS will be received at this Bureau until 12 o'clock, M., on the FIRST DAY OF SEPTEMBER NEXT, from builders or mechanics qualified to do the work, for the raising, framing and ribbeting, planking from keel to keel, ceiling, including keelsons, clamps, spirketting and battery, to rail; putting in decks, including all beams, carlings, main and hatchwaik rails, ledges and chocks, building store-rooms, magazines and lockers, joiner work inside and out, caulking and scraping, building quarter-galleries and setting head, and painting complete, of a Sloop-of-War of about 640 tons. The materials, tools and facilities for doing the work will be furnished by the government.

The Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair will be at Kittery Navy Yard on WEDNESDAY, the 20th of August next, and in connection with the Navy Constructor of that yard will meet persons desiring to make proposals for the work above mentioned, and will give all necessary explanations concerning the work to be done, and in regard to the character of the materials, tools and facilities to be furnished by the Government.

Plans and specifications may be seen and examined on applying to the commandant of the Kittery Navy Yard, after August 1st, 1873.

ROBERTS & CO.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—Apropos of the present discussion of "Cæsarism" is the following definition of the original Julius: "Julius Cæsar—An ancient Roman of celebrity. He advertised to the effect that he had rather be first at Rome than second in a small village. He was a man of great muscular strength. Upon one occasion he threw an entire army across the Rubicon. A general named Pompey met him in what was called the 'tented field,' but Pompey couldn't hold a Roman candle to Julius. We are assured, upon the authority of Patrick Henry, that 'Cæsar had his Brutus.' The unbiased reader of history will conclude, however, on the contrary, that Brutus rather had Cæsar. This Brutus never struck me as an unpleasant man to meet, but he did Cæsar. After addressing a few oral remarks to Brutus in the Latin language, Cæsar expired. His subsequent career is without interest. Cæsar was bald, which Grant is not, and wore a laurel fly-brush to conceal the billiard-ball which he called a head."

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 31d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and hence offer much the scheme with an explosion line of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		15,000
10 CASH GIFTS	$10,000 each	100,000
30 CASH GIFTS	5,000 each	150,000
50 CASH GIFTS	1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS	500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole Tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less Tickets than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from agents, who will be scattered throughout this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic,

CURING

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,

SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,

For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.

NO. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, he continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL.
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL.
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL.
SMOKEN RED ASH COAL.
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL.
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The Great South American Blood Purifier.
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and languidness and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Gen. Taylor as a Historian.

[Harper for September.]

Gen. Taylor, although an excellent soldier, and a man of strong good sense in the every-day affairs of life, had been educated in the camp, and knew no more of statesmanship or the operations of government than a Comanche Indian; nor was he distinguished for colloquial accomplishments or narrative or descriptive talent. Then he had a habit of hesitation that amounted almost to a stammer. He spoke in a terse, sententious style upon subjects with which he was familiar, and his suggestions especially on military matters were marked by quick perception and sound judgment. But he was never diffuse or demonstrative, and wasted no words upon anybody.

Judge Butler, a colleague in the Senate of Mr. Calhoun, calling to pay his respects to the President, begged him to describe the manner in which the battle of Buena Vista was fought. His brother, Pierce Butler, commanding the Palmetto Regiment, and a very gallant officer, fell in the battle, and the Judge was naturally anxious to learn the particulars of that desperate contest. "Well, well, Judge, you want to know how the thing was done. Come and dine with me to-day and I'll tell you all I know about it."

Judge Butler was a hasty, impetuous man and the words flowed from his mouth in a torrent whenever he had occasion to speak. He was all impatience during the dinner, and the moment they were alone he brought up the subject of the battle.

"Yes, yes, Judge, your brother was a brave man, and behaved like a true soldier. But about the battle—you want to know how it was fought?"

"Yes, General, if you will be so kind. I wish to learn how your troops were disposed on the field, and how you posted them to resist a force so overwhelming. Santa Anna must have out-numbered you four or five to one."

"The difference was greater than that, I think, but we didn't stop to count the Mexicans. I knew there was a heavy force, and longed for a couple of regiments more of regulars."

"Undoubtedly," said the Judge; "but what was your order of battle?"

"Why, why, you see, Judge, we went to fighting early in the morning the first day, and we fit all day long, losing a good many men, and at night it looked pretty bad."

"Well, what next?"

"When it got dark I rode over to Saltillo to look after our stores and to provide against a surprise."

"Why did you go yourself? Why not send one of your aids?"

"You see, Judge, everything depended on not having our supplies cut off, and I wanted to see after things myself."

"How was it the next morning when you came on the field?" inquired Judge Butler.

"Not much change since the night before."

"Who was the first man you met?"

"Gen. Wool."

"And what did he say?"

"All is lost."

"What was your reply?"

"'Maybe so, General—we'll see.' And upon that we went to fighting again, and fit all that day, and toward night it looked better."

The Judge looked rather blank, asked "What next?"

"Well, the next morning it was reported to me that Santa Anna and all his men had disappeared in the night, and I was devilish glad to be rid of them so."

Mephistophes at the Seashore.

["Gath," in Chicago Tribune.]

Opulence and leisure, and promiscuous tumbling together of people at these great inns, broed a class of men who are traveled, refined and unscrupulous, and who go about among married women, to whom they have free access, making it a fine art to loosen their hold upon their husbands and duties. Yonder is one I have been watching for some time, and I know wha. he is saying as well as he knows he lies. He is a tallish, delicate-looking man, whose collars always fit him neatly, and whose moustache is of the kind called stylish. That's what he is—a stylish fellow, who has practiced the power of persistent, thoughtful, delicate attention upon young married women whose lives have somewhat worn out in romance. He hopes she is appreciated, and certainly she must be with such superior deserts and attractions What could resist her, if she knew herself. Ah? Would she but permit a friend to divide her sorrows; for her joys, God willed them otherwise. And so they go off and stroll to some solitary place, where nature bends down in the evening calm to help a lying tongue pervert life's realities, and put a spectre in a home else well contented. There is a "friend" in the house, that devil which underlies much of social life. But what "friend" has the friend's wife? Or has he, anticipating that contingency, broken the wife's beauty and spirit, so that friendship and peace of mind in this life do no more? One sees many a young woman here leaning on her father's arm, he wearing a watchful look of solicitude. "She don't live with her husband," says the critical woman in the armchair, "but she pretends she does to keep calumny off her." He's somewhere else. They're never together." But the "friend" seldom troubles the wife after he has separated her from her duties.

Another Tune.

The democratic editors of the United States are funny fellows, and the widely contradictory views of any two of them, on any (or no) public question, are most amusing to their political antagonists; but they are so erratic, particularly when they are under the influence of their regularly recurring paroxysms of Grantphobia, that it is hard work to keep track of them or tell where they are. At present the democratic press wrestle mightily with two abstruse conundrums, viz: "Is the democratic party dead?" and "What will Grant do next?" And one query seems just about as troublesome to them as the other. That portion of the democratic press represented by the Boston Post, which supported Greeley both before and after the Baltimore auction sale of democratic "principles," does not believe the party dead at all, and speaks as boldly of future democratic victories and the return of that party as if such a contingency was probable or at least possible. Another section, represented by the New York World, which denounced the coalition movement as a shameless and corrupt barter of principle and a mere trick—and a mighty shallow one at that—to catch republican votes, before the Baltimore trade was completed, but discovered a virtuous ignoring of unworthy prejudice in it as soon as the dicker was finished, does not think the party quite dead but only suffering badly from injudicious doctoring. A third part, represented by the Chicago Times, which fought the democratic-liberal fusion movement tooth and nail, before and after the Baltimore convention alike, loudly declares the party dead from taking poison, and that it has been dead a good while,—so long that it is doubtful if enough decayed fragments of it can be collected to have a decent funeral over. Years ago the democratic partizan press was not wont to be divided against itself on the question as to whether or no the party was living or dead; but that was when it was a power in the land,—when there was something more of it than a name and a memory.

But the opposition press, though hopelessly antagonistic on the "alive or dead" question concerning their party, are charmingly united in their prophecies as to what President Grant means to do,—he is going to mount the American throne and set a "bull-pup" to worry American liberty, and overthrow the Constitution and the Laws—with an army of thirty thousand men! True, these doleful predictions of what Grant means to and can do, do not agree very well with what the same papers were as confidently saying of the same man one year ago, but consistency was never a failing of the democratic press. Last year Grant was a "drunken idiot," and "a mere tool in the hands of radical politicians," also "a puppet," and anything else but an able man; the "gentleman from furrin parts" who assumed to direct the course of American politics by printing pictures of the President in Frank Leslie's paper, always represented him as drunk and accompanied by a "bull-pup;" the Manchester Union called the President "His Imbecility;" and the burden of the democratic war-song all over the country was to the effect that Grant was a compound of fool, drunkard and low sporting-man, in about equal proportions, and that he not only wholly neglected the duties of his high office but was wholly incapable of doing any better. But Grant paid no more attention to the democratic outcry against his advance on Long Branch than he had before done to a similar outcry against his advance on Richmond; yells of "bull-pup" failed to keep him from visiting a friend if he chose, and the democratic regulators were in every way ignored. And now the same papers which last year maintained that the Union was in danger because Grant was an "imbecile" who divided his time impartially between whiskey and bull-pups, frantically warn us to beware of a Cæsar! The fact that their former tactics resulted in seven hundred thousand majority for the taciturn smoker, of course had nothing to do with this wondrous change of tune, oh, no! We are charitable enough to think that the democratic editors are not such asses as to put the least faith in their own predictions; nor do we believe that their mendacity, in its new channel, will help their party any more than it did when in its old one.

State News.

George E. Gridley of Wolfeborough, who was instrumental in saving a boy boarding at the Pavilion Hotel, from drowning, a short time since, received a present of $100 from the father of the boy last week.

There is a farmer on Diamond hill, in Hopkinton, and about four miles from this city, who has a field of onions, containing over three acres. He places his crop at twelve hundred bushels, and thinks he ought to realize $1,400. His labor is himself and a small boy to carry on his whole farm.

The twenty-first annual festival of the Cheshire County Musical convention was held in Keene this week. In the solo, choral and orchestral talent it maintained the high character of previous gatherings.

Mr. Geo. W. Young, brother of Aaron Young, Esq., residing in Clarksville, Va., recently purchased a residence there, which had been altered from a bank building, and while a cellar was being dug, the north wall of the building, sixty feet high, crumbled from the bottom and fell. Mrs. Young, who was in the house, escaped with no serious injury, but a lady in the upper story fell headlong down stairs, and was considerably bruised. The damage to the building was about $500.

A New Way of Making Butter.

The following novel method of obtaining butter without going through the usual process of milking, churning and churning, or even depending on the cow for it, will interest, not only farmers, but every one who indulges in the luxury of butter. It will be seen that the article referred to is a copy of a letter sent to the Boston Transcript duly authenticated and signed.

"To the Editor of the Transcript: It will doubtless be news to many of your readers to learn that in this city a stock company has been formed for the manufacture of butter by an entirely new process; and that it is in full tide of successful operation. It is called, or calls itself the "Oleomargarine Manufacturing Company." I will give you such facts regarding this company, the process of their operations, and the result of the experiment, as I have been able to gather from a distinguished professor of chemistry in this city, and also from other sources.

To produce butter in the ordinary way, we have to milk the cows, let the milk stand till the cream rises, skim off the cream and then churn the butter. It is a long, tedious, roundabout way (and not always very cleanly) to produce this essential article of food. Much of the butter made in this way is more or less rancid and not fit for the table. The butter thus made—good or bad—comes from the fatty tissues of the cow. A small portion of this fat or oil is combined with the milk, and as oil will not combine with water or milk, if the milk is allowed to stand, the oil rises to the top in the cream. Take this butter and warm it to a certain degree, and you have nothing but oil.

Now the new process of making butter is to go to the original source of the oil, viz. to the fatty tissues of the animal. This fat taken from any beef creature when killed,—cow, steer, ox, etc., is taken and ground into a fine pulp. It is then warmed up to about 112 degrees Fahrenheit, when it is enveloped in cloths, somewhat like cheese, and the oil pressed out, large iron presses being used for the purpose. This oil is then cooled down to about sixty degrees, and placed in an ordinary churn, adding the same quantity of water or milk—though I believe they now use sour milk in preference—adding a little anato, a vegetable preparation used to color cheese; when the churning commences. In four minutes the operation ceases, and a splendid article of butter is turned out. The water or milk has then to be "worked out," as the ordinary buttermilk, and an ounce of salt to the pound added.

It is a remarkable fact, that seventy-five pounds of oil will produce one hundred pounds of butter!—the extra twenty-five pounds being increased by the water, milk and salt.

Now the question is, "Is this good butter?" I answer that it is. It is purer, sweeter, better than any Philadelphia butter sold in the market at $1 per pound! Even the keenest judges cannot distinguish it from the finest butter in the market. When President Grant was here some months since, he took dinner with a number of distinguished gentlemen. This was the only butter on the table. After the dinner, the company were told how it was made, and it was unanimously agreed that no finer butter was ever tasted. Some months since, and before the invention was made known, one of the parties interested took some of the butter to one of the heavy dealers in Washington Market, saying, "A farmer in the country owes me a large bill, but I cannot get my pay unless I take it in this butter. I wish you to taste it and tell me whether it is good butter, and what it is worth." The market man tasted, and said, "That is good butter; I will take ten tons at fifty cents per pound." (Butter was then higher than it is now.)

The company are now turning out about a thousand pounds per day, and it is estimated that when the additional machinery is introduced, they will make ten thousand pounds daily. All they can make now is taken by a few leading hotels and restaurants. While I was in the office last Saturday a messenger came in from the Union Club—the wealthiest and most aristocratic club in the city—and presented the following order: "Please send one tub of butter to Union Club. The same time let the wagon take back four or five empty ones." The company have been very reticent about their work, fearing the prejudice against "artificial butter," preferring to get the butter into general use before allowing the public to know how it was made.

Another remarkable fact is, that although the butter is sold at the usual price of the ordinary butter made from cream, its actual cost is not more than twelve cents per pound! The butchers furnish the fat; so that the oil can be produced at about ten cents per pound. The process of manufacture has been patented in the United States and in most of the European countries. The capital stock of the company is five hundred thousand dollars, but how much of this is already taken I do not know. I was told that on Wednesday next, 21st instant, they make the first quarterly dividend of five per cent.

The works are carried on by steam power and in a building 45 by 100 feet and four stories high. It is situated in East Fifty-sixth street, between Second and Third avenues. One thing that gives me confidence in the enterprise is the fact that a number of wealthy and substantial citizens have taken hold of it. A number of "State rights," or rights to use the patent, have already been sold. A number of prominent men at Brighton have purchased Massachusetts, and California, and, I believe, Ohio has been sold—the former for $75,000 cash, and one cent per pound royalty. This certainly appears to be one of the biggest things out, though I have no money in it, having none to invest.

Yours, etc., G. Q. COLTON.

New York, Aug. 18, 1873.

Reception of General Sherman by the Sultan.

[Harper's Magazine.]

When the party had once entered the hall the order of precedence was announced to them by Servia Pasha through Mr. Brown, the dragoman. Only at that moment was it discovered that Lieutenant Grant was to go first, and, as the son of the President of the United States, be received as a prince royal. It was too late to do anything by way of explanation, and though "Fred" went forward very reluctantly, he accepted the situation, and, followed in order by General Sherman, Mr. Boker, and the rest of the party, approached the staircase, where, on the landing at which it divided, was standing Abdul Assiz, Sultan of Turkey, who, shaking Lieutenant Grant by the hand, turned, motioned him to continue up the stairway, and walked by his side, without paying any attention to the rest of the party. The Sultan conducted them into a very handsome room, which looked out upon a most beautiful scene, embracing the Bosphorus, Golden Horn, and the city of Stamboul. After entering the room the Sultan received General Sherman very courteously and seating himself, motioned the party to do likewise. After a short pause he began the conversation in Turkish, which was translated by Mr. Brown. Mr. Bokermade a short speech recounting the history of the visitors. The interview lasted about fifteen minutes, and at its termination the Sultan accompanied the party to the head of the staircase, where he shook hands with Lieutenant Grant and the general, simply inclining his head to the rest. Abdul Assiz is rather stout, about five feet eight inches in height, has large dark eyes, grayish hair and beard. He was dressed in loose snuff-colored pantaloons, black coat, cut like that of an Episcopal minister, and patent-leather shoes. Under his coat he wore a white flannel shirt, on his head the fez, and on the little finger of his right hand an immense ruby ring. He assured the general and party that they should have access to every object of interest.

Arsenic in Wall Papers.

The poisonous effects upon the air of rooms of arsenical pigments on wall-paper have been generally ascribed to the inhalation of the dust, which was found to contain arsenic and copper, but cases of arsenical poisoning of this kind have occurred, in which, on account of the moisture still present in the wall and the effectual fixing of the colors, this explanation will not answer. Upon these a recent series of experiments by Fleck throws some light. Air in glass receivers was subjected to the action of Schweinfurth green and arsenical acid by simply placing these substances beneath some bodies in a moist condition, and by applying them as a coating to others, with and without paper, potato and wheat starch being employed as pastes. After from eight days to three weeks, in different cases, the presence of (arseniureted) hydrogen in the air was unmistakably revealed by tests, and left no doubt that cases of chronic arsenical poisoning must be attributed not only to the mechanical mixture of arsenical compounds with the air of rooms in the form of dust, but also to the presence of this gas, resulting from the decomposition of free (arsenious) acid in Schweinfurth green. It was also found that the development of the gas is favored by moisture in the air and the presence of organic matter, especially that in the paste. Mould appeared on the paper in some cases, showing that arsenic is not a preventive of its formation, as often stated.

—At this season of the year old men should be particularly careful not to wound the feelings of itinerant pickers of berries who may chance to enter their enclosures. Old Mr. Breitenbach, of Chelsea, Minn., recently ordered a party of them out of his tall grass with much reviling, and they turned upon him and kicked him to death. His action was peculiarly impudent, in view of the fact that he is a husband and twelve times a father. Persons weighted with responsibility can't be too careful of themselves.

—"Came to his death while being hit on the head by a spider in the hands of his wife," was the verdict of a recent case in Illinois.

The New Hydrocarbon Gas.

[Harper's Magazine for September.]

Experiments have recently been made in England on the illuminating powers of a new hydrocarbon gas, produced by what is known as Mr. Ruck's process. The heating gas is almost pure hydrogen, obtained by passing steam through a horseshoe-shaped tube that goes through the red heat of a fierce coke furnace. In this state the gas is used for all purposes where heat without light is required—as, for instance, for gas stoves of whatever kind, or for boiling water and generating steam. When required to be used for lighting purposes, this heating gas is made to bubble through a reservoir containing rectified petroleum, of a specific gravity of about 0.68. It then passes at once into the pipes for circulation and consumption, and issues from these burners a very excellent gas, equal in illuminating power to sixteen and a half candles, with a consumption of five cubic feet an hour in an Argand burner. The experiments on the power of this gas for both heating and lighting purposes are said to have been thoroughly satisfactory, and the cost to be very much less than that of coal gas, even when the price of coals is much less than the very high rate which has prevailed in England during the last six months.

Dubious Gratitude.

[Harper's.]

There is nothing like perspicuity when one wishes to thank people. An instance of this we find in the Dallas (Texas) Herald of June, 21, 1873, in the form of "A Card," which reads as follows: "I wish to return my thanks to the many citizens of Dallas for the noble and effective efforts to save my house and all I had left to me from the late fire, from the burning flames on Friday night; for nothing but their timely appearance and manly energy saved my home from ashes; and I do ask and hope that all good ci izens will assist me to ferret out the heartless scoundrels.

—The latest plan for obviating seasickness is the following:—Construct a large well in the ship; around the centre of gravity is the best position for it. This well should have no bottom. The water in it will appear to have a rising and falling motion, but will in fact be at rest, while the walls of the well slide up or down. In this well float a small ship, and you are secure against seasickness. The proposer of the plan calls this "taking a small harbor to sea."

—Here's another illustration of the sublime truth that little boys who disobey their parents never fail to meet their own reward. A South Bend boy was told to milk the cows but didn't, and when his father moved around in his rear he dodged so quick that his father's leg was broken; and now that boy can do as he sees fit until his father gets well.

Business Notices.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. ta28

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

The Beginning of Sickness.

Never trifle with what are called small ailments. A disorder easy of control at first, if neglected for a few weeks, may become a mortal disease. Be especially careful not to let debility gain upon you, for it is the door through which maladies enter the system. If you feel languid, inert, and, to use a common expression, "as if there was no life left in you," resort at once to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The great vegetable tonic will supply the vitality you so urgently need. It is nerve food. By its tonic action the Stomach is so invigorated that digestion becomes regular, easy, perfect; while its mild, cathartic properties relieve the bowels from obstructions, and its alterative operation beneficially affect all the secretive organs. For the miseries of dyspepsia, and they include almost every unpleasant feeling that belongs to physical disease and mental wretchedness, this potent tonic is a certain and speedy balm.

Unlike other Cathartics, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets do not, after their operation, have a secondary tendency to render the bowels more costive. This is an important improvement, as all who have ever taken many pills or other cathartics for the purpose of overcoming constipation, know to their sorrow that the secondary effect of all such medicines has been to "render a bad matter worse." These Pellets produce such a secondary tonic effect upon the bowels as to bring about a permanent healthy action. Hence their great value, taken in small doses daily for any length of time, in habitual constipation and in Piles, attended and produced, as they generally are, by torpor of the liver and costiveness. Sold by Druggists at 25 cents a vial. 633

The New Plan of Hotel Rates, Introduced by the Grand Central Hotel, New York.

[New York Correspondence.]

A trip to New York not many years ago was considered one of great expense, and, by the old method of traveling, one of much inconvenience. Of late years, however, all this has changed. The "Palace Sleeping Car," through connections, and the modern palatial hotel have now succeeded. Rates of travel have long since cheapened, but a reduction in hotel charges has been of more recent date.

The most important innovation in hotel rates began with the opening of the Grand Central Hotel on Broadway, N. Y. The Grand Central was built under the direct supervision of the proprietor, Mr. H. I. Powers, who not only took the first step in this matter, but with rare foresight and business sagacity, sparing neither pains or expense, in the perfection of his plans, has now the satisfaction of hearing his magnificent house spoken of as not only the largest in America, but one of the finest in the world.

But even the ushering in of this grand enterprise would have been of less importance had the fixing of new rates been neglected. Just here was shown the ultima thule of all business enterprises, that is, to give the best and most desirable for the least money. Instead of charging more, as would have been reasonably expected, the prices were fixed at from one to two dollars less per day than the cheapest rooms at other first-class hotels in New York. An elegant room, luxurious meals at all hours of the day, the use of a grand parlor-chamber running continually from one floor to another and some of the privileges enjoyed by the guests of the Grand Central at the very moderate price of $3 to $4 per day, according to location of room. Anything better than this, in the way of hotel management could hardly be desired.

About Dogs.

The next dog census will probably show a greater decrease of the canine population of Portsmouth than the questionable return of the recent canvass of heads shew in relation to the number of human beings living here. The ground for this cheering prediction is based on the fact of a vigorous onslaught which is being made upon all dogs whose owners have not walked up to the City Marshal's office and paid over the prescribed fee of one dollar. Two unfortunate quadrupeds were assisted in the termination of their existence on Thursday by the City Marshal, and there are probably upwards of fifty more who will share a similar fate as the Marshal informs us that he intends to make his work thorough in this direction without regard to the age, sex, or color of the dog, or that of its protector. The city will thus not only replenish its exchequer some $50 or more, but will rid of a lot of useless curs who herd at street corners and in courts and alleys with no apparent aim than to confer with each other in their own peculiar manner, and in doing this make public nuisances of themselves.

We wish to be understood however, that we are not writing against that kind of a dog which is an honor and a source of pride to every well-regulated household. There are animals of the dog kind who are as indispensable as some of the human race; and worth far more to the world than many who pass for human beings and whom we might number by scores were we allowed to particularize. But the creature to which we allude is not entitled to the appellation of dog—but rather, cur. There is as much difference between the two species as there is between those persons who pay their bills and those who shirk the payment of the same. The one holds up his head and does not start and look guilty when spoken to, the other hangs his head at the sight of you and sneaks away as though he had stolen your dinner or your money.

But this killing of curs is not half so necessary as is a raid upon the innumerable crowd of squalling, yowling, biting, scratching, screeching tom-cats of the town. What neighborhood is free from their midnight harangues! (We ask this question in all seriousness, as any information that would lead us to hope for freedom from such nightly tortures would doubtless be soon followed by an advertisement of "House to Let," and our burly form might be seen hovering about the reported locality inquiring of the residents thereabouts if there was "room for one more?") With our present means of enlightenment, we are very sure there is not one in Portsmouth.

We did not intend to write about cats when we commenced this chapter about dogs, but cannot some influential lobbyist interview the Board of Aldermen and get them to give us an ordinance that will depopulate this city of its cats as well as of its curs? If there is any one who feels equal to the task of securing so desirable a reform, we hasten to assure him or her that all the money that is needed will be forthcoming. We do not mean to insinuate that money will be necessary to use with the aldermen, but you know it costs money to kill cats and to bury them properly.

Masonic.

In tearing away the Rogers house on Market Square on Monday, copies of the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE were found pasted on the lathing underneath the ceiling. Some of these papers are upwards of one hundred years old and in one of them we notice the following advertisement which will doubtless interest members of the Craft.

The Brethren of the Ancient and Hon. Society of Free and Accepted Masons, are hereby notified, that the Right Worshipful Samuel Sherburne, Esq, Master of the New Hampshire Lodge, intends to celebrate the Feast of St. John the Evangelist, on Monday the 27th December Instant, 1773, at the Lodge Room, at Brother Stavers's, the Earl of Halifax Tavern, in Portsmouth, where the Brethren are desired to attend.

Laconics.

We are sorry to learn of slight indications of the re-appearance of the potato rot in this vicinity.

Peaches were never so plenty as they are this season, it is said. If they will qualify the term by the word "rotten" we will agree with them.

The coroner's jury in the case of Winn, who was killed on the Concord railroad on Monday last, will probably render a verdict on Saturday.

The children about town are joyous over the speedy termination of their summer vacation, being anxious to get back to their studies and the pleasant restraint of school life.

The days are getting perceptibly shorter. Leavitt predicted, when he made his 1873 Almanac, that they would be one minute and forty seconds shorter on the 22d of this month. Doubtless he is right.

The proceeds of an entertainment recently given at the Appledore House by one of the talented "Sons of Portsmouth," amounting to $48.50, have been generously donated to the Portsmouth Howard Benevolent Society.

A slight alarm of fire occurred on Thursday afternoon about 3 o'clock, caused by a burning chimney in the house of John F. Leverton on Chestnut Street. The alarm was not general, as the flames were soon extinguished.

Fishermen inform us that fish of all kinds are very scarce this season on the customary fishing grounds. Mackerel are caught in greater abundance than formerly although they are not so numerous as to make very remunerative fishing.

The editor of the Keene Sentinel announces that "there will be divine service in St. James Church next Sunday at the usual hours," and then adds, "I was glad when they said unto me let us go into the house of the Lord." The weather must be much cooler in Keene than it is here or else that editor holds the office of tax-collector of the society.

The many comfortable and tasty cottages that have been erected on the Hedding Camp Ground, at Epping, during the last few years, have made it a quite noted and desirable resort for those who have a taste for rustic life. The old canvas tents first erected have given way to the more substantial buildings of wood, and the week of the meeting forms but little of the time spent there. Several hundred people are at present on the ground, and the number is daily increasing. The meeting will commence on the 25th.

The street commissioner is giving the upper portion of Court Street a little attention. That is a good thing; water stands there and forms quite a pond for six months of the year. Now, if he would do a still better thing let him take his men down to the corner of State and Pleasant streets opposite the Post Office, Oxford's store, and the Journal Office, and grade up the streets at their intersection, or fix it in some way so that wading will not need be resorted to, —as it has been for years—in order to reach the opposite side of the street.

The last case of small pox has been cured, the patient cleaned up, the hospital cleansed, and now, "next"—as the barbers say. On Wednesday the cheerful looking old pest house had its shutters swung back on their rusty hinges, and light and air was permitted to enter once more. Our city ought to build a good hospital there, or in some other appropriate locality. It isn't needed quite so much as was the repairing and beautifying of Jefferson Hall Market, to be sure, but then that is all done and paid for and there will be plenty of money in the Contingent fund another year.

—Men are said to be like bugles, the more brass they contain the more noise they make, and the farther you can hear them.

STOVES OF ALL KINDS,
TIN, JAPANNED & GLASS WARE,
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,
FARM & GARDEN TOOLS, &c.

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the

"NEW AMERICAN,"

improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a good stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand, and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am selling up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

PROPOSALS

FOR

Building Sloop-of-War at Kittery Navy Yard.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
Bureau of Construction and Repair,
July 30, 1873.

PROPOSALS will be received at this Bureau until 12 o'clock M., on the FIRST DAY OF SEPTEMBER NEXT, from builders or mechanics qualified to do the work, for the raising, framing and ribbonding, planking from keel to rail, ceiling, including keelsons, clamps, spirketting and battery, to rail, putting in decks, including all bitts, etc., putting on main and hammock rails, channels and chains, building store-rooms, magazines and lockers, joiner work inside and out, caulking and scraping, building quarter-galleries and setting head, and painting complete, of a Sloop-of-War of about 640 tons. The materials, tools and facilities for doing the work will be furnished by the government.

The Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair will be at Kittery Navy Yard on WEDNESDAY, the 20th of August next, and in connection with the Naval Constructor of that yard will meet persons desiring to make proposals for the work above mentioned, and will give all necessary explanations concerning the work to be done, and in regard to the character of the materials, tools and facilities to be furnished by the Government.

Plans and specifications may be seen and examined on applying to the commandant of the Kittery Navy Yard, after August 1st, 1873.

500 TONS of the Pure Article of LYKENS VALLEY. For Sale by ROBERTS & CO.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—A Detroit newspaper tells this pretty little story: A boy about ten years of age, leading a lively little dog, called at the central station and asked if that was the place where they shot dogs. Being answered in the affirmative, he said: "Well, please shoot my poor little Dan. He's an awful good dog, and he plays with the baby all day, but father's deaf, and mother's sick, and I can't raise money to get a license." then turning to the dog the boy lifted him up tenderly and stroked him saying: "Poor Dan! how Billy will cry when I tell him you are dead!" Great big tears rolled down the boy's face, and in a little time those around him made up a purse sufficient to save his dog, and a person went with him after the license. The boy's eyes fairly sparkled at his unexpected luck, and speaking to the dog he cried out: "You're saved, Dan! You're saved; let's go right home to Billy!"

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert
FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE
PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky., on

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873,

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 are disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		17,000

80 CASH GIFTS	500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 110 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,
For all the Purposes of a Family Physic,

CURING

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
NO. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Research made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SILMORN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in pieces provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also
LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON
And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Carload or at retail from our wharf.

WISTAR'S BALSAM
OF
WILD CHERRY!
THE GREAT REMEDY FOR
CONSUMPTION!
And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all
LUNG COMPLAINTS.
This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of
COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &C.
CONSUMPTION
CURED
By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.
Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry
Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.
CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,
And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.
BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

The Great South American Blood Purifier,
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dulness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach, costiveness and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties. It will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWER, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is recommended by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DIURETIC known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Daily Chronicle.

The Windmill on the Downs.

[London Society.]

Two speakers; an old man and a young girl; he, bowed down, passive, and enduring, his face, blank, hopeless and furrowed, more by grief than time. She, upright, defiant, full of energy and vehement action, her countenance alternately fired by indignant protest or softened by sympathetic sorrow. A strong likeness between them, notwithstanding the difference of age and complexion for he, the bleaching of his hair and bronzing of his skin apart, is fair and Saxon-like; she, a brunette, olive-tinted, dark-eyed, and with tresses only one shade short of black. They are moving, under a bright September sun, slowly along a strip of garden laying between a cottage and an old windmill, in the management of which, judging by the ample powdering of flour upon their garments, both are concerned.

She says, with the very faintest foreign ascent, "I declare to you, father, that if I saw Reuben Straytor with his head upon the block of the guillotine, as I saw that wretched man in Paris of whom I have so often told you, and I had power to stay the falling knife, I declare to you, I say, I would not use it. All the misery you and I are now suffering is his work."

"Naomi! Naomi!" interposes the old man, "ye'll not better matters by hard words; they ben't like a Christian; even if ye were sure that you could trace the great hurt that's been done to us by Reuben, it ben't fit to be so revengeful; and as no one knows the right of it, it's all the worse for you to talk so. You, too, as would go yards out of your way rather nor tread on a worm!"

"Nobody knows the rights of it, father?" she says, interrogatively, and suddenly standing still. "Has not Reuben been hanging about the mill for weeks and weeks, coming to it at all hours, never missing a chance, when one of the farm men could have done the affairs quite as well—coming in fact, upon the slightest excuse, and sometimes even upon none at all, and have you lived these many years in the world, and not seen enough of it to know that when a man does that sort of thing at a house where there is a pretty girl, there is but one conclusion to be drawn? And have you not asked, although we have never spoken of it to each other, seen enough, when Jeanette and he have met, to fully warrant such conclusion?"

"Well," says the old man, "if so be it's Reuben that's done us this hurt, the Lord help us, and have mercy upon him; but I cannot think it—I cannot think it; he was a proper good lad always, though spoilt at home."

"What! not think it?" replies Naomi, indignantly, "not think it now, when after these nine days of mysterious absence and total silence, and in spite of all our efforts, not a trace of her is to be found; when we remember that Reuben left the farm the day that Jeanette disappeared, and actually walked into Crewhaven with her, and that he, too, is not to be heard of—can it be possible that you do not see what has happened, and that you still say nobody knows the rights of it? To me it's as clear as yonder sky! Father! Father! I can hardly control myself when I think of it! The villainous coward! to trifle with, and deceive an unsuspecting child like her! a fine gentleman-like thing to be sure; and he always talking in his good manner, about ladies and gentlemen, and their ways and behavior, and trying to copy them in their voices and looks? Who is he, and who are we, that we are to be talking of ladies and gentlemen? We are millers here, with this old ram-shackle, tumble-down mill for our estate, and he, the son of a Flockshire farmer, whose grandfather, ma foi, was at the plow's tail sixty years ago? Pretty pedigrees for ladies and gentlemen, by example! I declare to you again, father, that if I saw that man dying of thirst at my feet, I would not put out my hand to give him a glass of water; if I saw him walking blindfold toward the edge of Shingle-head Cliff, I would not put out my arm to stop him! Mon Dieu, no," she adds, with much gesticulation, as she again moves forward.

The old man puts his arm through her's, endeavoring gently to restrain and quiet her, as he says, "Eh! but it's a mercy you were not born a man, Naomi, for ye'd ha' given the blow first, and the word afterward; and, as to my having lived all these years in the world, I'd have said, if they've learned me anything, that Reuben comed here of late to look after my eldest daughter, 'sterd of my youngest! I never see'd more betwixt him and dear Jeanette than betwixt him and you! I been going to say that you mayn't be right, but Reuben Straytor has many friends, and is off here and there and anywhere betimes, as he likes, neither by your leave, nor with your leave, and they know no more of him at home than if he was at the poles. You'd be as just, if you laid poor Jeanette's going from us at the door of any of those idle, gaping gentle-folk visitors as come up some times from Crewhaven to look at th' old mill! Any way, it's a'most broke my heart, and if I don't get tidings of her afore Michaelmas, I shall never see the beginning of another year," and the old man buries his face in his hands.

The mill is reached now, and the girl's angry mood giving place to the tenderer one, she affectionately caresses her father as he enters its quaint old basement, and the two pass out of an autumnal sunlight, which, for a brief while, has seemed, by its cheerfulness, to mock their misery.

The mill itself? Well! it was, as Naomi Gower had said, a ramshackle old building; not such another to be found for miles amid the many abounding upon the crests and rides of the rolling Flockshire down. A mill celebrated among artists, and specified by them under the name of one of their craft, who had made good stock-in-trade of it upon his canvasses. A wooden mill, black-brown and richly weather-stained with grey, and green and yellow, with soft moss and crisp golden lichens peeping out from the little rifts and splits under the shelter of the broad eves of the roof, and from beneath the floor of its square bluff body, where, poised upon its circular base, it could be turned to face the prevailing wind. The wind, too, had had its share in adapting it for the artist's use, for, from long blowing against its sturdy front, and broad, sweeping, milk-white sails, it had gradually canted it back many degrees out of the perpendicular. Strangers — and there were many who came up to look at it—would think it could not much longer withstand those strong breezes forever lunging at it upon its exposed position, and the creaking and moaning it made, if at work, would lead them to expect its immediate toppling over. Great would be their surprise to hear, if they chanced to speak with its old master, Amos Gower, that it had been like that ever since he was a boy, and that he had heard his father say that he too had never remembered it otherwise. It stood but a little back upon the turf from the white, winding chalk road leading up to it; and as the huge sails, whirling and roaring through the air, swept round and round, their ends, in each succeeding descent, looking as if they must strike the earth, and only swooping clear of it by some foot and a half, one hesitated to pass it, so wild, inexorable, and menacing did it look. It had been said more than once that a barrier should be set up to prevent the unwary from going too near, as a blow from one of those revolving beams would surely be fatal. But there never had been any accident. Who ever would go too near? None but the deaf, or blind, or mad.

And so it was still open to the road.

Hard by stood the miller's dwelling, partaking of many of the tones and colors of the mill; a thought below the crest of the height, it yet commanded fully the glorious view that made Wavingdean Down a place of note in the neighborhood. It is even yet a pretty spot; thirty years ago, when old Amos Gower owned the mill, it was prettier still, for then railroads were only just beginning to scar the green slopes of the Flockshire downs, and to tunnel through their chalky depths. Many a village among the hills, since disfigured by modern brick and stucco; many a cluster of houses on the coast, since grown into a prosperous and fashionable watering-place, then retained as marked a rusticity as if they had been a couple of hundred, instead of only fifty miles from London.

Conspicuous upon the seaboard was Wavingdean Down, with its solitary old windmill and miller's cottage, and though it attracted occasional visitors from the neighboring little port and primitive health-resort of Crewhaven, the enjoyment of the view was left in those days pretty much to Amos Gower and his family.

Amos Gower himself? Well! he had inherited the property of the mill from several generations; had married the daughter of a well-to-do French skipper plying between a Normandy port and Crewhaven; had received a trifling "dot" with her, enough to make a pretty addition to his simple earnings. When, after but a few years of wedded life, he found himself left a widower, with two little girls, one an infant, and the other between four and five years old, he thought of little beyond their welfare. Untaught himself, he desired to give his children a good education, the advantage of which he had seen in his wife; so the eldest had been sent to Paris, not to a fashionable school, but some homely people, distant connections of her mother. She had returned to the quiet old life upon the Downs about a year, when the sorrow of which we have had a hint befell the Gower household. Full of her foreign experience, she had come like a being from another world upon the prosaic existence of her father and sister. The latter had emerged into budding womanhood since Naomi had been away, and listened eagerly to all the stories and events her sister had to relate. Jeanette was wild with the desire to taste for herself these pleasures and wonders, and when her request that she too might be sent for a while to Paris was refused by the kind old man, on account of a change in the family where Naomi had lived, she rebelled. The fiery spirit of the French blood she inherited felt itself aggrieved, and altogether, for the last few months, things had not been as happy as they might have been at the old windmill upon the Downs.

Then, as to this Reuben Straytor? Well, the miller's daughter has given some account of his pedigree. His father's farm stood in the little hamlet of Wavingdean, which lay in the valley at the foot of the Down, therefore, it is not wonderful that he and the little Gower girls should have been playmates from their earliest days. As they grew up, the separations which school-times brought, about gradually increased, and when Naomi, at the age of fourteen, went abroad for four years, Reuben, who was a great deal older, was finishing his education at a certain Flockshire college, and came home soon after, as his father designed, to drop into the farming life. But this did not suit the taste of the young fellow, who had acquired notions of a loftier kind. With the indulgence generally accorded to an only son, it was settled that he should read for the law, and he went to London for the purpose. He liked law, however, no better than farming, and it was whispered that he had filled his time, made doubtful acquaintances, and fallen into habits of luxury, if not dissipation. His father certainly had to pay a considerable amount of debt, and Reuben once more came back for a time to the old home, to find his little playmates of yore grown into blooming girls, the elder on the verge of womanhood, and the younger, though still almost a child in years, looking as much a woman as her sister.

Then ensued the dalliance referred to, and, according to her father's account, so misunderstood by Naomi. She, truth to say, had not been insensible to the attractions which Reuben possessed. His tall, gentlemanly figure, handsome face, and pleasant manner contrasted strongly with the usual run of farmers' sons. But he had made no sign which could be interpreted as reciprocal of her feelings. He really was too honorable to contemplate matrimony until a course in life had been permanently adopted. He certainly had been constantly up at the mill; and what more natural? For having nothing to do at home, he would occasionally undertake small affairs of business for his father with his neighbors, and the miller and the farmer necessarily had constant dealings together. Besides, were not Naomi and Jeanette his oldest friends? And the former had much to say that was worth listening to about her foreign travels. Familiarity was to be expected, and he went, and came, as it seemed, under the circumstances, in a perfectly natural and likely manner.

Suddenly Jeanette disappears. She is in the habit of tripping down into Crewhaven upon the slightest pretext, and has become fender of so doing of late. She differs from her sister in disposition; is vain, frivolous, likes display in dress; a coquette withal, with flashing eyes, which have no intuitive knack of making their meaning plain. Very French in nature, chafing more or less at the home life, and much more since Naomi's return, yet a most lovable little creature, and by the same token very dear to father and sister. So that, on an unusually stormy September evening, by the time she should have been returning by the Crewhaven road, and was not so seen, an anxiety, rapidly growing into dread, seized upon the hearts of the two watchers at the mill—watchers, for Naomi shared in her father's simple toil. The work came easily, and was not new, her tastes ever rather inclining to simple household duties befitting her station than to action in a wider sphere.

She loved the old mill and all connected with it, and understood its action from a child, knew how to manage it, had fed it at a pinch when the tinkling of the bell high up upon the shooting floor told that the supply of grain was running short. Unlike her sister, she loved the country, too. Her native downs had more lasting charm for her than anything, the gayest capital in the world had offered. Thus, late on the September evening aforesaid, Naomi is high up in the mill, and, as darkness gradually begins to shut the storm-swept landscape from the sight, she looks out from the window, expecting, as usual, to descry Jeanette's trim little figure coming along the Crewhaven road, which, from that point of vantage, lies before her like a silver edging to the green mantle of the downs where they tread toward the sea. But it is now deserted—not a sign of life upon it. Naomi pauses still, for where it passes some farm building and a small plantation it cannot be seen; and so she thinks her sister is just thereabouts, perhaps. No; there has been plenty of time, had she so been, for her to have now emerged into sight at the foot of the down, and where the ascent begins. Again she scans the white line from end to end, and while she does so it melts into the drift of rain-cloud sweeping up from the sea, and the autumnal twilight comes to an end.

Then, to her father straight. "What has become of Jeanette? Foolish child to stay so late!" Much consultation. Some discussion as to the prudence of these constant visits to the port. Time goes on; it is nine o'clock; it has been dark more than an hour, and still the truant does not come home. Stokes, the miller's man, is dispatched with a lantern to Wavingdean Farm, and thence, should he get no tidings there, to the town, in all a round of some four miles; thus it may be twelve o'clock before he can be back, wind, weather, and inquiries duly considered. At last he comes, and alone; not a sign, not a word of Jeanette. She was seen in the town, near the just-opened railway station; but that was quite early in the day. Mr. Reuben, they told him at the farm, had walked with her in the morning into Crewhaven; but he had not come home, and had said it was probable he should take the train to London.

Oh! the misery, the agony of that night, and of the nine days and nights of fruitless search and hopeless inquiry which followed! Followed in drear succession, until that morning toward the end of the month, when, by her fierce words, we have seen what Naomi's solution of the mystery was.

By noon on that same day, old Amos Gower, having returned to his cottage, was seated by his fireside. His despondency had grown heavier daily, and this morning he had quite broken down, and left the mill in Naomi's sole charge, for Stokes was away on some business touching the grain, and hence it came to pass that she was quite alone in the old mill as she stood looking out from the little old window of the grinding floor.

A brighter sun never shone upon an autumn noon; the crests and ridges of the hills rose up clear and sharp; the tearing fury of the equinoctial gales of the last few days had subsided into a strong southerly breeze, which was sending the old mill sails spinning round merrily. Naomi was looking, we have said, from the window; but it was not at the scene. She was looking into the far distance of her conjectures, into the remote realm of the possible and the probable, speculating, with a dreamy, miserable foreboding, upon the fate of the dear missing sister. Mechanically only did she turn her eyes in the direction of that part of the road which, emerging from the farm buildings and plantations, began to wind round the foot of the steep hill. Mechanically only was it at first that she looked to see who the horseman was that had just appeared ascending the white lane. Presently, however, there flashed from those eyes a fire by no means mechanical. Her whole countenance, indeed, lighted up as it might have done had she been facing the glow of a red sunset instead of the cool gray of midday. Her lips quivered for an instant and then became rigid, while her nostrils dilated, and her dark brow was sternly knit. She passed one of her large, but comely hands once or twice across her forehead, and then, driving her fingers into her thick, wavy, dark hair, clutched it fiercely. For a moment or two more she still stood intently observing the rider, as he urged his horse at the fullest pace the steep ascent would allow. When he was about half way she quickly drew back, as if to avoid being seen, but continued watching him through the crack by the hinges of the little wooden shutter of the window. As this opened upon one side of the mill, Naomi, where she stood, would have lost sight of the horseman as he came close up and passed round to the door; but he did not pass round, for the horse, a rough, vicious-looking brute, covered with sweat and foam, shied, and refused to go by the front of the mill, where the sails, in full swing, were whirring round with their rushing, chopping, monotonous noise, and, as usual, when the wind obliged them to be set to the south, within a few yards of the narrow, unprotected road.

An obstinate contest between rider and animal ensued; whip and heels were freely used. The creature plunged and reared violently, swerving from side to side, and doing all it could for mastery. But at last the rider got the best of the struggle, and, with a tremendous lunge, the horse dashed forward out of Naomi's sight. The agitated and angry thoughts which evidently possessed her while she was watching the approach of the rider had been for an instant half diverted by the tussle between him and his animal; but as they vanished from her sight, her agitation seemed to be returning, when again it was arrested; this time by a strange and awful cry, which rose high above the clatter and din of the heavy machinery of the mill; a cry, part shriek, part wail, part moan—hardly a human cry, but one which struck a chill to Naomi's heart. With the agility of an antelope she flew down the narrow ladder to the dressing floor, and out into the open air by the stair from the doorway at the back of the mill. She appeared to divine something of what had happened, for, with a face now nearly as white as the dust of the meal with which she was besprinkled, she hurried round on to the road. The sight which awaited her might have made stronger nerves quiver. Horse and man lay apparently dashed to death by a blow, or many blows, from the inexorably revolving mill sails. At the first glance both, indeed, seemed to be within their fell swoop; but when Naomi had sufficiently collected herself, she saw that the horse had been thrown quite clear of the sails by that stroke from them which had smashed in the whole side of his head, and doubtless killed him in an instant.

It was hardly possible to believe, however, that the man could be beyond the death-dealing circuit of the sails. Each one as it swept down to within that foot and a half from the ground, looked as if it was striking him at every turn, for he lay stretched face downwards, with his head exactly upon the spot where the beam passed the closest to the grass; but he was motionless, and as long as he so remained was as safe as if he had had his head upon his own pillow. But should he move or raise it an inch or two, he would inevitably share the fate of the horse. Yet could he raise it? Was it likely? This was what Naomi asked herself, as, with a rush of conflicting emotions, she stood as near as she dared, bending forward toward him.

And if he could, should she let him? He was evidently not dead, only stunned—his breathing and the twitching of one of his hands told her that—and, as far as she was able to see, he was otherwise uninjured. He had fallen, probably, as if by a miracle, clear of the sails, and had received no blow save from coming in contact with the ground. If this were so, then in another minute he might recover and would move. He would raise his head, and in yet another minute he might have his brains dashed out before her eyes. And should she stir a hand to avert this fate? Should she save this man who had so deeply, so cruelly wronged her, and brought shame and sorrow upon the gray hairs of her beloved father? The very words she had used but an hour before, in the depth of her jealous and revengeful feelings, rushed back into her mind—"If I saw Reuben Straytor with his head upon the block of the guillotine, and I had power to stay the falling knife, I would not use it!" And here he lay before her in almost an equivalent situation.

Her fierce nature wavered, but, happily not for long. A motion of the prostrate man's arm recalled her to her better self. He turned his body slightly, and showed his face. She saw his eyes open, and saw them wince as the deadly sail passed close above them.

Why had she delayed so long? Why had she not rushed back and stopped the mill? She dared not go now; it was too late, he would recover while she was gone! In his stupefied state she could not make him understand the imperative necessity of lying still. She feared even to speak, lest he might look up at her!

Without a moment's hesitation she threw herself upon the ground, and creeping to within an arm's length, and in fearful proximity to the mill sails, seized him by the collar, and with a tremendous effort, dragged him into safety just as the bewildered man raised his head, and passed a hand across his dazed eyes.

By the miller's fireside, an hour later, Reuben Straytor is seated pale, and still somewhat confused, but unhurt. It seems that the stupor caused by his fall has saved his life; for although his unmanageable horse had blindly dashed within range of the mill sails, the animal had thrown him into perilous safety just as its death shriek rent the air.

Naomi and her father, soothing him and administering restoratives, are bending over the young man; the girl's face beaming with its tenderest expression, for she had been assured of Jeanette's safety, and knows that her suspicions were all groundless.

When, after a while, Reuben is able to tell his story in detail, this is what he relates:

"Throughout the summer and autumn a day hardly passed when there was not to be seen the figure of a certain man lurking under the shadow of the corpse by our barns at the foot of the down. He was staying at Crewhaven, probably to recruit his health, one of the many idlers there, but one whom I chanced to know by sight—chanced to know as a thoroughly dissipated scoundrel; my London experience had taught me that. You both here had never observed him, I dare say, but I had and my suspicions were aroused; Jeanette was hardly likely to have escaped his evil eye. Once I saw him talking to her near the town, and I hesitated to say anything about it for the sake of your peace of mind, hoping that with his absence all would be well again, and here was my only error.

Nine days ago I started, bag in hand, for Crewhaven, meaning to run up to London to see about a matter that promised an opening for me. Just as I was leaving the farm, Jeanette came up and we walked on together. In two minutes I could tell that I was in the way. She tried a hundred little devices to get rid of me, and when we came to the turning to the station, I bade her good-bye. I had taken my seat in the train when I saw her again; she was on the platform with this man, and evidently in great trepidation. There was rather a crowd about, but I did not lose sight of her, and to my great surprise, instead of their both getting into a carriage, she only entered, he handing her a small bag as she did so. He leant in at the carriage window for a moment, and directly afterwards the train was in motion, and he left standing on the platform.

I was amazed; but my course was clear; I would not lose sight of her. At the first station we stopped at, I thought I would get into the same carriage, then I decided it would be better not. I would take care, however, that she did not leave the train without my knowing it. At Redhill Junction there was a crowd again; still I could have sworn that the door of the carriage in which Jeanette was had not been opened. Then the train went through to London without stopping. It was four o'clock. I went straight to the carriage, fully determined what to do. To my dismay, she was not in it; yet I was so quick that the other passengers had not even begun to leave it. Then I looked in some others—looked everywhere; not a sign of her. I flew to the guard, described her. "Yes sir, the young lady got out at Redhill." Impossible, I thought; yet so it was he assured me. A train on the other platform was about to start for Ashford, and would pass Redhill, of course. Without hesitation, I got into it, and by six o'clock was back again there. All my inquiries for a time seemed hopeless. Then a station clerk thought a young woman answering my description had taken a ticket some hours before to Ashford, the furthest point toward Dover to which at present the railway is open. I could only follow her that night by the mail at eleven o'clock.

How I thought of you both, who shall say? How I pictured your agony and despair! But there was no way of letting you know what I knew; indeed, what had I to say? I could not even tell for certain that I was on her track, since that I had now so unhappily missed her. But I determined to go on, and not to leave a stone unturned until I had discovered the foolish, thoughtless child.

Arrived at Ashford, I found there were coaches waiting to take on passengers to Dover. In the bustle and darkness, I could get no answers to my questions even. At first I could not decide whether to go on at once, or stay till the morning. Suppose she had not gone to Dover, and was even then waiting here for her tempter to join her; for that was to happen, sooner or later, I felt a certain foreboding. No! I would wait at least for the next train, and meanwhile knock up the landlord of every inn in the place. I got no hint of her until a return coach from Dover, the following morning, came in to meet another London train. The guard of this remembered such a young person going on with him the previous afternoon; and thus I saw how it was that valuable time had been lost.

Then I wanted wings; I fretted and raged through the many hours that intervened before reaching Dover. Again it was night, again I was at fault. I spent many miserable hours wandering down to the steam-boat quay, going on board the mail-boat, searching and inquiring everywhere with no result. The whole of the next day and the next, were passed in this fruitless manner. Toward the evening of this, which was the fourth day, being in the coffee-room of one of the hotels where the coaches pull up, and being on the point of writing to you both, who should I see getting down from a stage coach that had just arrived from Ashford but the man to whom all this mischief was due. Hope returned. I felt sure Janette was waiting for him, and come what may, I said, she shall be found.

It was about seven o'clock; the tide was out, and passengers for the French packet would have to go off in small boats to where she lay outside the harbor, the custom under such circumstances. Save for a few minutes, I never lost sight of the man again, but I did not let him see me, for I wanted him to guide me to her. He took a boat from the stairs, and I, another. He went up the side of the packet but a few moments before I followed him. Then, however, in the gaining darkness and the crowd I lost him for a while, but I knew he was on board, and had a conviction that she was also; so hope never died. When I next discovered him, he was down in the cabin, and Janette, sobbing and in tears, standing beside him.

Unluckily, by that time the steamer had got under way, had cast off all boats from the shore, and there was no return. We must all three cross to Calais. I cared little for this, however; my satisfaction was too great. Then I disclosed myself, and I will not weary you with details of what ensued—of how he blustered and swaggered at first, and then cringed like a coward when I threatened him with the law; how I reminded him that abduction was a serious crime; and that aid would instantly be granted me from our Consul at Calais, if he did not immediately resign Jeanette into my hands; of Jeanette's misery, and her gratitude at the rescue, for she had had time to repent of her rash act.

She will tell you, in good time, what she has suffered—of the sorrow and agony of those two or three days of lonely journeying and waiting, which this selfish rascal did not hesitate to subject her to, forsooth, because he imagined that by remaining a couple of days at Crewhaven, after her disappearance, he would divert all suspicion from himself.

I brought her back from Calais by the next boat that started, but that was not for more than eight-and-forty hours; for these terrible gales allow nothing to leave the port for that time. You will understand now why I at first did not, and then could not, write; why you have been obliged to suffer the agony and suspense of these last nine days. We travelled with all speed when we once started, and reached Wavingdean Farm but an hour or so ago. Jeanette is there now, safe with my mother. She dared hardly meet you till I had a little prepared the way. I seized the first horse I came upon in the stable, and galloping as fast—"

The narrative is here arrested by a low tap at the door; Amos Gower goes to open it, Reuben turns, and sees Jeanette folded in the arms of her father and sister.

Be sure, the joy that then ensued shut off, at once and forever, all but the faintest reference to the past.

Long before Amos Gower was carried to his last resting-place, however, Reuben Straytor had very effectually persuaded Naomi that her mother was right in imagining that it was his elder and not his younger daughter who had been the attraction at the old mill. With Naomi Gower for his wife, Reuben Straytor soon dropped contentedly into farming life; and Jeanette, her roaming spirit not quite tamed, married an enterprising young trader just as he was on the point of emigrating to Canada; where, in one of the French settlements, she has become a dame of considerable importance, and where her harmless little vanities and coquetries have had fairer scope than they could have found amid the simple folk who peopled the Flockshire downs.

—A pious old lady at New Bedford boasted in prayer meeting that she wasn't afraid of the devil. A young chap present, with a view of testing her faith and courage, followed her home, and in a lonely, secluded spot, crept up behind her and whispered "I am the devil." But the good woman never heeded him, and again and again he introduced himself in the same style. Finally, finding the thing was getting monotonous, she turned to him with the ejaculation, "Well, nobody denies it." That young man don't follow the frightening business any more.

State News.

Benjamin P. Blake of Hampton, 67 years of age, committed suicide by hanging himself in the cellar of his house, on Sunday last. He was a man in good circumstances, surrounded with all the comforts of life, and the cause of the strange act is a mystery, though it is said that at times he was partially insane.

At Great Falls, the police made a raid on local liquor dealers, Thursday, and made seizures from the following parties: True W. Woodman, Augustus A. Foss, Robert H. Hussey and Cyrus K. Towle. The three former pleaded guilty and were fined $50 and costs. The latter appealed and was ordered to find sureties in the sum of $500 to apear before the supreme court in September next. The affair caused quite an excitement, as it is the first seizure under the existing law.

At the law session of the Supreme Judicial Court held in Concord, last week, Judge Ladd delivered the unanimous opinion of the Bench refusing the prayer of Hon. S. N. Bell, late democratic candidate for Congress in the 2d district, who petitioned the court for a writ of mandamus requiring the town clerk of Hopkinton to amend his record by including the count of votes at the late election as well as the declaration. The court took the ground that the duty of the clerk does not go beyond the simple recording of the declaration of the officers who make the count.

Business Notices.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. 1423

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers need rest.

The Beginning of Sickness.

Never trifle with what are called small ailments. A disorder easy of control at first, if neglected for a few weeks, may become a mortal disease. Be especially careful not to let debility gain upon you, for it is the door through which maladies enter the system. If you feel languid, inert, and, to use a common expression, "as if there was no life left in you," no sort of an active operation would tell all the secretive organs. For the miseries of dyspepsia, and they include almost every unpleasant feeling that belongs to physical disease and mental wretchedness, this potent tonic is a certain and speedy balm.

Unlike other Cathartics, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets do not, after their operation, have a secondary tendency to render the bowels more costive. This is an important improvement, as all who have ever taken many pills or other cathartics for the purpose of overcoming constipation, know to their sorrow that the secondary effect of all such medicines has been to "render a bad matter worse." These Pellets produce such a secondary tonic effect upon the bowels as to bring about a permanent healthy action. Hence their great value, taken in small doses daily for any length of time, in habitual constipation and in Piles, attended and produced, as they generally are, by torpor of the liver and costiveness. Sold by Druggists at 25 cents a vial. 693

Local Matters.

Laconics.

On Thursday evening, the 21st, "Riverside Lodge," I. O. O. F., was organized at the Foreside in Kittery by the Grand Lodge of Maine, with fifteen charter members, thirty new ones being initiated before the lodge closed. The following named brethren were elected to office, and duly installed: Charles Chickering, M. G.; George Manent, V. G.; Frank Berry, Sec.; Wm. W. Locke, Treas. The Order has long been numerously represented in Kittery, but this is the first lodge organized at the Foreside, and we believe the only one now in the town. A portion of Mr. John Trefethen's new building has been handsomely fitted up for a lodge room.

Mr. David Urch, formerly of this city, but who has for several years been engaged in the manufacture of cane furniture in Chicago, recently returned here, bringing a car-load of fine horses from Illinois for sale, the freight on which amounted to about $50 each. Among the lot was a very large and promising colt, a bay gelding not quite three years old, which weighed when he commenced the long journey, 1346 lbs. He is handsome and gentle, stands more than sixteen hands high, but is so well proportioned that he does not look so large as he is. He has never been shod, nor used much of any, but with proper handling will make a splendid animal for somebody. He may be seen at Mr. Locke's stone stable.

A party of seventy-seven ladies, gentlemen and children had a day's experience of camp life at Gerrish's island on Thursday, leaving Portsmouth for Newcastle early in the morning in Mr. Wm. Plaisted's picnic teams, and taking boats at Fort Constitution. The best chowder we ever tasted was prepared by Messrs. Eugene Sanborn and Chas. A. C. Gray. Ample opportunity was afforded for bathing, fishing and sailing, the party remaining on the island till dark, when they embarked on sail-boats and came up to the South End with the flood tide, arriving at ten o'clock. One of the pleasant features of the day was a poem on "Change," by Mr. Samuel Dodge. A foot-ball match settled the question as to whether there is an air-current from east to west, each inning proving that the contrary obtains.

When Mr. Edwin B. Laighton opened his store door, on Congress street, Friday morning, a boy ran out. Mr. Laighton started after him, but was obliged to return without catching him. He then notified the police, who afterward arrested two boys hailing from Chicago, who gave their names as Edward Cainland, aged 14, and Wm. Brew, aged 16 years. One helped the other into Mr. Laighton's store by the window over the door, the other remaining outside, but Ned was up town too early for them to steal anything. The boys stated that they were hungry and had broken into the store of Mr. Henry M. Clark, Plummer's bakery and another store, from which they were driven by a dog. They also confess to having broken into two stores in Buffalo and one in New York. The young rascals were brought before Judge Page and were sentenced to the county house of correction for six months for stealing cigars. They are said to be respectably connected.

Eli Perkins on Hackmen.

[To the Editor of the Daily Graphic.]

The old carriagemen, who crowd the street in front of Congress Hall, Saratoga, have an idea that they possess a hereditary right to the hackstand. It's always $5 in the morning and $6 in the afternoon for a span of horses over to the Lake. Let a new man from the country come in once and try to let his carriage, and see how quick Garrison and Adams will make it hot for him. It has been tried. Mr. Burgess, from Hoosac Falls, tried it.

The other day a shrewd young fellow—this same Mr. Burgess, who owns a nice carriage and an eight thousand dollar farm to back it up—thought he'd come in between haying and corn-husking and make a few dollars off the rich Saratogians. He is a gritty fellow, and having a few thousand dollars to back him, he is a hard case to manage. It required study and diplomacy. At last it was made up that whenever this new "carpet-bag" hackman was seen talking with a customer, the old hackmen, "to the manor born," were to rush up and beat down the price. They knew Burgess was headstrong and "set in his way," and would be the last man who would submit to being "beaten down." These are the colloquies that went on for several days:

"I'll give you a nice ride around the lake, sir, for six dollars, sir," says Mr. Burgess.

"Here! I've got a nice carriage for four dollars, sir," chimes in Coggswell, a to-the-manor-born fellow, as he rushes up, whip in hand.

"Then I'll take you for three dollars," solemnly continues Mr. Burgess.

"But I'm going to send to the lake on an errand, any way, sir, and I'll take you for two dollars. Get right in," interrupts the practical joker, Coggswell, opening the door of the hack, and spreading his arms out to push the victim in.

"Then, sir, I'll take you for a dollar. I won't be run out by these fellows," continues Mr. Burgess, indignantly.

"Very well, you can go with him," says Coggswell, very indignantly, as Mr. Burgess closes the hack door and starts off on his dollar trip.

As Coggswell returns to the crowd of old hackmen, whistling, they all ask—

"Well, Cogg, did you fix 'im? How much?"

"Wall, I should say I did. Takes 'im for a dollar clear around the lake, and I'm darned sorry I didn't make him take him for nothing. To-morrow I'll make him pay a man to ride with 'im."

The result was that Mr. Burgess's carriage grew seedier and seedier, and his pocketbook thinner and thinner, till yesterday, when he returned sorrowfully back to his Hoosac farm—a mere skeleton of his former self.

And, now, there are some people in Saratoga who still talk of our boasted American civilization!

Lockjaw from Sucking Claret.

[St. Louis Democrat.]

A singular case of lockjaw came under the notice of several reliable physicians a few days ago. A gentleman well known in business circles, and rather a heavy weight, suffered intensely from the heat. After experimenting with a number of cooling beverages, he settled on claret punches as the best "steady drink" for hot weather, and absorbed several of them daily through a straw. Unfortunately, he held the straw in the same position as he did a cigar, in the corner of his mouth, with the end resting against the cheek. At the expiration of a few days the intensely cold liquid had a singular effect, and formed an abscess in his cheek. Not knowing at first what it was, he continued to dispose of his regular number of punches, and was soon taken with the lockjaw. Dr. Hodgdon and one or two other physicians attended him, and with difficulty saved his life. They were for some time at a loss to account for the singular affliction, but on hearing his story all agreed that the claret punches were responsible for the evil. The sufferer, although not entirely recovered, is out of danger. He will carefully avoid in the future all crooked and dangerous drinks, which he now considers a delusion and a snare, and will either take his straight or with sugar.

—"James Jenkins," said a schoolmaster to his pupil, "what is an average?" "A thing, sir," answered the scholar promptly, "that hens' lay eggs on." "Why do you say that, you silly boy?" replied the pedagogue. "Because, sir," said the youth, "I heard a gentleman say, the other day, that a hen would lay, on an average, a hundred and twenty eggs a year.

—There is a lady at Saratoga Springs who is extremely fond of pets. She has nine singing birds, one parrot, one tame dove, one peacock, six dogs, nine cats, (some of which are kittens,) two squirrels, two gold fish, three turtles and a young alligator. Among the dogs is a black and tan, weighing only two and a half pounds, for which she paid $75.

WHITEFIELD'S

NEW VIEW OF PORTSMOUTH.

THESE views have been taken within the last six weeks, are nicely finished in India ink, and show Portsmouth as she is in 1873. The view is taken from the North Pond and the other from the South. Every son of Portsmouth should carry back with him copies of these beautiful pictures, which can be obtained at Foster's bookstore and Burleigh's picture store on Congress, and at Montgomery's, 5c Market Street.

Only a limited number have been issued.

They are of two different sizes.

Should the large copies be selected, they will be sent, carefully packed, to any part of the United States free of expense.

STOVES, TIN WARE, IRON AND STEEL.

URIAH BLAISDELL

Informs his friends and the public that he has removed to

No. 55 Market Street,

(late the well-known Iron Store of Mr. John P. Lyman,) a few doors north of his old stand, and next beyond the Union Store, where he offers his usual stock of

STOVES OF ALL KINDS,
TIN, JAPANNED & GLASS WARE,
HOUSE FURNISHING GOODS,
FARM & GARDEN TOOLS, &c.

At the head of his large variety of Cooking Stoves, stands the

"NEW AMERICAN,"

Improved for 1873, the very best cooking stove in the market, as the large number sold in the three years since it was introduced, and the universal satisfaction which it gives, sufficiently attest. All in want of a good stove will do well to examine the "NEW AMERICAN" before purchasing any other.

I have now the best store in the city for my business, commodious and neat, and my old customers are requested to continue their calls at the new stand and the patronage of the public is solicited.

IRON AND STEEL.

Having purchased the stock of Mr. Lyman, which I am selling up, the late customers of Mr. L., and all others in want of

Iron, Steel, Bolts, Nuts, Axles and Boxes,
Horse-Shoe Forms, Horse-Shoe Nails, &c., &c.,

Will find it for their interest to give me a call.

N. B.—Seward's PATENT AXLE CLIPS AND TOKES, the latest and best articles in this line, in good supply.

PLEASE PAY UP!

The large expense I have incurred in the above change places me much in need of money; therefore all indebted to me will greatly oblige by promptly settling, and especially those owing long-standing accounts.

PROPOSALS

FOR

Building Sloop-of-War at Kittery Navy Yard.

NAVY DEPARTMENT,
Bureau of Construction and Repair,
July 30, 1873.

PROPOSALS will be received at this Bureau until 12 o'clock, M., on the FIRST DAY OF SEPTEMBER NEXT, from builders or mechanics qualified to do the work, for the raising, framing and ribbonding, planking from keel to rail, ceiling, including keelsons, clamps, spirketting and battery, to rail, putting in decks, including all bitts, etc., putting on main and hammock rails, channels and chains, building store-rooms, magazines and lockers, joiner work inside and out, caulking and scraping, building quarter-galleries and sitting head, and painting complete, of a Sloop-of-War of about 840 tons. The materials, tools and facilities for doing the work will be furnished by the government.

The Chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair will be at Kittery Navy Yard on WEDNESDAY, the 20th of August next, and in connection with the Naval Constructor of that yard will meet persons desiring to make proposals for the work above mentioned, and will give all necessary explanations concerning the work to be done, and in regard to the character of the materials, tools and facilities to be furnished by the Government.

Plans and specifications may be seen and examined on applying to the commandant of the Kittery Navy Yard, after August 1st, 1873.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—At Auburn, New York, a jury of twelve good and true men, after long and arduous consideration of the subject, have formally decided that a young lady's toes are worth $15 each. Young men considering the subject of marriage will take notice, and assure themselves that their inamoratas are supplied with the full complement of toes.

—At boy at Copenhagen, New York, who went out to pick some green peas, has not yet returned. The season being over, it is feared something has happened to him. He is definitely described as thirteen years old and weighing one hundred and fifty pounds.

—An enterprising soapmaker daubed the rocks all the way up the Hudson with the appeal, "Use Smith's Soap," whereupon his rival, the still more enterprising Jones, after much cogitation, started his whitewasher up the river to append to each of Mr. Smith's appeals. "If you can't get Jones'."

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert
FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE
PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		17,000
10 CASH GIFTS	$10,000 each	100,000
30 CASH GIFTS	5,000 each	150,000
50 CASH GIFTS	1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS	500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS,

For all the Purposes of a Family Physic,

CURING

are the most congenial purgative yet perfected. Their effects abundantly show how much they excel all other Pills. They are safe and pleasant to take, but powerful to cure. They purge out the foul humors of the blood; they stimulate the sluggish or disordered organ into action, and they impart health and tone to the whole being. They cure not only the every-day complaints of everybody, but formidable and dangerous diseases. Most skillful physicians, most eminent clergymen, and our best citizens send certificates of cures performed, and of great benefits they have derived from these Pills. They are the safest and best physic for children, because mild as well as effectual. Being sugar-coated, they are easy to take; and being purely vegetable, they are entirely harmless.

Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Factors and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also
LEHIGH, WILKESBARRE, PITTSTON
And other first class Coal. For sale by the Cargo, Car-load or at retail from our wharf.

The Great South American Blood Purifier.
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties; it will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medical plants.

Took Refuge in a Log.

The romancer of the Detroit Press talks as follows: "A Detroiter named Andrew Steadman, who buys cattle, deals in hides, and occasionally makes a dollar by buying and selling produce, went on to Nankin Township a few days ago to buy a span of heavy horses which were wanted by a firm in the city. Upon reaching the farmer's house he found that the man was working with a neighbor a mile away. To save the distance he cut across lots, but was warned before he started to look out for a savage bovine which had the run of a ten-acre field. Thinking how he was going to get that span of horses for $50 less than their value, Steadman kept plodding through the field, which had a strip of bushes two or three rods wide, running half way across it. There were a few stumps and logs, one small tree, but nothing which prevented any one from crossing the strip. The Detroiter was about ten rods from the bushes when he heard 'a distant thunder sound,' and looked around to see from which way the shower was coming. About thirty rods away he beheld the old bovine coming for him, head down, back up, and eyes blazing. Steadman was satisfied that he was the man who was wanted, and he went for the bushes. He thought the bull would stop and run around the strip, and was startled when the old fellow dashed through them on his trail, uttering a deep 'boom!' every instant. Steadman dodged this way and that, but the bovine tore along after him, smashing bushes and leaping logs, and it was getting to be a red-hot affair when the man spied the open end of a large hollow log. The bull was not over forty feet behind, and into the log went Steadman, finding an orifice about twelve feet long, and large enough to be roomy. The bovine had seen the movement, and stopped at the log and ripped off a bushel of bark at the first dash. Then putting his horns under it he gave it a roll, and Steadman spun around like a dried pea in a policeman's whistle. The log was large, but old and tender, and every time the bull hauled back and jumped for it he covered himself with glory and clouds of bark and wood. Sometimes he whirled one end, and then he gave the centre a heave, and then he knocked a foot off the other end. Steadman swore, shrieked and pleaded, his eyes full of bark and his mouth stopped up, and every act of his life passed before him like a vision. 'W-o-o-h! w-h-o-o-p!' bellowed the bovine, as he slammed away at the log, and every moment Steadman expected to see the roof cave in on him. He was in despair, when he heard the barking of dogs and the shouts of men, and after a few minutes the farmers succeeded in releasing him, but it took a good hour to get the kinks out of his back and the rotten wood from his ears and eyes.

Travellers' Letters.

(Galaxy for September.)

The letters of travellers commonly bear witness to the enlarging and enlightning influence of their pursuits. Travel is a tonic, giving a stimulus to eye and mind. Among the thousands of our countrymen at this moment summering in foreign lands, the majority are comparing and contrasting, now to the advantage of "home," anon to its disadvantage. The letters of those travelling brothers and sisters and cousins of ours amuse and astonish us who stay beneath the old roof. Can this enthusiastic correspondent be the lazy Tom, the played-out Harry, whom nothing last winter would interest? Has the melancholy Jacques sailed east or south out of his blues, that he chirps so cheerily? Is it really the frivolous Kitty that is deep in Venetian art and Moorish history? People who dodged all accurate calculations at home, fill their epistles from Asia to Africa with dates and weights and measurements, to the fraction of an hour, an inch, an ounce. They tell us precisely how many stones went to building the tomb of Ptolemy XX., and the exact age of the old gentleman when he took possession thereof. Now we hear of a steeple or a statue 353 1-3 feet or yards high, and anon of a crypt 6,271.49 feet deep; then of a floor with 973,201 tiles, and a table made out of 2,000,015 bits of mosaic; and every paragraph is set forth with rods and roods and decimals and avoirdupois; and we know just how many jewels twinkle in every one of the Sultan's ten thousand State turbans, and the cost to a dot of each turban; and there are bills of fare sandwiched with bits of Byron; and it is always, "You know, dear Phil., that Anno Domini 555 the Turks, under command of"——; or, "Of course you recall how Agrigentum"—the rogue! he did not know or remember this himself the day before yesterday, when he was a hundred miles away from the scene he describes, and had not begun to cram for it from Murray. If I skip the lad's measures and titbits of potted history, yet these letters from Augustus are none the less welcome, revealing the traveller in a new light—as a deep statistician and gauger, who, till now, never suspected how many feet went to a furlong—as an endless scribbler who once had to be driven to answer a dinner invitation. When Augustus comes home his memory will swiftly disburden itself from guide-book details, but will keep longer an image of what his eyes have seen.

—"Were you guarded in your conduct while in New York?" asked a father of his son, who had just returned from a visit to that city. "Yes, sir; part of the time by two policemen."

Mr. Niblack of Indiana says he would gladly turn over his share of the back salary if there could be "a general refunding and cancellation all around."

A reward is offered for the missing conductor on the Chicago and Alton Railroad. He was mainly to blame for the recent collision.

Benjamin Osborne, a wealthy white man of Louisville, has been fully committed on the charge of murdering a negro. A civil suit has been begun against him for $10,000 by a widow.

A disaster occurred on the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal, by which that highway has been totally destroyed. The accident of a few days ago compelled the locking of the waters on one level, and in consequence of the heavy rains and the restricted space in which the great volume was held the walls were forced out and the entire country flooded. A great number of vessels were destroyed and a portion of the Delaware Railroad washed away. The loss cannot be correctly estimated, though it is known to be several millions. It is believed that there has been no loss of life.

They believe in calling things by the right name out in Iowa. A county convention adopted this strong and somewhat sweeping platform recently: "Whereas, we believe that when a man steals he is a thief; and whereas, a majority of the politicians of both parties steal; therefore Resolved, That we are tired of being plundered; that it is a good time for thieves to stand from under."

A petition for the pardon of Dr. Woods, who was sent to the State prison for malpractice about two years since, has been presented to the governor and council.

George E. Gridley of Wolfeborough has received $100 from the father of a child he saved from drowning.

Charles Horlor of Great Falls, a boy about twelve years of age, had his left arm broken by being thrown down by a cow jumping against him.

Supt. Chick threatens to prosecute any person who dares to offer liquor for sale on the grounds of the Great Falls Riding Park during the County Fair.

Senator Cragin has formally covered his back pay into the Treasury. This action may seem tardy, but it is due to the Senator to say that he resolved at the passage of the bill not to take the money, and he addressed a note to the Secretary of the Senate informing him of his purpose, supposing that would be all the action required. The same view was taken by Senator Sherman. Not until the recent decision of the Comptroller of the the Treasury was made known did he become aware that it was incumbent upon him to draw the money and then cover it back into the Treasury. This he has now done. Senator Windom, of Minnesota, has returned his back pay in like manner.

At the session of the governor and council at Concord, Friday, the following nominations were made: Bank commissioners, J. D. Lyman of Exeter, K. E. Madison of Claremont, and Newell Carter of Wolfeborough; trustees of normal school—R. S. Hall of Lisconia, Daniel G. Reed of Sandwich, Samuel B. Page of Concord, and George W. Scott of Newport; trustees of reform school, J. S. Bennett and Daniel Clark of Manchester; pilot commissioners—William H. Sise, W. L. Dwight and Charles H. Chase of Portsmouth; Washington Sweat was pardoned from jail in Sullivan county. Henry M. Burnham was nominated for associate justice of the police court of Manchester.

Fatal Accident.

[Rochester Times.]

An excursion party of about seven hundred persons from Dover, came down to South Berwick Junction on Thursday. Ale and beer, which are said to have been furnished in abundance, caused many a black eye and bloody nose. While about the railroad, two boys, Peter McArdle, aged fourteen years, and James Dobbins, aged twelve years, commenced to play about and pull upon the chains attached to the signal post. One of the chains broke and falling, instantly killed McArdle and dangerously wounded Dobbins. Both boys had been repeatedly warned to keep away from the staff.

Wanted—A Funeral.

"An old Farmer" makes the following pointed suggestions to his Democratic friends, through the columns of the Lewiston Gazette:

The time has come to abolish the Democratic party, and why the Democratic convention did not see it is more than I can understand. I know this is a bold proposition, and perhaps may startle some of my Democratic friends. But let us be candid. What good has the Democratic party done to anybody for the last ten years, except our opponents? What good will the Democratic party do anybody for the next ten years? What good did the Democratic party do Horace Greeley, one of the greatest and best men ever born on American soil?

"What!" says my brother Democrat, "give up the glorious old Democratic party, that came into power under Jefferson, and shone out in such splendor and glory under Jackson—the glorious old party that has done the country so much good?" I tell you, my friends, the glory is all departed glory; the day of its usefulnes has passed away; its mission is ended.

"But," you say, "we are a powerful party yet, well organized; why should not the reformers come into our ranks and reform the government?" I will tell you why, and I won't be nearly-mouthed about it either. During the Rebellion the Democratic party had the name of being opposed to the war. We have got it now, and it will stick to us just so long as the organization exists, even for a generation to come. No matter whom we nominate for Governor—a pure statesman and patriot like Charles P. Kimball; a gallant soldier like Gen. Roberts; or a gentleman of unsullied reputation and everyway worthy like the present nominee: he will be regarded by thousands of well meaning Republicans as the Rebel and Democratic candidate, and will be defeated as such.

The sober common people yearn for a higher and a nobler Democracy than belongs to either of the old political parties; they want to go down to the bed rock; they want a Democracy that will lighten the burdens of the sons and daughters of toil; they want to put their platform upon principles that will make such things as salary grabs, Credit Mobiliers and Pacific Railroad rings impossible. When I ask my Republican neighbor who lives on the next farm to come into the Democratic party and help us to put down salary grabbers, he points me to Democratic salary grabbers. When I ask him to join us and help to equalize taxation, he tells me that the heaviest bankers and bond holders in the country are Democrats. Though my Republican neighbor and myself are substantially agreed, there is no hope of our coming together under existing political parties for he won't come into the Democratic party, and I won't go into the Republican party. Sweep away the shackles of party, and we can work together. Then why, in times like these, keep up senseless barriers that separate men substantially agreed? Before we ask other people to rend their party ties, let us first free ourselves from the shackles of party.

The only effectual way that now remains to do this is for the masses of the Democratic party, the sober common people, to adopt the policy of masterly inactivity, lie right back, let the election go by default if need be, and teach the leaders of the old Democratic party that they no longer lead a force of 50,000 strong. If we can bury the old Democratic party this year, it will be a good year's work, and when the Democratic party is buried the Republican party will find itself "considerably shook up." Then will the real reformers, the sober common people, put their heads together, and a day of reckoning draw nigh.

Why Prices Are High.

Mr. Ruskin in a recent paper says:—"The weekly bills are double; because the greater part of the labor of the people of England is spent unproductively; that is to say, in producing iron plates, iron guns, gunpowder, infernal machines, infernal fortresses floating about, infernal fortresses standing still, infernal means of mischievous locomotion, infernal lawsuits, infernal parliamentary elocution, infernal beer, and infernal gazettes, magazines, statues and pictures. Calculate the labor spent in producing these infernal articles annually, and put against it the labor spent in producing food! The only wonder is that the weekly bills are not tenfold instead of double. For this poor housewife, mind you, cannot feed her children with any one or any quantity of these infernal articles. Children can only be fed with divine articles. Their mother can, indeed, go to London cheap; but she has no business there; she can buy all the morning's news for a halfpenny, but she has no concern with them; she can see Gustave Dore's pictures (and she had better see the devil) for a shilling; she can be carried through any quantity of filthy streets on a tramway for threepence; but it is as much as her life is worth to walk in them, or as her modesty is worth to look at a print shop in them. Nay, let her but to go on foot but a quarter of a mile in the West End, she dare not take her purse in her pocket or let her little dog follow her. These are her privileges and facilities in the capital of civilization. But none of these will bring meat or flour into her own village. For the contrary! The sheep and corn which the fields of her village produce are carried away to feed the makers of Armstrong guns. And her weekly bills are double."

Mosquitoes of the Red River of the North.

[Red River Letter to the New York Times.]

Your readers who have fished in Adirondack swamps, or lived on New Jersey flats, may fancy they know something of mosquitoes, but it is all a mistake. These creatures here rise in a cloud; they are terrible to man and beast; they make sleep uncomfortable, and all a loading. People carry mosquitos netting in this region in their pockets, so they go to bed dressed elsewhere. I saw a dog running at a road-team each with his pocket head-net and thick gloves, and even then they could hardly get on with their work. A gentleman at Duluth told me they used to be as plenty there (though they have mainly disappeared), and that it was considered as much a piece of etiquete to take off your coat and shake it before entering a friend's house as it would be now to wipe your feet. My excellent friend Rev. Dr. Rodgers undertook to address a religious meeting recently at Hawley, in the evening, and both he and the audience were fairly driven out by these little pests. I heard one authentic instance of a saw-mill being stopped by mosquitoes. It was the workmen, however, and not the machinery, that was impeded. Horses are not infrequently killed by them. A gentleman told me yesterday that in a hard day's ride he is often obliged to stop and clean the nostrils of his horse of these insects, while the hide is black with them.

A Baltimore Episode.

The Baltimore American tells the following little story: "An incident occurred in this city on Saturday evening, in the vicinity of the post-office, which forcibly illustrates the danger of forming conclusions without proper investigation. A German woman, residing in East Baltimore, had written a letter to her husband, and, accompanied by her two children, started out to find the post-office. Not being familiar with the locality, they turned into Exchange-place, instead of Second-street, which brought them to the rear entrance to the post-office. A colored boy was standing in the passage-way between the post-office and Ballard's saloon, and seeing him the woman told her daughter, a girl of about fourteen years of age, to take the letter and ask him if that was the post-office. She ran up the steps, spoke to him, and instantly both of them disappeared in the dark passage. This was about 7:45 P. M. It was quite dark and rain was falling. The mother waited outside a few minutes, but the child did not return. She became alarmed and told her fears to some gentlemen who happened to be passing at the time. In a few minutes a crowd gathered, and everybody was of the opinion that a horrible outrage had been committed. Policemen went into the passage-way, explored all the labyrinthian branches that lead from it, as well as all the rooms in the house through which it runs, but found nobody. The crowd became excited, and if the police had caught a colored boy in the passage-way or in the house, he might have been lynched on the spot. The distressed mother, accompanied by a sergeant of police, went home and found her child. The mystery was soon solved. The girl had asked the colored boy about the post-office, and he told her to pass through the alley to Second-street, and went along with her to show her where to drop the letter. When she came out of the office she found that she was in a strange street, and not being able to find her mother she went home. Fortunately for the colored boy, instead of returning to the passage-way, he strolled off in some other direction, and missed the indignant crowd that had tried and condemned him on the first impression."

"Hail, Wedded Life."

[Danbury News.]

You know her. She lives on the street. Her features are either pinched, or full and frowsy. Her dress is wet, ill-fitting and of no particular pattern; her slippers are broken down; her hair is uncombed; her voice is either shrill or coarse. You have seen her stand out in the back yard, and put a bare arm up to her eyes, and under it peer out to the fence or barn, where a man in an ill-fitting coat is searching for something, and have heard her shout—"John! can't George bring me some water?" And you have heard him cry back—"If he don't get that water I will take every inch of flesh from his bones." And when you have looked at her again, does it seem possible that those angry eyes have drooped in maidenly reserve, or raised in coquettish light to the face of the man in the ill-fitting coat? Can you, by any possible wrench of the imagination, conceive of his tenderly passing peppermints to her; of his taking that hand in his and bashfully squeezing it? But it was so. Many a "God bless you," has been uttered above that bare head, many a kiss pressed on that uncombed hair. The tightly compressed lips have lovingly framed tender invitations to him to take another bite of cake and pickle. The hands that are now parboiled and blistered and marked with scars from the breadknife, and scratches from the last setting hen, were once twined lovingly about his neck, and the nose which is now peaked and red, and looks as if it would stand on his hind legs and scream with rage, once followed the figures of his new vest pattern, or bore heavily against his jugular vein. As little probable as this seems to you, it seems less to her. She has forgotten it. She wont hear it talked of by others. Two lovers are to her "a passel of fools." And—but George is rubbing his head, and we turn aside while our heroine readjusts her slipper.

—Pensively observing the fashionable young ladies in hotel companies at the seaside, a correspondent goes on thus: "Watch the grouping of these girls, apparently accidental as it is, and see how artistically they manage, with never a mistake. They know very well what they are about, and study for that very effect you are admiring. There are two girls whom you have seen constantly together, a sudden coolness seems to have sprung up between them; they keep very far apart never speaking to one another at all; you even hear one refusing to dance in the same set of lancers with the other. What has happened to break this friendship? It must be a serious trouble, for they were drifting together in the afternoon; you are a little perplexed until you hear one say: 'I don't dare go near Nell, for her lips are blue.' If you have an eye for color you will understand the estrangement and wonder at it no longer."

The Creation, According to the Modocs.

Mr. Joaquin Miller, in his book entitled "Life Among the Modocs," has given some picturesque sketches of Indian life and traditions. Among much other interesting matter, he tells us that the idea of the creation of the world as it was entertained by the Modocs, now verging on extinction, in accordance with the demands of modern civilization was this: The Great Spirit made Mount Shasta first of all. He pushed down snow and ice from the skies through a hole which he made in the blue heavens, by turning a stone round and round, till he made this great mountain; then he stepped out of the clouds on to the mountain top, and descended and planted the trees all around by putting his finger on the ground. The sun melted the snow, and the water ran down and nurtured the trees and made the rivers. After that he made the fish for the rivers out of the small end of his staff. He made the birds by blowing some leaves which he took up from the ground among the trees.

After that he made the beasts out of the remainder of his stick, but he made the grizzly bear out of the big end, and made him master over all others. Having done that, the Great Spirit converted Mount Shasta into a wigwam, and its volcanic eruptions are the outcome of the fire that he lights in the centre of the mountain. The development of man was a later occurrence. The daughter of the Great Spirit ventured too far, got astray, and fell into the power of the grizzly bears, and she was forced to marry one of them, and the red men were the fruit of the marriage.

These red men were taken under the protection of the great spirit; but the grizzlies were punished by being compelled to walk on four feet, whereas before they had walked on two. To this day the grizzly bear is never slain by the red men, who recognize him a sort of kinsman.

We must quote one short anecdote from this book:

'I had a pocket Bible with me once. I was young, enthusiastic, and anxious to do a little missionary business on my own responsibility. I showed it to the chief, and undertook to tell him what it was.

'It is the promise of God to man,' I said, 'His written promise to us, that if we do as He has commanded us to do, we shall live and be happy forever when we die.'

He took it in his hand, upside down, and looked at the outside and inside very attentively.

'Promises! Is it a treaty?'

'Well, it is a treaty, perhaps; at least, it is a promise, and He wrote it.'

'Did it take all of this to say that? I do not like long treaties on paper. They are so easy to break. The Indian does not want his God to sign a paper. He is not afraid to trust his God.'

'But the promises?' I urged.

He pointed to the new leaves of trees, the spears that were bursting through the ground, handed me the book gruffly, and said no more."

On Mr. Miller's showing, Christians might learn a good deal of religion from the Modoc Indians.

The Oldest Vessel in the Port of Philadelphia.

A Philadelphia paper reports that the bark True Love, which has just arrived at that port from Greenland, with a cargo of kyrolite, is the oldest vessel known. She is quite primitive or peculiar in structure, having been built in the year 1764, and is consequently 109 years old. In shape the bark is very much like the one in which William Penn arrived at the time he made the treaty with the Indians. The sides batter inward to the top of the gunwale, and this makes the vessel much broader at the water-line than on deck. In nautical language the sides are known as "tumbling home," because they fall in above the bends. They are directly opposite in construction to those of a ship known as a wall-sided vessel. This bark was built at Philadelphia, but it cannot be ascertained with any degree of certainty at what particular point. The custom-house register does not contain the record, because the vessel was built twelve years before the beginning of the American revolution. It is most likely that the bark was built in Kensington as it appears from history that the first ship-yards on the Delaware were established in that locality, not far from the Penn treaty ground. The bark was built for parties residing in Hull, England, and still hails from that place and for forty-seven years was engaged in the whaling business in the northern seas, and appeared to be at home among the icebergs of the Arctic region. It is understood that the vessel has never required any considerable repairs. The original timbers appear to be as sound as the day they were erected on the stocks in old Kensington. The bark registers 296 tons, but will carry much more.

A Handkerchief Quarrel.

[From the Troy (N. Y.) Whig.]

A quarrel in regard to the ownership of a pocket handkerchief attracted some attention on the return trip of the North Second Street Methodist Union excursion to Saratoga. The facts are as follows: Two handsome dressed females, evidently friends, had been pleasantly chatting together until the train reached Mechanicville, when one said, at the same time taking a snowy handkerchief from her friend, "This is my handkerchief; I supposed I had lost it at Saratoga." "You are mistaken; look at the border and you will see that it is not yours," said No. 2 in reply. "I know it is mine; smell of it, and you will discover that it is scented with my favorite perfumery," said female No. 1. "I do not care if it is; it is mine, which I can prove to you. See here," said No. 2, as she drew another handkerchief from the pocket of her dress, "the borders are alike." "I will not make a fuss for such a trifle," said No. 1, growing red in the face. "My God," said No. 2, angrily, "take the handkerchief." No. 1 then spitefully threw the handkerchief on the floor, where it remained until they reached Troy. We do not know what became of the disputed article. When we left the car, the woman were still defiant, and no sign of compromise was visible on their ruffled brows.

—A curious coincidence late happened at Liege. A foreign merchant came to that town to look up some debtors, and meeting one of them in the street observed that he was looking for him, as he thought it was time that the account between them should be settled. "I should only be too glad," replied M. X., "but you cannot draw blood from a stone." "Then," said the creditor, "I shall have recourse to extreme measures." "Now, I think of it," cried X., "I shall soon receive an important legacy. I will, therefore, give you a bill at three months for the whole amount, and this I promise to meet." "Very well; where shall I find you?" inquired the merchant. "At No. 29 Rue Robermont." The bill having become due last week, a clerk was sent by the creditor to the above address. As No. 29 proved to be the cemetery, the messenger suspected a joke, but nevertheless inquired of the porter whether M. X. was within. "Certainly," replied the man, "he has been here since yesterday." "I am come about a bill." "A bill upon X! I tell you he was buried yesterday." X. had only intended to play an unworthy trick upon his creditor, but he actually died a little before the expiration of the three months, and therefore actually occupied the mournful abode he had named in jest.

DIED.

SMYTH. In Chelsea, Aug. 22d, of lung fever, EARLE GRAHAM SMITH, aged 8 months, child of Horace M. and Isabella E. Smith. The remains were brought to this city for interment.

Business Notices.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. au28

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

The Beginning of Sickness.

Never trifle with what are called small ailments. A disorder easy of control at first, if neglected for a few weeks, may become a mortal disease. Be especially careful not to let debility steal upon you, for it is the door through which maladies enter the system. If you feel languid, inert, and, to use a common expression, "as if there was no life left in you," resort at once to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The great vegetable tonic will supply the vitality you so urgently need. It is nerve food. By its tonic action the Stomach is so invigorated that digestion becomes regular, easy, perfect; while its mild, cathartic properties relieve the bowels from obstructions, and its alterative operation beneficially affect all the secretive organs. For the miseries of dyspepsia, and they include almost every unpleasant feeling that belongs to physical disease and mental wretchedness, this potent tonic is a certain and speedy balm.

Unlike other Cathartics, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets do not, after their operation, have a secondary tendency to render the bowels more costive. This is an important improvement, as all who have ever taken many pills or other cathartics for the purpose of overcoming constipation, know to their sorrow that the secondary effects of all such medicines has been to "render a bad matter worse." These Pellets produce such a secondary tonic effect upon the bowels as to bring about a permanent healthy action. Hence their great value, taken in small doses daily for any length of time, in habitual constipation and in Piles, already, and prominent, as they generally are, by reason of the liver and costiveness. Sold by Druggists at 25 cents a vial. 3m

Notice to Parents, Guardians and Masters.

YOUR attention is called to Sec. 1 of Chapter 11 of the laws of New Hampshire passed June session, 1871, which is as follows:—

"Every parent, guardian, master, or other person having the custody or charge of any child, shall between the age of eight and fourteen years, residing in any school district in which a public school is annually taught for the period of twelve weeks or more, within two miles by the nearest road from his residence, shall cause said child to attend such public school for twelve weeks at least in each year, from and after the first day of September next, six weeks of which attendance shall be consecutive, unless such child shall be excused from such attendance by the school committee of the town, or the town school agent, or the superintending school committee of such district, upon its being shown to their satisfaction that such physical or mental conditions of such child who such as to prevent his attendance at school for the period required, or that such child was instructed in a private school, or at home, for a period of twelve weeks during such year, in the branches of education required to be taught in the public schools, or having acquired these branches in other ways, as well as public schools."

Section 3 provides the following penalty for non-compliance with Section 1:

"FOR EVERY OFFENCE A FORFEIT OF $10, AND SAID FOR THE SCHOOL AND POOR SHALL BE THE OFFENCE.

Local Matters.

Board of Mayor and Aldermen.

At a special meeting of the board, on Saturday evening, it was voted that a committee be appointed to confer with the owners of the Rogers house, and report whether an arrangement can be made to remove the building to a line from northeast corner of Plumer's bakery to northwest corner of the North church. Ald. Sise, Wilson and Davis were appointed as the committee.

It was also voted that the owners of the Rogers estate be notified, in case they erect any new building, to place it on the line of the street as established in 1860.

Ald. Wilson reported that he had employed workmen to repair floor in cellar of Haven school house.

It was voted that the drum corps be allowed to use the ward room after 9 1-2 o'clock P. M.

The request of steam fire engine company No. 1, for an advance of $200, was granted.

The Mayor was authorized to procure the construction of a proper landing at the foot of Daniel street.

It was voted that Mr. Hartshorn be paid $10 per year for keeping his well in order, with pump, drinking cup and trough for public use.

It was also voted that the cross-walk on Islington street, between George Taylor's and J. H. Thacher's be repaired.

S. J. Court.

At the law term at Concord last week, the following cases on the Rockingham docket were disposed of :

D. E. Leavitt vs. J. C. Carr. Questions upon the construction of articles of copartnership and the settlement of the partnership affairs. Decree for the plaintiff for $874.94, with interest and costs. Hatch for plaintiff; Goodall for defendant.

R. A. DeLancey vs. Rockingham Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Co. Decision for plaintiff ; Wiggin & Small for defendants.

State vs. Manchester & Lawrence Railroad. Action on the case for causing the death of Benjamin Woodbury, who was accidentally run over by a locomotive at Salem, N. H. The court ordered judgment on the verdict. Frink & Marston for plaintiffs ; S. C. Eastman, Hatch and Bartlett for defendants.

W. H. Y Hackett vs. County of Rockingham. The court decided that a committee appointed by the convention of the county to build the alms-house at Brentwood, not being lawfully constituted for that purpose, had no right to employ counsel at the expense of the county, in a suit brought against the committee by the county commissioners. Hatch for plaintiff ; Frink for defendants. So the court sustains the commissioners in their position that the commissioners only can be empowered to expend money for the county, for any purpose save the payment of courts.

Frank W. Miller vs. Stephen Scammon. This was a bill in equity, in which the plaintiff alleged he was induced by Scammon in December, 1869, to publish in the CHRONICLE an advertisement reflecting on Albert R. Hatch, for which the publisher was fined. Plaintiff now says he was deceived by Scammon, and asks that Scammon be obliged to reimburse him. The court held that a bill in equity is not the proper remedy in such a case ; and intimated that if the plaintiff had such excuse, he ought to have shown it at the trial. Hackett for plaintiff ; Wiggin for defendant.

Brown et als. vs. Leavitt. This was a motion made at the trial term to amend the plaintiffs' writ by striking out the counts in the writ, which were founded upon a parole agreement under seal. The motion to amend was denied. The parties all live in Exeter, and the suit was for building a hotel at Hampton Beach. Hatch and Wood for plaintiffs ; Marston and Frink for defendants.

Laconics.

A suspension bridge to Kittery is talked of.

The new bridge at Dover Point is to be 1,880 feet long.

Noble's Island is being graded for the water front of the Dover and Portsmouth Railroad.

The Times editor is beginning to be original! He says "the floods clapped their hands and torrents of water fell."

Trains for the Epping camp meeting will leave the Concord depot daily at 9 A. M.; returning, leaves East Epping at 9.25 A. M., and 4.15 and 5.35 P. M.

We are glad to learn that amputation has not been found necessary in the case of young Malsbenden, who was injured a week ago while at play on a turn-table.

There are 1125 shares in the Portsmouth and Dover Railroad held by private individuals, of which 496 are owned in Portsmouth and 229 in Dover, while the two cities have sent 300 and 295 shares respectively.

The Eastern and Maine Central Railroads have withdrawn the locomotives that have for some time past been stationed at the point of the desired junction with the Boston and Maine Railroad in Portland.

It is stated that Mr. Henry Staples, a freight conductor on the Eastern Railroad, has eloped with Mrs. Frederick S. Taylor. Mr. Staples has a family living out of Boston and Mrs. Taylor leaves a husband in East Boston.

Mr. Samuel Barrett, for several years agent of the Concord Railroad at the Portsmouth station, is to assume the duties of station agent of the Eastern Railroad and branches at Portsmouth on the first of September.

Lt.-Com. David C. Woodworth and Ensign Murdock are detached from the receiving ship Sabine and ordered to the Monongahela. Ensign Winslow is detached from the Sabine and ordered to the Narragansett. The Monongahela is expected to go into commission on the 3d of September ; a detachment of twenty-five marines for her arrived here from the Brooklyn navy yard on Friday.

The Salem Observer says of the suit in equity against the Catholic priest and bishop : "This is sheer rebellion and goes to the root of episcopal authority. It is conduct directly in opposition to all the precedents, institutes and traditions of the church ; and it entirely ignores the usually received idea of the authority of a Bishop. It is a rebellion which is very American in its spirit, and may be based upon grievances which will ensure its success. Civil law sometimes corrects the evils of ecclesiastical misrule."

Economy the Road to Wealth.

[New Orleans Picayune.]

A lady down on Smith street read somewhere that economy was the sure road to wealth, and hearing that the gas bill was enormous, felt the gas might be economized by turning it off at the meter every morning, so that it would not waste through the brackets. This she did, intending to regulate it in the evening. She went to see her mother, however, and Biggins having returned about eight o'clock P. M., turned up the jet and struck a match. Nursing it carefully with his hand, he placed it to the bracket. Pshaw! it went out; another, and still it would not light. He thought the infernal thing must be broken, and, going into the next room, fell over a chair and smashed his face. He tried it until his matches were all gone, and then feeling on the mantle formore, turned over his wife's oil perfume bottle, and knew it was running on his coat. He swore, and started down stairs, and just in the hall met Maria returning with the children.

"Biggins, why is there no light in the house?"

He endeavored to explain, but of no use. He was foolish. The gas would light, if he had only tried; and she marched into the parlor, her dress catching in her cabinet of Chinese curiosities, and it falling with a crash. She tried, and in vain, for, besides spoiling her best silk, she trod on the child with boils, and mashed her best bonnet, when, lo! she remembered what was the matter.

She would sooner have stepped into her coffin than into that meter, and she tried to do it quietly, but Biggins saw her ; and from that day to this, when she talks economy, he quietly snickers, "Save from the gas bill."

Her silk dress, her best bonnet, and her Chinese relics were nothing, she whispered to her bosom friend ; but to have Biggins once know he was right, it "is too much," and she always bursts into tears.

—A Detroit woman was consulting the police the other day to see it she had good grounds for a divorce suit. She alleges that her husband is drunk about twenty-seven days out of each month ; that he cut her hair off while she slept ; that he wakens her at daylight by throwing a pail of water over the bed ; that he has tried to force kerosene oil down her throat, and he puts hot potatoes in her hands and then mashes them by squeezing her fingers. The police thought she didn't need any better grounds.

—The gallant Texan always breaks bad news with delicacy. A vigilance committee rode up to a house, the other day, and the leader shouted: "Is Smith in!" Mrs. Smith appeared, and answered in the negative. "I knew he wasn't," replied the leader, riding off, "he's hanging to a tree over there."

GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At the concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of

divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of the tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		100,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		50,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		25,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT		12,000
50 CASH GIFTS	$10,000 each	100,000
30 CASH GIFTS	5,000 each	150,000
50 CASH GIFTS	1,000 each	50,000
80 CASH GIFTS	500 each	40,000
100 CASH GIFTS	400 each	40,000
150 CASH GIFTS	300 each	45,000
250 CASH GIFTS	200 each	50,000
325 CASH GIFTS	100 each	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22 Tickets for $1,000; 112 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount for less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unparalleled success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

WISTAR'S BALSAM
OF
WILD CHERRY!

THE GREAT REMEDY FOR

CONSUMPTION!

And acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most Reliable Preparation ever introduced for the RELIEF and CURE of all

LUNG COMPLAINTS.

This well known remedy is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years, and when resorted to in season seldom fails to effect a speedy cure of

COUGHS, COLDS, CROUP, BRONCHITIS, INFLUENZA, WHOOPING COUGH, HOARSENESS, PAINS OR SORENESS IN THE CHEST OR SIDE, BLEEDING AT THE LUNGS, LIVER COMPLAINTS, &c.

CONSUMPTION!

CURED

By a timely resort to this standard remedy, as is proved by hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors.

Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry

Does not dry up a Cough and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

CLERGYMEN, LAWYERS, SINGERS,

And all those whose occupation requires an unusual exercise of the vocal organs, will find this the ONLY PREPARATION which will effectually and instantaneously relieve their difficulties.

BEWARE OF COUNTERFEITS.—Remember that the genuine Wistar's Balsam has on the outside wrapper the signature of "I. BUTTS," and the printed name of the proprietors, "SETH W. FOWLE & SONS, BOSTON." All others are base imitations. Examine the wrapper carefully before purchasing.

$1 PER BOTTLE. SIX BOTTLES, $5.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
No. 78 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

ONE of the large and splendid Steamships of this line will leave Pier No. 42, North River, foot of Canal St., New York, at 12 o'clock M., on the 5th, and 20th of every month, except when those dates fall on Sunday, and then on the preceding Saturday, for ASPINWALL, connecting via Panama Railway with one of the Company's Steamships from Panama for SAN FRANCISCO, touching at MANZANILLO.

All departures connect at PANAMA with Steamers for SOUTH PACIFIC and CENTRAL AMERICAN ports.

For Japan and China, Steamer leaves San Francisco first of every month, except when it falls on Sunday, then on the day preceding.

One Hundred Pounds of Baggage allowed each adult.

Baggage received on the dock the day before sailing, from steamboats, railroads and passengers who prefer to send early. An experienced surgeon on board. Medicine and attendance free.

For Freight or passage Tickets or further information apply at the Company's ticket office, on the Wharf, FOOT OF CANAL ST., NORTH RIVER, NEW YORK. GEO. H. RUDDERY, President.

NOTICE.

Rockingham Ten Cents Savings Bank.

No. 29 MARKET ST., PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

AARON H. HILL, President, JOHN CHRISTIE, Treas.

THIS Bank pays five per cent. per annum, free of all tax. A greater rate is prohibited by law.

Two dividends are made in the year,—in June and December; and an extra dividend of the surplus earnings every two years. The first extra will be in June, 1874.

Deposits go on interest on the FIRST day of every MONTH, and deposits made during the FIRST THREE days of each MONTH will draw interest from the FIRST day of that MONTH.

Dividends not withdrawn will be added to the principal, and draw interest from the time when declared.

Money is received on deposit, payable on checks at sight.

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL, FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL, SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL, SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL, NORTH FRANKLIN COAL, LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY REPICKED AND CLEANSED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The Great South American Blood Purifier.
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is not in active circulation, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secreting organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties. It will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.

Rain on the Plains.

[New York Graphic.]

In view of the wonderful climatic changes going on along the lines of the great railways crossing the plains, it is impossible to imagine a probable limit in the vast area which may be here, within a few years, be deemed among the portions of our country suitable for the purpose of agriculture. The secret of this transformation from a desert to a fertile plain is contained in five words—the railroad has brought rain. No element was wanting in the earth itself, nor was aught in excess to enforce sterility, but everywhere there was drouth. In the hot dust nothing grew but stunted grass and sage brush. All seemed desolation and utter hopelessness. Wherever irrigation was tried, its success exceeded the most sanguine expectations in developing an almost miraculous productiveness in the soil. No enthusiast dared, however, to dream of the possibility of artificial irrigation over all this enormous expanse. Rivers entering here would have been drunk up by the thirsty earth and sky long ere they could have reached its centre. Yet man's work has irrigated this land by an unexpected means. The railroad brought rain. To the electrical influence of these long lines of iron between east and west, some attribute the change. By others it is affirmed that the effect has been produced by merely the displacement of the atmosphere, caused by the numerous heavy and swiftly rushing trains. Be the cause what it may, the facts remain the same—that, year by year, since the Union Pacific Railroad has been operated through, the rainfall has steadily increased, until this season it has become, so far at least as the road is concerned, a decided nuisance. Who of the projectors of this road ever imagined that a time would come when its trains would be delayed in the middle of the plains by the overflow of water from violent rain-storms covering the track, and in places even sweeping it away? Such has, however, been the fact this spring. Trains have been as much as twelve and even fifteen hours behind time from this cause alone. The result of this rainfall is already to be seen in the settlement of the country along the route. When first the Union Pacific road was opened to travel one would ride all the long day through without seeing a human habitation, except at the miserable stations where the trains were "side-tracked," coal taken or water drawn from wells of great depth. Now, as far west as Cheyenne, houses are scattered all along, fields are seen in a flourishing state of cultivation, and numerous herds of cattle prove how well the graziers have found the country adapted to their wants.

Death of Mr. Sothern's Assailant.

The San Francisco Alta Californian says that Mr. Sothern's car difficulty has unfortunately ended fatally, James Lawson, his assailant, having died in consequence of the injuries he received at the hands of the comedian. Sad as the whole affair is, no one can possibly blame Sothern. He was suddenly and savagely struck, while quietly expostulating with Lawson, a man over six feet two inches high, and almost double his weight. Even then, according to the conductor's evidence, although bleeding profusely from the mouth and nose, he kept his temper, but remained as firm as ever in his determination to have his private car to himself. A second time he requested Lawson to leave, and a second time did Lawson make a rush at him while his back was turned, as he urged the conductor to keep passive. The second cowardly attack did at last rouse him, and, turning round rapidly, Sothern gave him two or three stinging blows, then closed with him, and finally administered a rapid "cross buttock," intending to throw him on the platform, but the man's struggles called for more force, and he was thrown over the chain at the end of the car. A compound fracture of the right leg, and internal injuries were the result. Mr. Sothern's departure is unavoidably postponed, but no one can doubt the verdict of the coroner's jury.

—"Is rum sold in Portland?" is a question which has not only agitated the whole of this country, but has also been warmly discussed by English meetings and in English newspapers. A correspondent of the Portland Advertiser thinks that he is justified in a belief which he bases upon his own personal observation, that now and then a wee drop is either given or sold in the Down East metropolis. He says that going into an eating-house for his breakfast at eight o'clock in the morning, he encountered two drunken men. Mournful to relate, one of them was a Massachusetts Quaker, the first inebriated Friend whom the writer ever encountered. This unique specimen came out very strong in the line of profanity, which, poured forth from under the shadow of a broad-brimmed hat, must have had an extremely piquant effect. Leaving the Quaker to swear and to sing at his pleasure, the writer went home and found a mason's sender employed there exceedingly drunk and minus his wheelbarrow. One of these conveniences was borrowed for him, but he was too much obfuscated to use, or even to remember of whom he borrowed it; and the writer had to show him the place. The correspondent doesn't like to be rash, but he surmises that rum is sold in Portland, and the shops in which it is sold must either open very early or not shut up at all.

Boutwell and Blaine will be leading candidates for President in 1876.

Gen. Butler has taken the stump in Massachusetts.

There was a serious stabbing affray in Lynn on Saturday night, when a man named John McKeon, while intoxicated, stabbed John McDonald in the abdomen, inflicting wounds from which he cannot recover. McKeon was arrested.

Captain Jack, Schonchin, Black Jim, Boston Charley, Barncho, alias One-eye Jim, and Sloluch, alias Cox, who were tried by the military commission for the murder of General Canby and Commissioner Thomas, and for assault with intent to kill other peace commissioners, are found guilty of the specifications and charges and sentenced to be hanged. The proceedings have been approved by the President and Secretary of War, and the sentence will be carried into effect at Fort Klamath, Oregon, on the 3d of October, under the direction of the general commanding the department of Columbia.

Late reports still further complicate the Tichborne case. The statement is made that the long-lost Arthur Orton, the Wapping butcher, is on his way from a foreign land to show by his personal presence that the claimant is not to be longer confounded with him.

On the first Monday of October the electors of Connecticut will vote upon the adoption of the constitutional amendment providing for one capital. This amendment was passed by the house in 1872, and by considerably more than two-thirds of each House of the General Assembly at its last session. It requires only one more endorsement, that of a majority of the electors voting on the first Monday of October, to become a part of the constitution of the State.

The American criminal is "some" on ghastly slang, but we haven't seen anything quite as cynical as this, from the confession of a murderer recently tried in Paris: "We don't try to kill in order to steal; we attempt merely to stun him. And, if after that he cools, all the worse for him."

The city of Belfast, Me., which suffered from a destructive conflagration in 1865, was again visited by the fire-fiend, on Sunday afternoon. One hundred and twenty-five buildings were destroyed; one hundred families have been deprived of shelter; nearly every wharf was burned, and one of the finest ship-yards in eastern Maine is ruined. The loss cannot be much less than half a million dollars. The saddest incident of the fire is the death of Miss Rebecca Prentiss, a well known and much respected lady, about eighty years of age, who perished at the Frothingham House, where she resided. She was bewildered by the smoke or fell in a fit. A few charred bones comprising her remains were found.

The body of a woman was found off North Brother's Island, in New York harbor, recently, which was identified as that of Eliza Walker. She was in the habit of bathing daily, being a powerful swimmer, and, from all appearances, she was drawn into the current, and must have swum five or six miles before sinking from exhaustion.

A Wilmington, Delaware, despatch states that the damage to vessels and canal barges in the Chesapeake and Delaware canal includes 11 schooners and 18 barges hopelessly wrecked, while 28 schooners, 37 barges, 2 tugs and 1 propeller steamer are stranded and most of them are more or less injured. One vessel lies 400 yards from the canal. All the crafts east of St. George escaped serious injury. The canal authorities hope to get them out in a fortnight. Those at St. George may be released in a month. Many of the schooners and most of the barges are loaded with coal.

Two singular accidents happened, at nearly the same time at different quarters of Paris. Two little girls with plates in their hands, running in the street, fell; the plates were broken and the earthenware cut their carotid artery. They bled to death in a few minutes.

The St. Louis ordinance licensing houses of prostitution, has been decided unconstitutional and void.

BOSTON, Aug. 22, 1873.

Dear Chronicle: I feel rather hurt. I wrote you "All About Dogs" some time since, and I have a very elaborate article entitled "More About Dogs" nearly ready to launch upon your unsuspecting readers; and now I read in your columns to-day a local that pretends to be "About Dogs," but which degenerates into cats ere its close.

You ask for a recipe which shall give you immunity from the untimely serenades of the feline race. I have had a feeling that way myself, and the following prescription, compounded by your (at that time) worthy city clerk, I can guarantee for efficacy.*

"Know all men by these presents, that our true and trusty friend and contemporaneous historical reporter, ———, is hereby authorized, empowered, permitted and commanded to destroy

CATS!

By stoning, beating, drowning, strangling, smashing, stabbing, shooting, or in or by any other means in his power; anything in any law, ordinance or regulation, or any mayor, marshal, sheriff, police officer, watchman or other public functionary to the contrary notwithstanding. Witness our hand and the seal of the city.

———, City Clerk, &c.

The discharge of firearms was prohibited, and I applied to Mayor, City Marshal and City Clerk. The result was satisfactory. After the document was in my possession, stamped with the city seal, the cats sought a new stamping ground and I was troubled no more. A dozen cartridges for my navy six-shooter still await a candidate for funereal honors. The Society of the alphabetical title was not then in existence.

I must importune Portsmouth people not to go to Salisbury Beach. If they do they will be so well treated by the Morrill brothers that their kinsfolks will have to send for them. I was foolish enough to pass the last Sabbath there and became a stalagmite upon the beautiful clean beach while watching the heavy surf the recent storm had raised. Really, the Atlantic House is a good place to visit, with nice cuisine, moderate charges, and the most courteous attention. The beach is fine, the view superb. 'Tis a little far off for a drive from Portsmouth, but by rail may be easily reached. Dan Philbrick will leave you at Newburyport, or Joe Mitchell at Salisbury, at an unconscionably early hour in the morning, when you can take a team to the Atlantic, have a bath, a bird dinner, see the sea, and get back to Portsmouth by any one of the numerous afternoon trains.

Thunder, lightning and rain give much interesting occupation to our citizens, and sadly embarrass excursions projected for the poor children. Still, as the rain has been sadly needed, the can't-get-aways are glad their vacation occurred not during the last two weeks. The alternations of heat and cold would disgust any decent satyr of Æsop's age, business is nearly at a standstill, and yet most of our people are not happy. Fires have ceased to interest Bostonians, "Old Probabilities" is off on a summer tour, and I am, as ever, yours, H.

High Life Romance.

The official announcement that a marriage between the Duke of Edinburgh, the second son of Queen Victoria, and the Grand Duchess Maria Alexandrowna, only daughter of the Czar of Russia, shows that the latter has at length overcome the repugnance of his willful daughter to the above-mentioned match, and that in some way or other an end has been put to a serious and romantic love affair, in which the young Russian princess bore the most conspicuous part.

It appears, according to what the gossips of St. Petersburg relate in regard to this affair, that about two years ago the Emperor Alexander II, for reasons best known to himself, had resolved to marry his only daughter to the son of the Queen of England. The Grand Duchess Marie was then a young girl of eighteen, not by any means beautiful, but still very attractive, owing to her intelligence and great vivacity. Having been an invalid for years during her childhood, her education had necessarily been neglected; and when her union with an English prince was decided upon by her imperial father, it was found necessary to get her a teacher to instruct her in the Anglo-Saxon tongue.

A young professor in the University of St. Petersburg, a Mr. Swayne, Englishman of aristocratic descent, was intrusted with this task. Twice a day Professor Swayne repaired to the Ermitage and gave the Princess a lesson. To the utter astonishment of her parents Marie Alexandrowna, who had been anything but a docile pupil under her other teachers, seemed to take the liveliest interest in her English lessons, and even prevailed upon her indulgent father, the Czar, to assign rooms at the Ermitage to Professor Swayne for a permanent residence.

Several months rolled by in this manner, when one day the Emperor told his daughter Marie that he would take her shortly on a trip to a German watering-place, in order to make her acquainted there with her intended, Prince Alfred, of England. To his consternation the saucy young lady told him that he might save himself the trouble, and that she had no idea whatever of marrying the son of Queen Victoria, inasmuch as she had already pledged her hand and heart to Professor Swayne! The Czar of all the Russias was absolutely petrified upon receiving this utterly unexpected communication. He asked his daughter if she was mocking him, but she assured him that she was in dead earnest, and that nothing could swerve her from her purpose of marrying "John"—meaning the young English professor.

The Czar knit his brow and ordered his daughter to go back to her apartments, and then he sent for her mother, the Empress That good lady shared her husband's astonishment and indignation, and then the English professor was sent for. With fear and trembling he appeared in the Imperial presence, showing plainly that he was not ignorant of the cause that had led to the summons him to appear before the Emperor. Alexander the Second did not speak unkindly to the young Englishman, but simply asked him to tell him all about that love affair with his daughter. Blushing, and his forehead bathed in a sea of perspiration, Professor Swayne said to the Emperor that if anybody was to blame it was the young Grand Duchess, who one day had made, to his consternation, a very pointed declaration of love to him, and had almost compelled him to confess to her that he was likewise attached to her. He had vainly represented to her that a union between them was impossible; but she had laughed at him and had assured him that she would manage the affair in her own way and carry it to a successful issue. He would gladly have severed his connection with her, but she had told him threateningly that if he left her she would kill herself, but him first.

The Czar listened to this extraordinary story with a clouded brow, but said then to Professor Swayne that he would not blame him for what had occurred, but that he must leave Russia within twenty-four hours, and that his salary should be paid him during life. Professor Swayne promised to do so, and took the same day the Kyohstadt steamer for Stockholm. The young Grand Duchess, upon hearing the turn affairs had taken, was inconsolable. She raved and wailed for days in her apartments, and swore to her parents she would not marry the Duke of Edinburgh. When she was taken, shortly afterward, by her father to Germany, she refused to meet her intended, and even during her recent sojourn with her mother in Italy, she heaped many a slight upon the Duke. However, her repugnance to the latter has been overcome, and instead of becoming Mrs. Swayne, the Princess will soon be Duchess of Edinburgh.

Ludicrous Fix.

The Milwaukee Daily Wisconsin says that, on the 8th, Jailor Alft had his suspicions aroused by certain sounds, and proceeded to investigate, with aid. Part of the scene that followed is thus described: There stood Jack Allen, one of the pair of Chicago burglars, by the window facing them. He had dropped the saw with which he had been cutting an iron bar, as they entered. And there, also, with his body half protruding through a small aperture in the door of his cell, was Dave Raggio, Allen's partner.

"Get back into your cell!" commanded Alft, who did not appreciate the fellow's condition.

"But I can't get back; I wish I could!" was Raggio's answer. And such was the fact.

In each cell door is a hole, nine and one-half inches square, which is covered by a swinging door. This door the rascals had removed by sawing off the pivot on one side and slipping the other side; but, even then, one would have supposed them safe, for a hole only nine and one-half inches square might well be considered too small to admit of the passage of a man's body. Notwithstanding this, Allen, who is a slender chap, squeezed himself through and began operations on the bars at the window of the hall, the only things between him and liberty. Raggio attempted to follow Allen. By dint of hard pushing and some pulling from his partner, he succeeded in getting just one-half through, and there his good feeding showed itself and he "stuck fast." Squirm as he could it made no difference; and when he concluded to give it up, he discovered that he could not retreat.

The officers secured Allen and placed him in irons, in a separate cell. Meantime Raggio was shouting lustily for relief. His position had become very painful, as he was hanging on iron which is not more than one-half inch in thickness, and his feet were far above the floor. The officers straightened him and attempted to pull him one way or the other, but it was found impossible to liberate him. Continued exertion showed but one way; the door must be cut and the grisp of that hole loosened. As it was in the dead of night nothing could be done immediately, and the officers consequently brought stools and blocked up the doubly-imprisoned prisoner; and there he lay, or sprawled, until seven o'clock in the morning, when a locksmith was brought, who removed two of the cross-bars; the iron was bent back and the thoroughly disgusted Raggio was drawn out. His shoulders, back and hips, were badly torn and bruised by his frantic endeavors to get out of this new-fangled "squeeze" the law had on him. As the rogues began operations between eleven and twelve o'clock, he hung over that door more than seven hours. Four saws were found on the floor of the hall-way—each about one foot long. The rascals had evidently determined upon making a strong resistance if discovered after they were in a fair way of escape, as they had wrenched off two iron legs of their bedstead to serve as weapons. And most effectual weapons they would have been, as they can be easily handled, and one blow would suffice to kill a man.

—A wife in suing for a divorce made the following complaint: Her husband would never walk with her as he said she had too short a step for him. Another man who could keep step, put in an appearance and gence the trouble which ensued.

—To prevent a horse pawing in the stable, tie or strap the legs together just above the knees, so they will stand about natural, say six or eight inches apart. It will not in the least inconvenience the horse in lying down or rising, and will prevent this annoying habit.

— In Minneapolis recently a boy four and a half years old unhitched a horse that was standing in front of a store, and, getting in to the buggy, started for a drive round town. The horse took fright, upset a policeman who tried to stop it, and finally brought up against a post and landed the youthful driver on his head on the sidewalk.

The Battle of the Bullfrogs.

[Boston Transcript.]

Many of the citizens of Connecticut will remember to have seen on one-dollar bills of the Windham County State Bank, a vignette representing bullfrogs fighting. This was engraved to commemorate the battle of the bullfrogs. The facts are as follows: Many years ago when the town of Windham was newly settled, there came a very dry season. There are two large ponds in Windham, separated by an intervening strip of land of considerable extent. Each of these ponds was inhabited by a large community of the reptiles above named. The smaller pond dried up and its inhabitants started in a body for the lower or larger pond. They were met in the intervening space by the community from the larger pond, and a fierce and long-continued battle ensued between the rival communities. Such was the hideous bellowing of the frogs during their fierce encounter that it alarmed the inhabitants, who at first supposed it to be the whoop of the hostile savages. But curiosity getting the better of their fears, they cautiously proceeded to the spot whence the hideous sound issued, and there beheld the strange spectacle of two immense armies of bull frogs, covering many acres of ground, engaged in a fierce and deadly struggle. The battle continued for more than twenty-four hours, and when it was over the ground was literally covered with the slain, and it became necessary to avoid the obnoxious effluvia, to gather and bury them.

Amateur Newsgathering.

It is commonly thought to be very easy to write in practical newspaper style; but many an over-confident young sophomore, as well as less learned journalistic scribe, has found by experience that his "copy" required re-editing before it was practicable for the humblest news-column. Apropos the Gazette of Stockton, Cal., relates the following: Yesterday, we engaged a new "local"—that is, a new assistant. The old one we had last week evinced almost human intelligence, but as a general rule his time was so fully occupied in trying to throw four sixes against some bar-keeper's trey-full that we didn't receive much benefit from his labors. We can't say that as a purveyor of news the new one is much better. He was out all day yesterday, and after the paper had gone to press he rushed in with his first and only item. We give it verbatim: "Startling Accident—A horse ran away about half a hour ago, hitched to a buggy. It some folks who was crossing the streets awhile before he came along they would have got hurt at a tremendous rate of speed as their legs, &c., would have got broke, it they hadn't got out of the way."

Cui Bono?

[Canaan Reporter.]

The political season in Massachusetts, just now is much heated. Gen. Butler, in defiance of all the "respectability" of the State, has nominated himself for Governor and, as usual is carrying on an aggressive campaign upon nearly the whole of the leaders and leading papers in the State. They denounce him without stint,—thief being one of the mildest terms they apply to him. Gen. Butler goes into the State convention. Suppose he gets nominated for Governor, as he hopes to, what are the leaders and leading papers going to do? If they tell the truth about him, he is not fit to be Governor. If it is not the truth then they are simply liars, and not fit to be leaders any more. But supposing he succeeds in capturing the convention, as he hopes to, are they going to support him as the republican candidate? Should he succeed, doubtless much of the ferocity in these men and papers will abate itself.

Lived Too Long.

[Indianapolis News.]

If there is any probability of the Graphic's balloon coming to grief, that journal will confer a sweet boon upon a suffering and grief stricken world by sending Eli Perkins in it. That young man has lived too long and don't know it.

—T. B. Aldrich's last rhyme is one of his prettiest, save that its theme sounds strangely in this warm weather:

These winter nights, against my window pane,
Nature with magic pencil draws designs
Of ferns and blossoms and the fine spray of pines,
Oak-leaf and acorn and fantastic vines,
Which she will make when summer comes again—
Wierd arabesques in silver, flat and cold,
Like curious Chinese etchings.....By and by,
Walking my early garden as of old,
These frosty fantasies shall charm my eye
In azure, damask, emerald, and gold.

—The New Haven police are drilling so thoroughly, in anticipation of their appearance at the head of the column on Thursday, that they refuse to address their wives and sweethearts until properly saluted. The other night one of these knights of the billy paid no attention to his wife, after she had called him half a dozen times to supper. After the doctor had combed the tea and crockery out of his hair, and shaved a place on his head, he said he thought he could find him a substitute for the parade.

Business Notices.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHORATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CASWELL, HAZARD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. It taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. tu28

Castoria is more than a substitute for Castor Oil. It is the only safe article in existence which is certain to assimilate the food, regulate the bowels, cure wind-colic and produce natural sleep. It contains neither minerals, morphine or alcohol, and is pleasant to take. Children need not cry and mothers may rest.

The Beginning of Sickness.

Never trifle with what are called small ailments. A disorder easy of control at first, if neglected for a few weeks, may become a mortal disease. Be especially careful not to let debility or pain upon you, for it is the door through which maladies enter the system. If you feel languid, inert, and, to use a common expression, "as if there was no life left in you," resort at once to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The great vegetable tonic will supply the vitality you so urgently need. It is nerve food. By its tonic action the Stomach is so invigorated that digestion becomes regular, easy, perfect; while its mild, cathartic properties relieve the bowels from obstructions, and its alterative operation beneficially affect all the secretive organs. For the miseries of dyspepsia, and they include almost every unpleasant feeling that belongs to physical disease and mental wretchedness, this potent tonic is a certain and speedy balm.

Unlike other Cathartics, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets do not, after their operation, have a secondary tendency to render the bowels more costive. This is an important improvement, as all who have ever taken many pills or other cathartics for the purpose of overcoming constipation, know to their sorrow that the second effect of the dose much aggravates the evil, so much so as to "render a bad matter worse." These Pellets produce such a secondary tonic effect upon the bowels as to bring about a permanent healthy action. Hence their great value, taken in small doses daily for any length of time, in habitual constipation and in Piles, attended and produced, as they generally are, by torpor of the liver and costiveness. Sold by Druggists at 25 cents a vial. 693

Centaur Liniment.

There is no pain which the Centaur Liniment will not relieve, no swelling it will not subdue, and no lameness which it will not cure. This is strong language, but it is true. It has produced more cures of rheumatism, neuralgia, lock-jaw, palsy, sprains, swellings, caked-breasts, scalds, burns, salt-rheum, earache, &c., upon the human frame, and of strains, spavins, gall, &c., upon animals, in one year, than have all other pretended remedies since the world began. It is a counter-irritant, an all-healing pain-reliever. Cripples throw away their crutches, the lame walk, poisonous bites are rendered harmless, and the wounded are healed without a scar. It is no humbug. The recipe is published around each bottle. It is selling as no article ever before sold, and it sells because it does just what it pretends to do. Those who now suffer from rheumatism, pain or swelling, deserve to suffer if they will not use Centaur Liniment. More than 1000 certificates of remarkable cures, including frozen limbs, chilblains, chronic sores, gout, running tumors, &c., have been received. We will send a circular containing certificates, the recipe, &c., gratis, to any one requesting it. One bottle of the yellow wrapper Centaur Liniment is worth one hundred dollars for sprained or sweeney horses and mules, or for screw-worm in sheep. Stock-owners—this liniment is worth your attention. No family should be without Centaur Liniment. Sold by all Druggists. 50 cents per bottle; large bottles, $1.00. J. B. ROSE & CO., 57 Broadway, New York.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR,

FOR RESTORING GRAY HAIR

TO ITS NATURAL VITALITY AND COLOR.

Advancing years, sickness, care, disappointment, and hereditary predisposition, all turn the hair gray, and either of them incline it to shed prematurely.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, by a few days' careful use, has proven that it stops the falling of the hair immediately, and then renews the growth, and always restores its color when faded or gray. It eliminates the nutritive organs to healthy activity, and preserves both the hair and its beauty. Thus brashy, weak or sickly hair becomes glossy, pliable and strengthened; dull hair regains with lively expression; falling hair is checked and established; thin hair thickens; and faded or gray hair resumes its original color. Its operation is sure and marvelous. It cures dandruff, heals all humors, and keeps the scalp cool, clean and soft—a result which conditions diseases of the scalp are impossible.

As a dressing for ladies' hair, the VIGOR is praised for its grateful and agreeable perfume, and valued for the soft lustre and richness of tone it imparts.

Visiting Firemen.

[Lynn Reporter.]

Dearborn Steamer Engine Company, of Portsmouth, will visit this city as the guests of S. B. Breed Hook and Ladder Company, on Friday, September 12, and they will be sure to be received in good style by their Lynn friends. This will be the second time this season that the "S. B. Breeds" have acted the part of hosts, and they know how to do it to perfection. We hope that the friends of the firemen will not be backward in seconding the efforts of the hook and ladder boys, to render the visit of the "Dearborns" to Lynn pleasant in every particular. Let them see that there are plenty of whole souls in the "City of Soles."

Laconics.

Secretary Robeson visited the navy yard, Monday, and was saluted.

Swaine Buckley's Minstrels, including a double quartette of male and female voices, are coming Sept. 2d. Buckley has an excellent company with him.

The aqueduct company pay no attention to the demands of the public for a fuller supply of water. Will our citizens wait for relief until a conflagration devastates Portsmouth and ruins our merchants?

Freight conductor Staples, of the Eastern Railroad, denies that he has eloped with Mrs. Frederick S. Taylor of East Boston—but Mr. Taylor persists in saying that Staples is the man who went with her.

The coroner's jury in the case of Chas. C. Gilpatrick of Biddeford, Me., who was killed on the Boston & Maine Railroad at South Newmarket Junctio non the 18th inst., returned a verdict Saturday exonerating the railroad corporation and their employees.

The Times says the Eastern Railroad Company will soon cause cards to be placed in the end of each car, to be exchanged at the sound of a bell as the train approaches a depot, thus showing the passengers the name of the station and whether it is necessary to change cars.

The visitors at York Beach have been entertained on Sundays by exhibitions of teams running into each other, carriages upsetting, broken heads, ankles, etc. On Sunday last a general smash-up was had at the Bowdoin House, where it is reported that one George Varrell of York had a piece of his cheek bit out and Capt. George Bowdoin, proprietor of the house, had some of his ribs broken; sundry other bruises were enjoyed by participants in the melee.

The attention of parents, guardians and masters is called to the advertisement elsewhere, warning them that children under their care between the ages of eight and fourteen years, must attend school twelve weeks in the year unless educated at home. A prompt obedience to the law will save guardians the fines imposed for neglect of duty, and rid our streets of many "young Arabs" who for want of proper discipline and education bid fair to become worthless vagabonds.

Mr. Thomas A. Staples of Newington, formerly a shipwright at the navy yard, has been sick at his home for a year or more; and on Saturday a subscription paper was circulated among his former fellow workmen; and the very handsome sum of ninety-seven dollars raised in a few minutes—a gift well bestowed and gratefully accepted. Mr. Staples is a worthy, industrious and temperate man, with a wife and several children, and his long illness must be very disheartening; but this substantial reminder that he has the sympathy of his old companions is cheering as well as opportune. We like to record such instances of good will and practical Christianity, and hope each of the donors will enjoy more than ninety-seven dollars' worth of satisfaction from the knowledge that his contribution has been placed where it will do the most good.

The Railroad War,

[Portland Press.]

The Boston and Maine gave notice to the Eastern road, Saturday, that at 7 o'clock A. M. Sunday, they should put down a cross frog at the head of Smith's wharf, recently purchased by them. The frog was carried to the ground and laid alongside the Commercial street track late Saturday evening. About midnight, Saturday, W. S. Eaton, general freight agent on the Eastern and Maine Central roads, took charge of a freight train of twenty cars, to which was attached two engines, and ordered it moved out of the Eastern depot down Commercial street to the point where the Boston and Maine proposed to cross their track. Here the cars were stopped and there they remained until nine o'clock Monday morning. Quite a large force of brakemen and engineers accompanied the train—to brake up, probably. No demonstration was made by the Boston & Maine. The Eastern road usually occupies Commercial street from 5 A. M. till 12 M., when the track belongs to the Grand Trunk, but Sunday, by agreement, the Eastern road occupied the track all day, and the Grand Trunk has it morning and afternoon of Monday. What will come of this move remains to be seen.

—A Frenchman being about to remove his shop, his landlord inquired the reason, stating at the same time that it was considered a very good stand for business. The Frenchman replied, "Oh! yes; he's very good 'stand' for de 'business. Me stand all day; for nobody come to make me move."

—Not long since, a young Kentuckian paid his undivided attention to one of the fair sex, and concluded to pop the question. After much stammering and hesitation the young lady exclaimed, "I am partially engaged, but my mother wants to marry!"

—A little girl was one day reading the History of England with her governess, and coming to the statement that Henry I. never laughed after the death of his son, she looked up and said, "What did he do when he was tickled?"

New York Institution for the Deaf and Dumb.

The ordinary course of instruction occupies five years, during which the pupil gains enough knowledge of language to express himself intelligibly in writing, acquires something of arithmetic and geography, and is taught the great truths of religion in which all Christians agree, together with an outline of Scripture history. At the close of this period as many as two-thirds of the pupils enter upon a further course of three years, during which special attention is paid to the more difficult forms of the English language, to history, higher geography, higher arithmetic, and select portions of the Bible. Still further opportunities are afforded in what is called "the high class" for pupils who are unusually bright and industrious. Its course occupies three years more; and pupils who complete it, in addition to a more extended acquaintance with studies previously commenced, obtain some knowledge of algebra, physiology, chemistry, natural philosophy, logic, rhetoric, and moral science.

A very large majority of the pupils are beneficiaries of the State, which provides for the education of all her deaf-mutes between the ages of twelve and twenty-five, if they need her aid. Deaf-mute children between the ages of six and twelve, also, if already a charge for maintenance upon any county or town, may be sent to the institution at the expense of such county or town. The fifty-third annual report show that of the five hundred and thirty-four pupils in school September 30, 1871, three hundred and forty-seven were supported by the State of New York, one hundred and thirty-eight by the counties to which they belonged, thirty-two by the State of New Jersey, and less than twenty by their friends.

We must not infer, however, that almost all of these pupils come from homes of poverty. Many of them belong to respectable families who could provide comfortably for the needs of ordinary children at home, though they are not able to pay out the sums required to keep them at school for a long course of years. It costs here about three hundred dollars a year for each pupil, besides clothing and travelling expenses. This, however, includes medical attendance, medicine, and nursing in sickness, as well as books and stationery. If desired, clothing is also furnished, at an additional charge of fifty dollars a year.

The Democrat claims that St. Louis has ten millionaires; fifty men worth between $500,000 and $1,000,000, seventy between $300,000 and $500,000, three hundred between $160,000 and $300,000, five hundred between $50,000 and $100,000, and two thousand between $25,000 and $50,000. Three of the millionaires hold property valued at more than $10,000,000, and the aggregate of property in possession of all may be safely estimated at over $20,000,000.

—When a man "squats" on another man's claim in Nevada, he is first told to "rise." If he won't rise he is shot at, and if this fall, a crowd of men haul him up to a limb and leave him te enjoy the morning air.

—The question with which a Brooklyn man is sitting up nights is, "Is it right to shoot my neighbor's billy goat after he has eaten up seventy-five dollars' worth of my flowers?"

—Industry isn't always rewarded. A Sing Sing convict worked eighteen months on a false key, and it was taken away from him the day he had it completed.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

—When the late Lyman Beecher was settled over the Bowdoin Street Church, in Boston, his son, Henry Ward, used to be one of the boys who on Saturday would fight the Charlestown boys on Long Bridge. The sexton of the church told young Henry that he had better let the Charlestown boys alone; they were much better than the Boston boys. "Now," said he, "when a Charlestown boy comes over here to dinner, he gets a single slice of pork for his dinner; but when you go to Charlestown to dinner, you will find a hog at every plate." The future man of Plymouth church replied not, but pondered.

—The Utica Observer rhapsodizes over the political future in the following strain:—"Democracy rises from its apathy like a Giant from his sleep, refreshed and strengthened." "But when," interrupts the Saratogian, "one pauses to cross-examine as to what kind of a 'giant' it is, somehow one can't help thinking about that other old fraud of a 'giant'—old Cardiff."

THE AMERICAN CARD PRINTER.—The best, neatest, quickest, and most durable article for printing visiting cards that has ever been on the market. With it an agent can travel from town to town, printing visiting cards in various styles; a business at which card writers are now making from $10 to $20 per day, and have done so for years past, and now cannot begin to supply the demand, as only the best writers can do the work; but with the above printer a boy 12 years of age can do work better and more accurate than the most experienced card writers. 50 well printed cards, with your name, as samples, post-paid 30 cts. 1e22 BOND, MARTIN & CO., Springfield Mass.

WANTED AGENTS.—Worthy the special notice of old and experienced canvassers. Those celebrated steel-line engravings, viz: "COLE'S VOYAGE OF LIFE," four beautiful pictures, representing Childhood, Youth, Manhood and Old Age; now offered by canvassers for the first time. Price reduced to suit the masses; nothing like it ever offered in America by public. Extraordinary terms and inducements. ☞ Full particulars free. Address B. B. GRANDEST SCHEME EVER KNOWN.

Fourth Grand Gift Concert

FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE

PUBLIC LIBRARY OF KENTUCKY

12,000 CASH GIFTS $1,500,000

Every Fifth Ticket Draws a Gift

$250,000 for $50.

The Fourth Grand Gift Concert authorized by special act of the Legislature for the benefit of the Public Library of Kentucky, will take place in Public Library Hall, at Louisville, Ky.,

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 3d, 1873.

Only sixty thousand tickets will be sold and one-half of these are intended for the European market, thus leaving only 30,000 for sale in the United States, where 100,000 were disposed of for the Third Concert. The tickets are divided into ten coupons, or parts, and have on their back the Scheme with an explanation of the mode of drawing.

At this concert, which will be the grandest musical display ever witnessed in this country, the unprecedented sum of divided into 12,000 cash gifts, will be distributed by lot among the ticket-holders. The number of tickets to be drawn from one wheel by blind children and the gifts from another.

$1,500,000,

LIST OF GIFTS:

ONE GRAND CASH GIFT,		$250,000
ONE GRAND CASH GIFT,		100,000

325 CASH GIFTS	100 each,	32,500
11,000 CASH GIFTS	50 each,	550,000
TOTAL, 12,000 GIFTS, ALL CASH, amounting to,		$1,500,000

The distribution will be positive, whether all the tickets are sold or not, and the 12,000 gifts all paid in proportion to the tickets sold—all unsold tickets being destroyed, as at the First and Second Concerts, and not represented in the drawing.

PRICE OF TICKETS:

Whole tickets, $50; Halves, $25; Tenths, or each Coupon, $5; Eleven Whole Tickets for $500; 22½ Tickets for $1,000; 113 Whole Tickets for $5,000; 227 Whole Tickets for $10,000. No discount on less than $500 worth of Tickets at a time.

The unprecedented success of the Third Gift Concert, as well as the satisfaction given by the First and Second, makes it only necessary to announce the Fourth to insure the prompt sale of every Ticket. The Fourth Gift Concert will be conducted in all its details like the Third, and full particulars may be learned from circulars, which will be sent free from this office to all who apply for them.

Tickets now ready for sale, and all orders accompanied by the money promptly filled. Liberal terms given to those who buy to sell again.

IRON IN THE BLOOD.

DYSPEPSIA, DEBILITY, DROPSY AND HUMORS.

PERUVIAN SYRUP

Makes The Weak Strong.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the system. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building upon an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

AMERICAN & FOREIGN PATENTS.

R. H. EDDY,
SOLICITOR OF PATENTS,
For Inventions, Trade Marks or Designs.
No. 76 STATE ST., OPPOSITE KILBY ST., BOSTON.

After an extensive practice of upwards of thirty years, continues to secure patents in the United States; also in Great Britain, France and other foreign countries. Caveats, Specifications, Assignments, and all papers for Patents, executed on reasonable terms with dispatch. Researches made to determine the validity and utility of Patents of Inventions, and legal and other advice rendered in all matters touching the same. Copies of the claims of any patent furnished, by remitting one dollar. Assignments recorded in Washington.

No Agency in the United States possesses superior facilities for obtaining Patents or ascertaining the patentability of inventions.

All necessity for a journey to Washington to procure a Patent and the usual great delay there, are here saved inventors.

TESTIMONIALS.

"I regard Mr. Eddy as one of the most capable and successful practitioners with whom I have had official intercourse. CHARLES MASON,
Commissioner of Patents."

"I have no hesitation in assuring inventors that they cannot employ a man more competent and trustworthy and more capable of putting their applications in a form to secure for them an early and favorable consideration at the Patent Office.
EDMUND BURKE,
Late Commissioner of Patents."

"MR. R. H. EDDY has made for me over THIRTY applications for Patents, having been successful in almost every case. Such unmistakable proof of great talent and ability on his part leads me to recommend ALL inventors to apply to him to procure their Patents, as they may be sure of having the most faithful attention bestowed on their cases and at very reasonable charges. JOHN TAGGART."

Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company.
COAL.
HAVING contracted for a quantity of the above coal, we would call the attention of Manufacturers, Dealers and Consumers to the following different grades mined and controlled by the Company:
HARD WHITE ASH COAL,
FREE BURNING WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN WHITE ASH COAL,
SHAMOKIN RED ASH COAL,
NORTH FRANKLIN COAL,
LYKENS VALLEY COAL.
In order that all coal shall be shipped in good order, a most rigid system of inspection, both at the mines and at the shipping ports, will at all times be enforced. In every district of the coal region there will be appointed a number of competent persons skilled in the preparation of coal, as local inspectors, whose duty it will be to visit the several collieries daily to see that a proper force is at all times employed in removing slate, and to prevent, if possible, any coal being sent from the mines in bad order. In addition to these efforts at prevention, no means will be left untried at the shipping ports to cure the evils of careless preparation. At Schuylkill Haven, Port Clinton and Port Richmond, ALL COAL WILL BE SUBJECTED TO THE PERSONAL EXAMINATION OF A SKILLED INSPECTOR BEFORE IT IS SHIPPED, and if condemned by him, will be dumped in places provided for the purpose, and before being loaded into vessels WILL BE THOROUGHLY RE-PICKED AND CLEANED BY HAND.
We keep a fine stock of the above coal on hand, also

The Great South American Blood Purifier.
JURUBEBA
IS THE MOST POWERFUL CLEANSER, strengthener and remover of Glandular Obstructions known to Materia Medica.
IT IS SPECIALLY ADAPTED to constitutions "worn down" and debilitated by the warm weather of Spring and Summer, when the blood is in a stagnant condition, consequently gathering impurities from sluggishness and imperfect action of the secretive organs, and is manifested by Tumors, Eruptions, Blotches, Boils, Pustules, &c., &c.
WHEN WEARY AND LANGUID from overwork, and dullness, drowsiness and inertia take the place of energy and vigor, the system needs a TONIC to build it up and help the Vital Forces to regain their recuperative power.
IN THE HEAT OF SUMMER, frequently the LIVER and SPLEEN do not properly perform their functions; the Uterine and Urinary Organs are inactive, producing weakness of the stomach and intestines and a predisposition to bilious derangement.
Dr. WELLS'
EXTRACT OF JURUBEBA
is prepared directly from the SOUTH AMERICAN PLANT, and is peculiarly suited to all these difficulties. It will cleanse the VITIATED BLOOD, strengthen the LIFE-GIVING POWERS, and REMOVE ALL OBSTRUCTIONS from IMPAIRED and ENFEEBLED Organs.
IT SHOULD BE FREELY TAKEN, as Jurubeba is pronounced by medical writers the most efficient PURIFIER, TONIC and DEOBSTRUENT known in the whole range of medicinal plants.
JOHN Q. KELLOGG, 18 Platt St., New York.

Fight on a Train.

[Denver (Col.) Tribune.]

The passengers on the eastern-bound Kansas Pacific train on Saturday night enjoyed the rare opportunity of witnessing one of the fiercest fights between desperadoes and equally courageous Texans ever witnessed upon the Western plains. The facts, as related by one of the railway men, last evening are as follows:

An old drover from the far-off plains of Texas got upon the Kansas Pacific train at Ellsworth with the intention of going to Kansas City. There also got on board the train at the same station two of the cattle dealers, one of them a short, muscular little fellow, who plays the most prominent part in this affair. A party of three of those pestiferous thieves known to all Western railways—monte gamblers—soon made their presence known in the car next to the sleeping-car, and in a few minutes had pocketed the old drover's last $20 note. It was at this juncture that the above-mentioned little cattle man "came out strong"—as Mark Tapley would say. He interfered in the old drover's behalf, when the monte men very arrogantly told him to mind his own business. The young man resented the hint, words led to words, and words to blows. The young cattle drover managed to put in a series of scientific sledge hammer blows, which soon sent the monte thief howling and bleeding over the seats. The other monte men joined in to take a hand, when the other cattle drover met them, and, in a short time, punished them fearfully. Finding themselves beaten, they retreated at the muzzle of the cattle men's revolvers to the sleeping-car, and locking themselves up in the drawing room, drew their revolvers and knives and made defiance to further attack.

A council of war was held in the front car, when it was agreed that the monte men should be permitted to hold the sleeping-car until the train reached Salina, where a sheriff's posse had been telegraphed for. But this arrangement was not satisfactory to the brave little drover. He had resolved upon recovering the old man's money, and appeared to treat with contempt the knives and pistols pointed at the windows of the drawing-room. After washing off the blood from his face and hands, he walked boldly into the sleeping-car, where the three gamblers, driven to bay, stood watch within the locked glass doors. With a huge navy revolver in each hand the young man dashed open the door of the den, and putting his cocked revolvers at the heads of the astonished gamblers, coolly demanded the old drover's lost money.

Finding that he was determined to have it or do worse, and seeing the passengers closing in with cocked revolvers, the gamblers gave up the money. This did not satisfy the young drover. He now demanded the surrender of all the knives and pistols in their possession After some parleying the arms were given up, and the monte men held under guard until the train rolled into Salina, where a Sheriff's posse awaited them with bracelets and a guard of honor. They were taken from the train and escorted to jail. Conductor Brinkerhoff and Pullman Car Conductor Flint received the thanks of the passengers for their coolness and prompt action in securing the arrest of the monte thieves, while the young drover deserves more praise and credit than mere words can express. He learned the monte gang a lesson they will never forget.

Freaks of Lightning.

At the last sitting of the French Academy of Science, a letter was read from M. A. Parent, giving an account of the effects of a violent stroke of lightning which fell on the 26th ult. at Troyes, (Aube,) in a central quarter of the town, with a noise equal to the report of several pieces of artillery. The phenomenon seems to have been confined to the Rue de la Monnaie, where, at No. 37, a young girl who was standing on the threshold of her dwelling saw a fiery globe, of the size of an orange, fall at her feet, then roll along the street, and disappear. She experienced a violent shock, causing a trembling that did not cease until the following day. The pins in her hair were torn away, as well as all the other metal articles she had about her person. Her father, who was leaning against the iron bars of a window of the next house, was paralyzed for a few seconds, and did not recover from the commotion for several days. At No. 24, same street, in the "Election-house," as it is called, the electric fluid fell on a turret behind the house, pierced a hole through the weather-cock, slid down the roof along the zinc which covered it, got inside by loosening the beams that supported the woodwork, broke through a partition, then through the floor into the lower story, made its way through a wall into a garret, got out through a window, ran along the spouts and pipes laid down to the first story; thence passed to the next house, broke into a ware-house where there were some iron stoves, with the usual cast-iron ornaments, such as wreaths, flowers, &c., all of which it faithfully designed on the ceiling with the precision of photography; then melted the wire of a bell, the trace of which it left on the wall, and at length took a fancy to some gilt wooden rods intended for sale and wrapped up in paper. These it enriched with fantastic but elegant designs, and after a few more vagaries, took its leave.

Daily Chronicle.

WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 27, 1873.

Political Notes.

The New York Post quotes figures to illustrate the remarkable decline of democracy in that most Bourbon of States, Kentucky. In 1868 the democrats had 72,000 majority; in 1871, 37,000; in 1872, 11,000; and at the late legislative election the majority was thought hardly worth mentioning. This, adds the Post, is the condition of the party everywhere.

The next United States Senator from New Jersey will be elected to fill the vacancy made by the expiration of the term of Hon. John P. Stockton, March 4, 1875, and the Legislature elected in 1874 will decide the question, while all State Senators chosen this year will hold over and have a vote for Mr. Stockton's successor.

The democratic party is slowly but surely losing its newspapers. The Missouri Republican, the principal organ of the party in the West, has thrown the party overboard altogether, and now the New York Evening Express follows suit. The latter journal believes that the party "is only negative in its theories and action, and even as a negative power it has no united, definite purpose except revenge in the South and the spoils in the North." The democratic party is the party of spoils in the South as well as in the North. In Virginia, for instance, it clings to power only on account of the railroad rings.

The New York Evening Post says: "The political canvasses of 1873 will prove either the end of the democratic party or that it has more lives than the proverbial number belonging to a cat. No amount of boasting or noise or work can conceal the fact that the party is gradually and certainly losing ground. It may here and there win a victory, or even gain a few votes on the returns of last year; but these will be exceptionable cases, wholly attributable to negative circumstances and not to positive merit, and they can only influence a brief postponement of the final dissolution."

Readables.

On Saturday, the City Treasurer of Boston drew a check for $375,000, in payment for the land and the building of the estate corner of Congress and State streets, owned by the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company, which the city has bought for the purpose of widening Congress street.

Irving received about $240,000 for his entire literary labors, and no American author has equaled him.

Rev. Theodore Tilton, a liberal Republican, favors Gen. Butler for Governor of Massachusetts.

The Fredericton (N. B.) Express tells an extraordinary story. It appears that a mother was directed to use glycerine for a child that was suffering from a slight affection of the skin of the face. The mother faithfully following the directions, applied the glycerine as ordered; and the infant shortly afterward falling asleep, was put in its crib while the mother attended to her household duties. Returning in about an hour she was horrified to find the child's face black and its breath almost stopped. Snatching up the babe the mother discovered that flies in immense numbers, attracted by the glycerine, had covered the child's mouth and nostrils and even crawled into its little throat. In her alarm and excitement she wiped off as many flies as she could with her apron, and with her fingers and a spoon cleaned out its mouth and throat, when finding its breath growing weaker she dashed water over its face, and fortunately succeeded in restoring animation, and rescued her darling from a horrid death.

The most remarkable engineering feat now in progress is the crossing of the Andes by the Lima Oyra railroad. The mountain chain will be crossed at an altitude of 15,000 feet, by a tunnel 3,000 feet in length. The grades are the steepest known in railroad engineering. The workmen employed are Cholos Indians, the only laborers who can endure for a prolonged period the rarified atmosphere at so great an elevation.

A Liverpool (England) dog has a litter of puppies with but two legs each. Mr. Darwin will note the rapidity of the evolution.

An old lady named Hancock, at Chicopee Falls, Mass., has lain on one side for five years. The physicians say that any change of position would cause her death. Her disease is water around the heart.

The Shah, while in England, is said to have hinted a wish to see some one executed in the English manner. Being told that such things could not be done in England, except in the course of law, he met the objection with the ready offer to lend some one from his own suite, who might be operated upon without fear of legal questions.

Among the unmailable matter sent to the Dead Letter Office a few days ago, was a package about ten inches in length by four in width, which, upon being opened, proved to be a small hive of bees. The pine box in which they were inclosed was perforated with twenty-four auger holes, twelve on each side. The bees were in these, each hole having a sponge in it saturated with some kind of saccharine matter for the sustenance of the occupants. These little cells or holes were covered with a fine wire to prevent the escape of the bees, which appeared to be in a good state of preservation, buzzing around in their narrow confines in quite a lively manner. They were evidently sent by some bee dealer to a customer or friend, the package, however, having no mark! What disposition will be made of them remains to be seen.

Arrangements are made for exchanging postal cards with Newfoundland.

It now transpires that the services of a clairvoyant were sought by the Brooklyn police authorities to discover the Goodrich murderer.

A defalcation to the amount of $40,000 has been discovered in the National Exchange Bank at Albany. The teller and assistant-teller are culprits.

The 6.15 train out of Portland for Boston on Saturday morning over the Eastern Railroad was composed of eleven passenger cars besides the Pullman, containing 550 passengers, with 264 pieces of baggage. Mr. J. A. Bedell, baggage master of this train, carried 34,476 pieces of baggage during 1872.

Rollin D. Lane, postal clerk on the New York and Boston mail cars, while at his home in Collinville, a few days since, on descending into his well on a ladder, was furiously attacked by a swarm of bumble bees that had a nest near the top of the well inside, and in his efforts to defend himself, one of the rounds of the ladder broke, and he fell backwards, striking the water in a doubled-up position. He came near drowning, and was somewhat bruised in the fall.

Seven cars of a freight train were thrown from the track on Friday night, beyond North Berwick, by a long spar rolling off, Monday. Passengers on the down trains from Boston and up from Portland had to be transferred. The track was torn up for some distance. No one was hurt.

A U. S. Senator at Long Branch is reported to have beaten his wife because she removed a spider from his drinking mug.

A Virginia lady, gathering berries, was lately struck twice in the breast by a rattle snake, but thanks to toilet artifice, escaped harm.

Professor Abbe, who for a long time has prepared the daily probabilities of the weather bureau of the War Department, has recently been transferred to other duty, and another officer from the regulars has been assigned to that position.

The cholera is raging in Hungary and fifty per cent. of the cases prove fatal.

The people of Northwood are to have a barbecued ox at their centennial celebration on the sixth of September next.

The directors of the Merrimack county agricultural society decided at Concord on Saturday last not to hold a fair this fall.

The Rochester Union is responsible for the statement that a dog in that city wears a collar and pants these hot days.

A barn and the rear part of a house belonging to Geo. W. Porter, in Keene, was burned Monday. Loss fully covered by insurance.

A Nashua man who snoozed until 11 o'clock on Sunday morning and found the beans spoiled when he arrived in the dining room, remarked, "I've nothing more to live for" and—went back to bed.

A sudden and unfavorable change in the condition of Hon. John P. Hale took place Monday afternoon. He suffered a series of severe convulsions sarising from congestion of the brain, which so taxed his enfeebled strength that at one time his physicians feared he would not survive the night. He is, however more comfortable, and hopes are entertained that he will recover from the immediate consequences of the attack.

Deed of a Slave in Salem.

[Franklin Journal.]

The subjoined copy of a conveyance of a female slave, made and executed in Salem, N. H., July 1, 1765, for which we are indebted to D. S. Clay, Esq., of Sanbornton, is a rare and interesting relic, worthy of careful preservation. Mr. Clay will deliver it to an association in which it may be preserved for the purposes of history. The library of Dartmouth College or that of the Historical Society would be the proper custodian.

The census of New Hampshire for 1767 shows Salem as having at that date two male and two female slaves, the State at that time containing 384 male and 249 female slaves. In the NEW HAMPSHIRE GAZETTE, printed at Portsmouth, under date of Nov. 15, 1771, is found the following notice:

TO BE SOLD.—A likely young negro woman, used to children and very handy in family. Also a good milch cow. Enquire of the Printers.

Such notices were very common in that paper at that period. In 1773 Governor Wentworth attempted to gather another census, and succeeded, to a considerable extent, though it has never been published, remaining still in manuscript in the Chalmers collection of papers in the Congress library. We have not the returns for Salem in our note book, but Sanbornton and Salisbury had each one male slave; Canterbury five. In the census of 1773, Salem had two slaves, Canterbury four, Concord fourteen, Sanbornton, Gilmanton, Salisbury, each one; Portsmouth had one hundred and forty, Exeter thirty-eight, Somersworth thirty, Londonderry twenty-nine, and several other towns more than twenty-five. The deed is as follows:

"Know all men by these presents, That I, Hannah Webster, of Salem, in the Province of New Hampshire, in New England, Widow, for and in consideration of the sum of twenty-one pounds, six shillings and eight pence, lawful money of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, to me in hand paid by Jonathan Swan of Methuen, in the County of Essex, in said Province of Massachusetts Bay, Do by these Presents sell, make over, and bind into the said Jonathan Swan a certain female negro, about six or seven years old named Dinah, to serve him, the said Jonathan Swan, his heirs or assigns, after the manner of the Term of Servant from and after the date hereof, for and during the natural life of the said Dinah.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal, the First Day of July, annoque Domini 1765. In the fifth year of his majesty's Reign. HANNAH WEBSTER.

Signed, sealed and Delivered in the presence of us, JOSEPH MERRILL, JOHN MERRILL, JUNER.

New Publications.

We have received from S. R. Wells, publisher of the Phrenological Journal, 389 Broadway, New York, a work entitled "DIGESTION AND DYSPEPSIA," containing an explanation of the physiology of the digestive processes, with the symptoms and treatment of Dyspepsia and other disorders of the digestive organs, by R. T. Trall, M. D. We have read it carefully, and earnestly recommend it to the perusal of every one; more especially, however, to those afflicted with that common and yet most dire of all diseases—Dyspepsia—which, in its various forms, is the direct or indirect cause of one-half the maladies that afflict humanity. This volume tells you what to eat and how to eat it, in such a plain, common sense manner as to commend itself at once to the thinking mind. It also contains valuable suggestions concerning sleep, bathing, ventilation, exercise, &c., all of which are eminently practical. How to avoid Dyspepsia if you have it not, or how to cure it if you have it, and that, too, by the simplest means, within the reach of all, is information that we hail as a harbinger of a new era "wherein dwelleth knowledge." Send a dollar to S. R. Wells, 389 Broadway, New York, and get a copy.

THE PHRENOLOGICAL JOURNAL for September, now on our table, must be pronounced by every reader of capital ability. The examination has given us much satisfaction. It contains over twenty set articles, besides shorter papers; among them being Hiram Powers, with portrait; Extraordinary Scientific Discovery; Living unto Life; Dr. Horatius Bonar, with portrait; Laughter, illustrated; Sketches from Real Life, No. 4, illustrated; Good Behavior, which everybody should read; Prof. J. M. Kieffer, with portrait; Mary Lee's Dream, a story; for teachers; Over-training; Curiosities of Abstinence; Local Option, or the Temperance Experiment at Vineland; Dr. Wilder's Wit and Wisdom; From Cheboygan to Mackinaw on Ice; The Chinese Wheelbarrow, illustrated; John Fiske, the Mormon Prophet, with portrait, etc. Subscription price, $3 a year. Zanzibar As it is.

The present condition of Zanzibar is thus described by the correspondent of the London Times, writing under date of July 5: "To those who knew Zanzibar in its former palmy days its present state must be quite astonishing. With the slave market closed, and no slave dhows discharging their wretched cargoes at the Custom-house, it seems as if the slave trade had been stopped for years instead of weeks. There are six men-of-war in harbor—the Glasgow, the Briton, the Daphne, the Wolverine, the Nimble, and the Magpie, and the Vulture and the Shearwater are expected daily. All the six vessels have their boats out, blockading the coast with a vigilance and devotion to duty suicidal to their own hopes of prize money and promotion, but admirably efficient in impressing on the Arabs a sense of the almost certain destruction to which they expose their dhows should they attempt to run them in the face of the newly-signed treaty. It is true that many of the men-of-war's boats have taken prizes; but in no case hardly have they been found to be filled with slaves, their condemnation generally depending on the technical point as to whether a single slave or so found on board has been shipped as merchandize to be sold, or is a domestic slave as recognized by law and custom. These constant captures may be useful at present as demonstrating to the Arabs the hopelessness of attempting to escape our energies, though they naturally increase in a very heavy degree the work of the British Consul; but it is nevertheless fortunate that Dr. Kirk is a man of tact, discretion, and sound discrimination in his judgment, as it is advisable that we should not imbue the Arabs with an idea that we intend immediately to proceed to the last extremities of search and capture under the new power confided to us by the treaty, and this they might justly imagine did we condemn and destroy on every colorable pretext. It need not be said that the present stagnation in the slave trade can hardly be expected to continue unless this vigilance on our part is unceasingly kept up. There are several thousands of slaves on the coast of Kilwa and Lamboo, who have been brought down for shipment, and who are now sold with difficulty at the small sum of $1 per head; and it can well be believed that the prospect of enormous gains which such a price holds forth will have induced many traders to purchase now in the hope of time and opportunity affording them some chance of being able later on to run a cargo with safety; but it is, nevertheless, distinctly a subject for the most sincere congratulation, and a proof of the success of Sir Bartle Frere's mission, that within three months of the departure of the special envoy from Zanzibar, the measures and policy which he then initiated have had the effect of bringing the slave trade to a temporary (it may be) but still to a complete stand-still. The snake is of course scotched and not killed; but we have our own weapons to fight with now, and it will be our fault if it again shows signs of any real vitality before it is completely destroyed. There can be no doubt that numbers of the slaves now on the coast will be transported by land to any spot where the dealer may fancy he is likely to find a market or port of embarkation. We can safely trust our cruisers to watch the coast line, but it is most necessary that we should now use all our influence with Egypt and Turkey to induce those powers to stop the scandal of any part of their dominions being made the highway through which this accursed trade can still safely find its way to a profitable mark et."

A New Fish.

The San Francisco Bulletin, of the 15th, says: Yesterday morning, fishermen captured in the bay and landed at Clay Street Wharf a marine monster that has thus far defied identification, and at last accounts was only known as a monstrosity. The aggregated scientific knowledge of Oakland has failed to discover the species of this peculiar fish. The fellow is nine feet ten inches in length, with the head of the shark and the body of the porpoise, and is furnished with a double row of ugly, saw-like teeth. The mouth contained a piece of what is thought to be human flesh. The fish weighs about five hundred pounds. It is customary for the residents to bathe in the vicinity of the place where this agreeable animal was caught.

—The energy and promptness with which Rev. Mr. Workman, of Illinois, brought his wife back from Indiana to be tried for the murder of Mrs. Hedgers, suggests mournful fancies that even good men may grow tired of their wives.

An Anecdote of Saratoga.

[Eli Perkins.]

The Saratoga ladies are telling another story about Colonel Alexander, the venerable president of the Equitable Insurance Company.

It seems the Colonel always kept his pockets full of silver pieces—dimes and quarters—for the waiters. He has found that the darky boys are ten times as delighted at the sight of a silver quarter as they are at a piece of soiled fractional currency, and that they will run just ten times as good a dinner. As the Colonel hands the pieces out, he always whispers slyly:—

"There, that is for 'snuff' my boy;" and all the boys here have had Colonel Alexander's "snuff" said to them so much that they are already to grin and drop the quarter in their pockets as the silver piece falls and "snuff" is uttered.

Well, last night, the Colonel rang his bell about twelve o'clock for some ice water. In a moment, the darkey was on hand with a pitcher. As he set it down, the Colonel tipped forward, very ominously, in his robe de nuit, and handed the boy a couple of silver quarters.

"There, my boy, that's for snuff, you know," said he, as he dropped the shiny pieces into the sombre palm. Then the door closed, as Colonel A. went to sleep.

About one o'clock he was awakened by a loud knock at his door, and then another.

"Good gracious!" he said, as he rubbed his eyes and opened the door. "Who's there?"

"It's me, sah," said the faithful darkey.

"And what do you want, 'round knocking at doors two o'clock in the morning? What in goodness' name——?"

"But, sah, I is come wid de snuff——!"

"The what, man?" asked the astonished Colonel.

"De snuff, sah; and dis is de best I could do, fob de peoples is all done gone to bed and de 'backer shop is all done shut up. Sarten, sah, dis is all de snuff to be had, fer I'se perpendickler to inquish ov'y wha, sah."

"O dear, this is the worst!" sighed the Colonel, and then the ladies who were listening to the dialogue over the transept, say they heard the disconsolate man drop heavily on his pillow and sigh as if his great, good old heart were broken.

New Use For Door-Knobs.

Some people have agreeable ways of amusing themselves in the south-west. An Austin (Texas) paper tells of a barber living in Lampasas, who ornamented the front door of his shop with a white door-knob. It was the first introduced into that fashionable watering-place. The Horrell gang, after killing Capt Williams and his men, and being rescued from the Georgetown jail, (parenthetically remarks the journal referred to,) returned to Lampasas, where they go and come unmolested. Spying the white door-knob, they deliberately begun to practice at it with their six shooters—it was such a nice mark—and fairly riddled the knob and the door, and now the barber finds the climate more invigorating on the avenue of our city.

Humors of Life Insurance.

The following brochure was suggested by the famous Winston-Homans imbroglio. All about how Shep. Homans ceased to be actuary for the Mutual Life Insurance Company, the whys and the wherefores, with sundry other particulars of interest too numerous to mention, will be found embalmed below:

NURSERY RHYMES FOR CHILDREN'S ENDOWMENTS.

SING A SONG OF SIXTY.

Sing a song of sixty
Million dollars stored,
Six and thirty trustees
All in a Board.
When the Board was opened
How they voted "Yes!"
In support unanimous
Of the worthy PRES!

PRES. was in his office
Counting o'er the money,
VICE was with an agent
Looking bland and sunny:
Actuary angrily
Was auditing his woes,
Along came Unanimous
And nipped off his nose.

SHEP.

Shep. was an actuary,
Shep. was a sport,
Shep. came to my house
To audit a report,
I went to Shep's house,
Shep. was on his yacht,
Shep. was beaten in the race,
Audit he would not.
Shep. was growling at his luck
In his little bed,
Down came the Board and put
A mansard on his head.

Business Notices.

Vegetine will cure the worst cases of Scrofula, for which no medicine has obtained such a reputation.

For loss of appetite, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Depression of Spirits and General Debility, in their various forms, FERRO-PHOSPHATE ELIXIR OF CALISAYA made by CARTER, HARRAD & CO., New York, and sold by all druggists, is the best tonic. As a stimulant tonic for patients recovering from fever or other sickness, it has no equal. If taken during the season it prevents fever and ague and other intermittent fevers. 6m23

Adopt the Preventive Policy.

Severe spells of biliousness, indigestion, chills and fever, diarrhœa, nervous headache and physical exhaustion are quite usual at this season. These are visitations which everybody is anxious to avoid, and as a course of Hostetter's Bitters will unquestionably fortify the system against them, the most valuable medical advice which can be offered at this time to persons subject to such complaints, or at all sensitive to atmospheric changes, is to commence taking this powerful vegetable alterative and invigorant without delay. Forty-eight hours will not have elapsed after the first dose before a marked change will have manifested itself in the condition of the system. The ultimate result will be a habit of body so regular, a genial condition so vigorous, that however unhealthy the season may chance to be, the system thus refreshed and reinforced will be in the best possible trim to encounter it.

Unlike other Cathartics, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets do not, after their operation, have a secondary tendency to render the bowels more costive. This is an important improvement, as all who have ever taken pills or other cathartics for the purpose of overcoming constipation, know to their sorrow that the secondary effect of all such medicines has been to "render a bad matter worse." These Pellets produce such a secondary tonic effect upon the bowels as to bring about a permanent healthy action. Hence their great value, taken in small doses daily for any length of time, in habitual constipation and in Piles, attended and produced, as they generally are, by torpor of the liver and costiveness. Sold by Druggists at 25 cents a vial. 693
